Early Friday evening the pre-built rafters arrived and they were set in place on Saturday while additional work was being done on the interior dividers. Roofing sheets went into place on Sunday and application of shingles was nearly completed when the volunteer crew quit for the evening.

Windows arrived on Monday and will be set in place as time permits. Larry Killian said that efforts will be made to have the house completely enclosed against bad weather within the next few days. He said a backlog of work for his own construction and chimney-cleaning business has accumulated and he would have to spend some concentrated time in catching up on that work. He intends to do other work on the house in the evening and as time permits.

While much of the material for initial construction was donated or provided at cost, there are many items which are still needed to complete the project. Included are such major items as sheetrock, cupboards, interior and exterior doors, floor coverings, electrical wiring and fixtures, plumbing materials and fixtures, plywood flooring and some insulation. Exterior and interior paint has been donated as well as countertops once the counters are built.

Killian said that volunteers are already talking about a "Stage II" project which would include interior work, possibly in December or January.

One part of the house will be a therapy room for Amy which will provide space for equipment and for volunteers to work with patterning efforts. Since Amy has been involved with the therapy program (about two years), activities have been conducted in the Killian kitchen and one small downstairs bedroom which is also used as a bedroom.

Volunteers who registered on a sign-up sheet Friday included Bill Penning, Sam Bratteli, N. Quentin Jones, Ward Votava, Florian Kritz, Web Maves, Klem Gigstad and Ken Halldin, all of Thief River Falls; Ray Walter and Richard Culkins, Plummer; Darrow Lundeen, Trail; Leonard T. Carlson, Arden Hills; Jerry Zastera, Strathcona; Bob DeBoer, Minneapolis; Ken Speaks, Rice Lake; Jim Steenerson, Oklee; and Terry Moser, Brooks.

Volunteers on Saturday included Fern Killian, Patrick Killian and Dorothy Killian, all of Fosston; Ray Walter, Dianne Braaten, Connie Nelson, Sherry and Heidi Schiefert, Reinette Walter, Brian Walter, Wavell Sorenson, Howard Greenwald, LeRoy Stumpf, Eddie Eskeli, Arlan Koskela and Duane Nelson, all of VIEW OF THE RIVER will be visible from the glass door area of the Larry Killian home now under construction at Plummer. Volunteers assisted the Killian family Friday through Sunday with a house-raising and Larry Killian termed the work accomplished "unbelievable" and the volunteer workers "fantastic." He and his wife Diane said they were overwhelmed by the generosity and cooperation by individuals and businesses who responded to an appeal by "A Chance to Grow" to build "A House for Amy."

Mark Huot, Watford City, ND, brother of the bride; Dan Derouin, Red Lake Falls, brother of the groom; and Jeff Grenier, Red Lake Falls, friend of the groom, ushered the guests.

Mothers of the couple wore street-length gowns in colors of pink and green. They were presented with corsages of lavender roses and pink and white carnations with greenery.

George and Elsie Duden, Red Lake Falls, grandparents of the bride, were guests of honor. Serving as flower hostesses were friends of the couple, Barb and Holly Drees.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents presented a reception in the church hall for the guests. Margaret Rupprecht baked and decorated the three-tiered, white frosted wedding cake. It was trimmed with lavender and pink roses; topped with a lace heart and bell; and featured a flowing fountain at the base. Two heart-shaped side cakes were connected with white bridal stairs.

Host and hostess for the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Gordy Haats and Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Longtin, all friends of the couple. DID YOU KNOW?

ALCOHOL vs. SELF CONTROL

Dr. Frederick Lemere told the American Medical Association at Atlanta City, the alcoholism comes from loss of self-control. Loss of self-control stems partly from psychological and constitutional causes," he said, "but it is mostly due to changes in the brain cells."

"Alcohol," Dr. Lemere pointed out, really "is a drug" which, when consumed in large amounts, simply "whittles away" brain cells. "Eventually any alcohol in the system will immediately paralyze" the remaining will power and judgment in alcoholics.

"Few alcoholics intend to drink to excess but, once alcohol is imbibed, they are left helpless to control their drinking. That part of the brain which tells them when to quit becomes anesthetized.

"That is why it is impossible for the alcoholic to drink moderately. Once control is lost, it is lost forever, because brain cells once lost are never replaced. The only way the alcoholic can control alcohol is through total permanent abstinence.

John Borchert Is Speaker At Rural America Series

John Borchert, regents professor of geography at the University of Minnesota, will address "The Changing Scene in Rural America" at 3:30 p.m. Friday, November 14. Brochert will kick-off the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) seminar series in the agricultural research center auditorium.

Those attending the session will also be invited to a reception in UMC's Brown dining room at 5 p.m., a dinner with UMC faculty at 5:30 p.m., and the after-dinner address by Borchert.

Other seminar programs addressed by national experts include: "The Changing Family Structure" in December; "Environmental Issues in Rural Minnesota" in January; "The Survival of Rural Churches" in February; "The Impact of Global Issues on Rural America" in March; "Entrepreneurship and the Survival of Small Towns" in April; and "Economic Perspectives" in May.

All seminars will be free and open to the public.

Basic funding for the seminar series came from the Minnesota campaign, according to W. Daniel Svedarsky, associate professor of natural resources in the agriculture division and seminar coordinator. These seminar programs are planned to create a forum of discussion for UMC faculty and staff and for the community.

A House For Amy Rises From Ground At Killian Farm

Also Kelly Lundeen, Trail; Leonard Carlson, Arden Hills; Emmitt Davis and Jason Davis, St. Paul; Craig Cheney, Blaine; and Terry Moser, Brooks.

Sunday volunteers were Keith Demarais, Ray Walter, Duane Nelson and Brian Walter, Plummer; Klem and Marian Gigstad, Ward Votava, Viola Dirks and Mabel Nelson, Thief River Falls; Leonard Carlson, Arden Hills; Roger Gallant and Terry Moser, Brooks; Emmett Davis, St. Paul; Pat, Joyce and Dennis Killian, Fosston; Cindy Hillger and Bob Fischenich, WCCO-TV, Minneapolis; Bob DeBoer, Jesse DeBoer, Connie Koske and Kathy Blader, all with "A Chance to Grow," Minneapolis; Craig Cheney, Blaine; Patti, David and Thomas Estrem, Onamia; and Lorraine Carlson, Arden Hills.

A list of businesses and organizations which had provided assistance or donated materials toward the house-raising was posted on a signboard at the Killian farm. On Monday afternoon the list included the following:

"A Chance to Grow," Bennett Lumber, Diversofoam Insulation, Fredrickson Excavating, Genstar Roofing, Lloyd Construction, Littfin Lumber, Sawyer Cleator Lumber, Startex, Scherer Bros. Lumber, UBC Lumber, Weyerhauser Lumber, Williams Steel & Hardware, North Star, and Wisconsin Area Louisiana Pacific;

Also Dwight's Hartz, Falls Concrete, Gary's Bakery, Golden K Kiwanis, Home Lumber, Inter-County Community council, KTRF, Lampert Lumber, Land O'Lakes (Thief River Falls), Lutheran Brotherhood, Marvin Windows, Northland Foods, Northland Retired Educators association, Neil's Meat Market, Northstar Trucking, Oklee Lumber, Peterson Lumber, Catholic Order of Foresters, Shoenborn Bros., St. Hilaire Elevator, Travel Host motel, St. Anne's Court of Foresters and Pete's Snack Foods.

"We hope that we were able to list all of the volunteers and those who have been contributors toward the project so far," Diane Killian said, "but activity has been so frantic in the past several weeks that it is entirely possible someone was overlooked. If that has happened, we are truly sorry, for we are overwhelmed with gratitude for everything so many people have done and are doing for us."

"This outpouring of friendship and help has been a very emotional thing for us," Larry Killian added. "I have to admit that it almost caught up with me a couple of times over the weekend and I had to spend a few minutes in the basement by myself to swallow a few lumps before I could go back up and work with all the guys. I don't think anyone will really know how much this kind of thing means until they experience it for themselves."

He looked back toward the house and shook his head again. "Hard to believe, isn't it?" he asked absently. Then he went back up to finish shingling.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Ninth District Judges race between Jim Wilson and Fritz Weddel has been given a lot of newspaper coverage lately. The Minneapolis Star and Tribune ran a front page story on Tuesday, October 14th, and the Bemidji Pioneer ran a front page story on Thursday, October 16th. Both articles point out improprieties by the current judge, F. R. Weddel.

We are told that the Judge has at least four complaints against him waiting decision by the State Board of Judicial Standards. Weddel jailed a Bemidji attorney and at least three other people for contempt, "an unusually high number" according to Minnesota court officials. Weddel "blasted Clearwater County deputies for bringing four prisoners three minutes late to court" and refused to hear their cases.

He is also before the ethics board for "possible improprieties in financial matters involving the judge, his wife Ruth, and his mother-in-law", a 91-year-old welfare patient who suffers from Alzheimer's disease and osteoporosis. The mother-in-law's leg was broken in the Beltrami County Nursing Home and later amputated. Ruth Weddel, as guardian, sued the nursing home and won a negotiated settlement of $20,207.00 plus attorney's fees. "To avoid having the money returned directly to the county, she put most of it into exempt assets, including a lake lot and a used-red Honda", which Judge Weddel drove to work for a lengthy period of time.

Judge Weddel would have the public believe that these are isolated cases averaging only one in every five years in his years as municipal and county court judge. However, all of the above incidents happened approximately within a year from June 3, 1985 to May 23, 1986. How many other instances of intemperate behavior have not been reported or made public?

Another of Weddel's responses is to say that he has apologized, or that "intemperate" refers to his days of alcoholism and that his behavior has changed since then. In fact, all of the incidents happened two years after his treatment for alcoholism in 1983. It appears to me that Weddel's non-judicial behavior has nothing to do with alcoholism, and he doesn't learn from past mistakes.

What we have not read about in the papers are any allegations or instances of professional wrongdoing by Jim Wilson. Even Weddel supporters "say that Wilson would be a good judge and that they would support him if Weddel were not running."

Weddel apparently has a sign taped to his office door reading, "He was shifty, ruthless, greedy, overbearing, often rude and a great judge." I'd urge you to vote for Jim Wilson so our next judge can have a sign that reads, "He was honest, understanding, fair, considerate, polite, and a great judge."

Very truly yours,
L. J. Lee

DAC Staff Give Comments On Group Suspensions

vestigation then it may request that the board extend that investigation period. In such case, you would be so advised."

Rooker said he has no idea what the complaints involve.

The staff members said that the affadivits they signed covered eight separate incidents of alleged abuse dating back to about two years ago. They said that they would supply copies of the affadavits to DAC board attorney McDowell on Tuesday. McDowell and Kurt Marben, Armstrong's attorney, in the Times article as stating he had not received written copies of specific allegations against the center director.

The staff members also said that although no written allegations may have been provided the attorneys, Marben and Armstrong were advised of the allegations in meetings with Armstrong, county social services personnel and Jean King, Fergus Falls, one of several state licensers for the department of human services. They also said that copies of the allegations had been provided to David Olin, Pennington county attorney about October 17.

Staff members also took issue with a statement in the Times story that said there were no allegations of financial irregularities at the center. They contend that board members were aware that a state audit was being planned by the attorney general's office and that the board-ordered local audit on October 20 may be improper because the audit firm — Moser, Christianson Ltd. — also does the accounting for the DAC. They also contend that financial records were removed from the center as of October 10 — 10 days before the board ordered the audit at a special meeting.

Rooker, Sigerud and Johnson also pointed out that as employees of the DAC they are under the mandated reporting law which requires them to report abuse of clients. They said they are being "made to look like the bad guys" because of their reporting as the law requires.

The staff members said the investigation was initiated with a complaint to a social worker from the Pennington county social services department. Sandra Johnson of Fosston, northwest region legal assistant for developmentally disabled persons in Minnesota, was contacted October 14 when it appeared the investigation was being concluded and the director would be allowed to return to his position.

Employees of the center received a letter from McDowell as the board's attorney Tuesday informing them that Pennington county board of commissioners had withdrawn support of the center and that the DAC board had acted at a meeting Saturday to reduce salaries of staff members by 23 per cent. The letter said employees would be paid on an hourly rate, would be required to sign time cards for hours worked and would be paid on the 25th of each month instead of twice a month. The letter also noted that the director and assistant director would be paid on a salary basis subject to the 23 per cent reduction.

county as the site for the OTH-B receiver facility."

Upon the motion being passed,

A cost overrun will be incurred by the city on the overall cost of repairs on the Red Lake River dam. Alderman Murphy informed the council that the scour beneath the dam was at least four to five feet deeper than anticipated, which required almost twice as much rock. The cost overrun is estimated at around $20,000. The council will seek aid from the state.

The council passed a resolution extending the November 10 deadline for applicants to fill a fifth ward vacancy left by Alderman Clayton Restad when he retires on November 15. The resolution extends the deadline for accepting applications and resumes to December 1.

In other business the council: granted a storm sewer easement west of the water plant to Nash Finch for their Piggly Wiggly store; accepted a bid on checking account services from Northern state bank for one year; granted a progression raise for Brett Perfler, police patrolman, raising his hourly rate to $10.282; and adjourned the meeting to 4 p.m. October 30 for the budget.

sive care unit of the Roseau area hospital. He was released from the hospital Saturday morning.

Although evacuation of the area was considered, winds blew the fumes into an uninhabitated area, and Roseau Police Chief Huager said it was decided there was no need to evacuate, although traffic on state highway 11 was rerouted for a short period of time until it was determined there was no danger to passing motorists.

The Cenex West Plant was still closed to operations Tuesday because of gasket damage, according to manager George Rinde. Tanks were being moved from the Ross plant to the West Plant so farmers were able to continue to obtain the anhydrous ammonia chemical, which is used as a fertilizer.

Hillard Horvath had been employed with the Cenex company for 19 years, and was currently department head over chemicals and anhydrous. Funeral services for Horvath were held Tuesday at Messiah Lutheran church in Roseau. He made his home in rural Ross, and is survived by his wife, Marlys, and two sons, Jason, 11, and Brian, 5.

Satellite Summit At UMC Center On November 15

A satellite summit entitled "Ways Out of the Arms Race" will be shown on Saturday, Novmeber 15, from 1 to 3 p.m. at the agricultural research center auditorium on the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) campus. UMC is the only view site in northwestern Minnesota and eastern North Dakota where the summit will be viewed.

The live trans-Atlantic dialogue on nuclear arms control will bring together scientists, citizens and policy makers from America, the U.S.S.R. and Europe, according to Gary Marshall, communications instructor in IMC's arts and sciences division.

The satellite summit will link a panel and an audience of scientists and others in Washington, D.C. with a session of the International Scientists' Peace Congress in Hamburg, Germany.

The first segment of the program will present a balanced discussion of issues pertinent to national security, arms control and the Strategic Defense Initiative (Star Wars), an apparent stumbling block to agreement between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. The debate will feature leaders of the scientific and policy communities from the United States, the Federal Republic of Germany and the United Kingdom, as well as a representative from the Academy of Sciences of the Soviet Union.

The second segment will be an informal dialogue between Eruopean, Soviet and American scientists on the role of the scientist in arms control. Scientists on both sides of the Atlantic will discuss ongoing research programs, eduational activities, and involvement in national and international policy making.

On the university's Crookston campus, a discussion will follow the video teleconference. Crookston's viewing is cosponsored by UM's continuing education and lectures and concerts committee. There is no fee to attend the video teleconference, but donations to continuing education will be accepted.

For more information, contact Gary Marshall, Satellite Summit Organizer, 312 Selvig Hall, University of Minnesota, Crookston, MN 56716 or phone 218-281-6510, extension 393 or 377.

Persons Working Need Estimates For SS Records

If you work and draw social security benefits you should keep your estimate of future earnings as accurate as possible. It is a beneficiary's responsibility to provide accurate earnings estimates and doing so also reduces the likelihood of a person having to return incorrect payments.

Incorrect payments due to excess earnings occur when beneficiaries fail to report earnings over the annual limit or have actual wages for higher than those estimated. This is the largest social security source of incorrect payments and is largely preventable by updating wage estimates during the year. Current benefits are adjusted based on the estimate of earnings reported.

The regular annual earnings test places an annual earnings limit on the amount of money a person can earn without affecting benefits. This does not apply to those on disability. People who receive social security disability benefits should contact Social Security immediately upon return to work.

In 1986 the limits are $7,800 for people 65-70 and $5,760 for people under 65. Benefits are reduced $1 for each $2 earned over the limit. The earnings test does not apply to people who are age 70 or older throughout the year. By earnings we mean gross wages or net income from self employment.

Last year, for the second time social security sent working beneficiaties a mid year notice requesting an earnings update. The results have yet to be evaluated, but if it is anything like the first year, we expect a significant improvement in the accuracy of earnings reports and prevention of overpayments.

Social security estimates that the outstanding debt was reduced by $400 million at the end of fiscal year 1985, a reversal of the growth of debt at the rate of $200 million annually in recent years. More than 50 per cent of the reduction is attributed to activities aimed at preventing overpayments due top excess earnings.

People can avoid overpayments simply by taking more care with the earnings reports they file. People should be sure the earnings estimates are realistic, and when there are changes in the estimates, report them to social security as soon as possible. Reports can be made by phone, letter, or visiting any social security office. In Grand Forks the office is located at 124 North 6 Street and the phone number is 772-5517.

Letters to the Editor

(Editor's Note: The following letter to the editor contains further information on the OTH-B radar system proposed for location in the Thief River Falls area. It is being published under a headline to increase public attention to the content and with approval of the writer.)

To The Editor:

During the past two months I have taken an interest in the proposed Over-The-Horizon Backscatter Radar site near Thief River Falls. When I first received information about this project, I had a number of concerns and questions about how it might affect our farm and our community. It became apparent that many other local residents felt that these questions had not been adequately answered by the Air Force.

Since September 9, when I attended a public hearing on the OTH-B radar project, I have spoken to many area residents in both formal and informal settings. Most of the townships in the "study area" have had meetings to review any information we could gather.

The latest of these meetings was held on October 23 at the city auditorium in Thief River Falls. I had been told by many people in the area that they felt they had only been given a limited amount of information by those favoring the project and they felt that the potential negative effects had been downplayed. Because of this perception, I agreed to take responsibility for calling a meeting in Thief River Falls to present this side of the issue.

With this in mind, I spent a great deal of time and resources researching the issues to provide knowledgeable speakers, handouts and for the rental of the auditorium. I am sad to say that some of the speakers were insulted and harassed by persons that should have been above resorting to such childish tactics. I would like to extend my profound appreciation to the speakers for giving their time and energy to addressing our local concerns.

There are still a few issues that have not been adequately addressed. I contacted the Army Corp of Engineers to ask about the methods used for land acquisition. We all know that "fair market value" of the local land is much lower today than it was a few years ago. The director of land acquisition at the Omaha office indicated that, for any land to be acquired through eminent domain, the amount paid for the land and perhaps still owed on it would probably not be considered in the appraisal process. An individual who had purchased land on a contract-for-deed or had a mortgage for more than the current "fair market value" could lose the land to the air force and still have to pay the difference to the seller or bank. Farmers, if they choose, may have to go through the courts to argue that their land was worth more than the "appraisal value" and then pay all legal fees if they lose the case.

I also spoke with Bill Clausen, the director of the High Level Radioactive Waste Program for the Governor's Nuclear Waste Council. He stated that the Department of Energy is presently conducting tests with Canada on underground nuclear waste storage near Winnipeg. The siting process which covered our area was only temporarily discontinued. It could be re-instituted at any time.

I also had an opportunity to speak to a representative of the General Accounting Office last week. This agency evaluates the cost to benefit ratio of various projects at the request of Congress and makes recommendations on whether they should be carried out. This individual told me that in 1983 the GAO recommended that the plans for the entire OTH-B radar project be reconsidered. (I have a copy of a summary of this report for anyone who is interested in reading it.)

On June 9, 1986, another report was issued at the request of Congress (GAO/C - IMTEC - 86 - 1) which recommended that funding for the east and west coast radar facilities be limited to the present levels and that the Central Radar System (for our area) should not be funded at all.

Congress has not yet appropriated the money for this radar project. Even though the public comment period for the Air Force will end this Friday (Oct. 31), citizens may still write to senators and congressmen to ask that they not fund a project which has been determined to be unnecessary. If the Department of Defense succeeds in obtaining Congressional suport and purchases the land, should the project then be found to be unneeded for National Defense, what will be done with the land at that point?

If this project is located here, we will be exchanging agricultural income that is presently being spent at area businesses for the possibility of an unknown number of jobs for the local labor pool. We will be allowing a general devaluation of surrounding land and residential property in favor of an entity which pays no taxes. I feel that this trade-off is unacceptable.

It is especially sad that this issue has split the rural and city governments' interests. Some of the townships have passed resolutions opposing the project. Petitions circulated for the past month have accumulated over 550 signatures against locating the radar site here. It would be nice if the city and rural areas could do a better job of considering each other's concerns.

Donovan Dyrdal

To The Editor:

Many Americans like to believe that this nation has the best medical care in the world. "Not so!," we must reply in all honesty. To be honest about it, that's true only if one adds the conditional, "if you can afford it." America stands on the threshold, "Health care for all — Is America ready?" The Democratic party will sweep the national elections of 1986 and incumbent upon that mandate — will be health care for all Americans.

According to congressional testimony, tens of millions of people cannot afford the high-cost of American medicine. Careful surveys estimate that 35 million Americans, a third of them children under 17, have no health insurance whatever.

In terms of the small chance of a costly illness, more than 200 million Americans are unprotected against catastrophic acute or long-term care costs. Nursing home care costs $20,000 to $50,000 a year and a Harvard-Blue Cross study estimated that two out of every three elderly persons living alone would impoverish themselves in 13 weeks. In 1982, the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation estimated from a survey that about one million families were refused needed health care that year because they couldn't afford it.

When it comes down to individual cases, horror stories abound. Chairman Edward R. Roybal (D-Calif.) of the House Select Committee on aging recently held hearings on his proposed "U.S. Health Program Act" and heard Prof. Uwe E. Reinhardt of Princeton university recall cases reported in the Wall Street Journal, Business Week magazine and other publications:

(1) A 32-year-old accident victim lies unconscious in a Florida hospital that has no neurosurgeon available. But two larger hospitals with neurosurgeons refuse to accept him upon learning that there is no guarantee his bill will be paid. How do you like them apples?

(2) A pediatrician in a Rock Hill, S.C., hospital wants to transfer a comatose three-year-old girl to a better equipped urban medical center. But her family has no health insurance, and two hospitals refuse to take her in. A hospital 100 miles away finally accepts her as a patient.

(3) A woman in mid-labor in a private hospital casually mentions that her husband has just lost his job. Since in America this usually means the family has no health insurance, the woman is told to vacate and go to another hospital.

Reinhardt said it should be understood by the American people and Congress that denial of urgently needed health care in the face of a surplus of doctors and hospitals is "uniquely American. It is simply inconceivable, for example, that a Canadian, French, German or Dutch three-year-old comatose child would ever be denied available neurosurgical services simply because the child's parents are poor and uninsured," he said. It is also inconceivable in these countries that a woman would be told in mid-labor to vacate a hospital, he said.

Douglas Fraser, former head of the Auto Workers and now chairman of the labor-backed Health Security Action Council, submitted testimony backing Roybal in reopening public debate on the need for National Health Insurance coverage. Fraser said his council is developing a new national health proposal which aims at objectives similar to Roybal's plan.

Arthur S. Flemming, former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, supported the thrust of Roybal's plan. Flemming pointed out that 20 years ago Canada and the U.S.A. each spent about 6.5 per cent of their Gross National Product on health care. In 1971, Canada began its program with cost controls and today spends 8.4 per cent of GNP on health care, while the U.S. has soared to 10.7 per cent, highest in the world. Canada's plan covers everyone, he said, while upwards of 40 million Americans lack health protection. America today stands alone as the only industrial nation without a national health program.

To The Editor:

An incident that occurred in Thief River Falls this past Saturday morning has annoyed me greatly.

An innocent, trusting farm kid brought his new bike (he had just purchased it a few days before) into town so he could ride it on paved streets with his cousin. He had saved his earnings from all summer to get this "dream bike,"

A half hour after he got to town, he called home to say his bike had been stolen — and right from in front of a main street business in daylight! We have since heard this has happened frequently in the area.

Is this what living in town is all about? Is there a bike stealing ring in town? Where are the parents of those that are continually stealing bikes in "Thief River Falls"? It seems as though no one cares. What can be done about this?

Incidently, if anyone has seen a black, 20" Huffy with raspberry (pink) mags, a call to the law enforcement center would be greatly appreciated.

Thanks!

NOTICE

In a recent paid political advertisement appearing in The Times, reference was made to the "Pennington County Law Enforcement Association" and its "unanimous" endorsement of a candidate for the office of sheriff. The sponsoring organization is comprised of three licensed deputies and four civilian dispatchers of the Pennington County Sheriff's Office, and does NOT include officers or staff from the Thief River Falls Police Department. Therefore, the "Pennington County Law Enforcement Association does NOT represent the "unanimous" endorsement of all the law enforcement officials within Pennington county, as may be inferred from this advertisement.

Penn. County Board Hears Complaints Of FDAC Employees

Pennington county board of commissioners heard budget requests and complaints from employees at Falls Day Activity center at its board meeting Tuesday night.

Employees recently received letters from the Falls Day Activity Center board of directors stating that because the county had "terminated" their funding, a 23 per cent cut in pay would be necessary to keep the center operating. The employees, Jim Rooker, Lynae Johnson and Doreen Sigerud, were angry not only because of wage cuts and other restrictions specified in the letter, but also because they felt the board of directors was trying to get even with them for initiating complaints. The letter came from the board of director's attorney.

County commissioners were upset that "terminated" was used to describe their action, when they are only temporarily withholding funds until the investigation and audit has been completed to their satisfaction.

Commissioner Don Grabanski said he was tired and upset that words keep being put in his mouth. He said the use of "termination" was clearly incorrect as was the description of Armstrong's leave of absence as "voluntary." "There was nothing voluntary about it."

County Attorney Dave Olin said he would look into the matter, but thought there was little or nothing he could do to restore employee wages.

The county board heard budget requests from the Historical society and Soil Conservation Service Board. The historical society requested $6,000, the same as last year's request, and the Soil conservation service board requested $25,332, $332 more than last year's allotment.

In other business the county board: approved Sheriff Chuck Richard's request to look into bidding and different prices for prisoner's meals; approved support of Minnesota cities and counties in urging the legislature to transfer the MVET funds, approved a $50 PC computer tuition cost at the AVTI for a county staff member; approved a request to have the Veterans Affairs officer attend special meetings; approved a motion to have bids on health insurance opened on December 16; approved a highlanding boat landing permit; cancelled a mobile home real estate tax for Lonnie Watne; and approved a motion to support the Heritage community center in a letter to the Northwest Initiative Fund.

DARYL RUPPRECHT of Thief River Falls was the recipient of the E.C. First Concert, Fine Opening In TRF

by Heidi Guenther Ryan

Thief River Falls Concert association opened its 1986-87 concert season Monday, October 13, with an uplifting musical review entitled "When Music Was Music." Beginning with the year 1929, the performers sang and danced along a timeline through post WW II years.

Complete with costumes, lighting and dialogue, the troop made up of Amanda Beason, mezzo-soprano; Lotarr Ber-Geest, baritone; Sally Nell, alto-dancer; and Thomas Miller, tenor-dancer; and the jazz trio led by pianist Terry Woods, brought back musical memories to many present while providing those of us born after those decades with an evening of memorable entertainment.

Hand selected by musical arranger Mac Frampton, the company represented a varied musical background: Amanda Beason has a long list of musical appearances to her credit; Lotarr Ber-Geest is a veteran of the opera stage; Sally Nell's background ranges from musical theatre to ballet to Nashville's Opryland USA; and Thomas Miller is a native to the musical theatre scene.

Vocal solos by Amanda and Lotarr featured vocal quality and musical expression of supreme quality, while Sally and Tom's dancing evoked memories of late-night "Fred and Ginger" movies. However, it was through their combined talents along with a very tight jazz trio that the audience was ushered through the moods and music of the above mentioned era.

"Stormy Weather", sung by Amanda, was one of the musical and mood highlights of the evening. Singing in a smooth jazz style, Amanda's voice quality was full. . .her interpretation piquant. The several vocal solos by Lotarr showed off his highly trained, highly sonorous baritone voice. The Charleston and Jitterbug were just two of the breathtaking dances executed by Sally and Tom. Evident were the years of ballet and jazz training interspersed in the choreography. The stage, though simply set, contained an old-fashioned "tuneable" radio, which tuned into the music and news of the years as they went by.

"When Music Was Music" gave concert goers a fine opening to an upcoming year of diversified programming.

Forestry In NW Minnesota
Part II

by Vince Buck, Warroad

A burning permit law was passed after a forest fire destroyed the town of Cloquet and most of Moose Lake October 12, 1918, along with a dozen smaller villages. The cost in human lives was 438.

1925 saw the codification of forest laws. The forest area of the state was defined as "any county having 1,000 acres or more of timber or unbroken prairie land or of cutover land not cleared of combustible material.

1933 saw the passage of legislation that provided that 50 per cent of all the gross receipts on acquired land go back to the county in which they were generated. It also saw the establishment of the Civilian Conservation Corps. Almost over night thousands of men were available for planting trees, fighting forest fires and other forest management and nursery work. In addition, 13 new state forests were established for these men to work in. Over the years many state forests have been established until today with the establishment of the Lost River State Forest in northern Roseau County there are 57 state forests of various sizes. These forests cover over 3 million acres that are being managed for the public under the multiple use concept.

In 1953 the Norway Pine was designed as the official Minnesota state tree by the legislature.

In 1955 an inventory of the timber on 4,750,484 acres of state land was completed and published. This was the first such inventory in the history of the state.

On May 1, 1959, a 14,000 acre forest fire threatened the Buddura Nursery. It was determined to be of an incendiary cause and was instrumental in the passage of law that made the "willful burning of pine lands" a felony and made it punishable by a years imprisonment and a $1,000 fine.

As the preceding serving as a back ground of information you may find the following article of some interest as it applies exclusively with the northwest part of the state.

The year after the Baudette-Spooner fire in 1910, the state legislature created what is now our Division of Forestry. W.T. Cox, state forester, visited Warroad for the purpose of selecting a man as district ranger. George Marvin, local timber buyer, recommended one of his employees for the position. Upon Marvin's recommendation, E.A. Linder was appointed to the position with headquarters at Warroad.

Like the 16 other newly appointed district rangers in the state, Linder was faced with a difficult job and had very few tools with which to work. The state legislature had recently passed laws relating to fire protection. These laws were a beginning but were wholly inadequate for the job at hand.

The ranger's duties consisted of organizing a fire protection set up in his district. Key settlers were to be contacted and township fire wardens appointed. The district was to be divided into sub-districts and patrolmen selected and trained. Patrol cabins, look-out towers, telephone lines and fire trails were to be built.

Newly-enacted laws relating to fire protection were to be enforced. These laws dealt mainly with the disposal of logging slash and railroad fire prevention. The burning permit law was not passed until 1919, so the ranger at this time had very little control over fires set by settlers to clear land.

Linder was allotted $300 a year for the construction of lookout towers, cabins and other improvements, so naturally, progress was slow.

Pioneers Tackle Brainerd For State Football Playoff Berth

Northland Community College football coaching staff and players mapped out a step ladder set of goals for the Pioneers to shoot for at the start of the 1986 season. Seven games later, most of those goals are still obtainable.

The Pioneers close out their regular season schedule Thursday with a 7:30 p.m. Northwest Division game against Brainerd on Thief River Falls' Prowler Field.

"Finishing 4-4 was one of our first goals," explained Northland head coach Rick Nelson. "Our second goal was a winning season; our third goal was to win our division; and our fourth goal was to win a game in the playoffs."

A fifth goal, an unbeaten season, was penciled in, too, but Nelson admitted that wasn't being realistic, especially for a team that had never won more than three games in 10 years of intercollegiate football competition.

Right now the Pioneers are sitting at 4-3 for the year: first goal met. If the Pioneers beat the Red Raiders they're 5-3 and at least a co-champion in the Northwest Division: second and third goals. And a win will guarantee the Pioneers a post-season playoff berth: a chance for the fourth goal.

Record-wise, Fergus Falls has a 4-2 mark in the Northwest Division-counting Minnesota Community College Conference. Northland is 3-3, while the University of Minnesota-Crookston and Brainerd at both 2-4. But the standings are actually based upon a point system, with earlier games against Northeast Division. That puts Northland in a first place tie with Fergus Falls at 5-3 (points won-loss), while UMC is 3-5 and Brainerd is 1-7.

Fergus Falls winds up its schedule Saturday afternoon at UMC. Wins by both the Pioneers and Spartans will leave them in a first place tie, but Northland would get the MCCC playoff berth because of a 26-14 victory over Fergus Falls a couple of weeks ago. A Fergus Falls win and a Northland loss this week obviously gives the title and playoff position to the Spartans. Should both Fergus Falls and Northland lose their regular season finals, UMC would join them in a three-team log jam atop the standings.

What the tie-breaking system would be if the latter occurs is unclear, said Nelson. The easiest way to figure it out, he said, would be to simply have Northland beat Brainerd. That would take the guesswork out of it in a hurry.

After back-to-back 1-7 finishes in his first two years as Northland coach, Nelson is obviously enjoying the 1986 turnaround. "It makes it a lot more fun," he conceded. "We're excited. The kids are excited. The school is excited." He's hoping the rest of the community picks up on the Northland enthusiasm and turns out in strong numbers Thursday night.

Northland is coming off a thrilling 23-20 Thursday night win over rival University of Minnesota-Crookston that gave the Pioneers a school-record four wins for the year. Brainerd fell to Fergus Falls 20-12 Saturday.

The Red Raiders' 2-5 overall record is deceiving, warns Nelson. "They've lost a number of close games," he pointed out. "They don't score many points, but they don't give up many, either. They're big; if not the biggest team we'll face this year, they're certainly one of the biggest in both the offensive and defensive lines."

Brainerd uses a no-nonsense power football attack on offense, pointed out Nelson. "Defensively, we have to stop the power football, but at the same time, we'll have to watch out for the play-action pass," explained Nelson."

Offensively, it'll be just a matter of execution for the Pioneers, said Nelson.

Injury-wise, the Pioneers have been lucky this fall. A couple of players have missed a game or two, acknowledged Nelson, but the team has avoided any major injuries. That'll leave the line-up intact Thursday.

Offensively the Pioneers go with 6-1, 170-pound Scott Willoughby (Erskine) at quarterback; 6-0, 195-pound Doen Schmidt (Fargo North) and 5-8, 185-pound Darrin Johnson (Kennedy) at fullback; 5-10, 195-pound Steve Ristau (EGF) at halfback; 5-9, 165-pound Dean Brandon (TRF) and 5-9, 175-pound Scott Groven (Goodridge) as wide receivers; 6-0, 210-pound Dorran Anderson (Lancaster) at tight end; 5-6, 195-pound David Koehmstadt (Middle River) at center; 6-2, 205-pound Greg Bieganek (Kelliher), 5-10, 195-pound Tom McLynn (Mentor) and 6-2, 210-pound Steve Porter (Lancaster) sharing the time at the two guard spots; 6-2, 200-pound Eric Hegna (Detroit Lakes) and 6-3, 200-pound Regie Berger (Dilworth) at tackles. Chad Swenseid, a 5-9, 200-pounder from Grand Forks Central, will see playing time at both center and guard, while Rodney Gill, a 5-10, 215-pounder from Inkster, MI, will play some tackle.

Defensively, 6-2, 185-pound Tim Wayne (Goodridge) and 6-2, 200-pound Mark Bieganek (Kelliher) will be the ends; 6-1, 240-pound Jeff Johnson (TRF) and 6-4, 255-pound Anthony McCullough (Canton, OH) handle the tackles; 6-1, 200-pound Mike Stennes (Erskine) and 6-0, 195-pound Steve Wiskow (TRF) are the inside linebackers; 6-1, 170-pound Mike Coffield (Lancaster) and either 6-1, 190-pound Henry Collier (Orlando, FL) or 6-1, 180-pound Dean Zimmel (Dilworth) will be the outside linebackers, with Zimmel also playing some defensive end; 6-0, 165-pound Bill Neuschwander (Grygla) and 6-0, 165-pound Mike Zelinski (Fargo North) are the cornerbacks; and either 5-11, 180-pound Chad Ekeberg (McIntosh) or 5-10, 165-pound Darrin Byklum (Grygla) will be the safeyt.

They'll be facing a Brainerd team that opened the year with a 15-12 loss to the Bemidji State University junior varsity, lost to Vermilion 20-0, beat Hibbing 16-9, lost to Mesabi 19-8, shut out Itasca 12-0 and fell to UMC 22-12 before losing to Brainerd last week.

Northland, meanwhile, started with a 14-13 win over the Moorhead State University junior varsity, blanked Mesabi 20-0, lost to Itasca 16-13, fell to Vermilion 40-20 and stumbled against Hibbing 29-8 before rebounding with the wins over Fergus Falls and UMC.

A TIME-OUT conference on the sidelines involving Northland Community College head football coach Rick Nelson and quarterback Scott Willoughby that took place during last week's Northwest Division game against University of Minnesota-Crookston will probably be repeated Thursday when the Pioneers close out their 1986 regular season schedule with an important Minnesota Community College Conference game against Brainerd at Prowler Field in Thief River Falls. A Northland victory would put the Pioneers into the MCCC state playoffs next week.

Prowlers Carry 16-4 Record Into North Sub-Region 8AA

Bemidji defeated Fergus Falls 15-5, 15-7, 15-9 Tuesday in a 1986 North Sub-Region 8AA high school volleyball tournament first round match.

Played at Bemidji, the match featured the No. 4-seeded Lumberjacks and No. 5-seeded Otters.

That sets the stage for Thursday's semifinals at Moorhead High School when No. 1-seeded Moorhead plays Bemidji at 6:30 p.m. and No. 2-seeded Thief River Falls goes against No. 3-seeded Detroit Lakes at 8.

Championship match will be played Saturday at the site of the highest-seeded semifinal winner at 7:30 p.m.

Thief River Falls will carry an impressive 16-4 regular season record into post-season play, including a 3-2 victory over Detroit Lakes in a Sept. 27 meeting when the Prowlers fell behind 2-0, but rallied to win 6-15, 13-15, 15-7, 15-9, 15-0.

"I feel pretty confident going into the tournament," offered Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson, "but we have to be consistent, and we don't want to look past the first match."

Detroit Lakes will bring a 6-9 regular season record into the tournament, including a schedule-ending 15-7, 15-13, 15-6 sweep over Fergus Falls.

Thief River Falls' starting line-up Thursday will include two seniors and four juniors. The six include seniors Vikki Weigand and Bobbi Thompson, plus juniors Jill Olson, Stephanie Benson, Jodi Anderson and Bekah Bortnem.

Nordics Win First Tournament Match

Marshall County Central came up with a dandy effort, according to head coach Tom Mjelde, as the Nordics swept Stephen 15-9, 15-5, 15-4 in the 1986 District 32A high school volleyball tournament quarterfinals.

"I was really pleased with the way we played," said Mjelde. "It was probably one of our best games of the season."

The hard-hitting Nordics were led by Andrea Kragness, who had eight kill spikes, Natalie Ueland, who had seven, and Jodi Foss, who had six. Nikki Leach had six ace serves for the winners, and Denae Mjelde was credited with 23 assists in her role as setter.

Marshall County Central, 17-2 for the year, will meet Tri-County in the District 32A semifinals Thursday at Stephen. Match time is 6:30 p.m. Hallock meets Argyle in the other semifinal at 8. Finals are scheduled Friday at Stephen.

"If we can play like that Thursday," said Mjelde after the win over Stephen, "we'll be in the ball game."

Grygla — Kennedy

Grygla began post-season play Monday with a 15-9, 15-6; 15-10 District 32A tournament win over Kennedy at Newfolden.

"I was happy with the way we played," reported Grygla coach Mike Gast. "We covered the floor real well."

Grygla played without the services of standout performer Michelle Jelle, sidelined by an ankle injury, but Gast said the rest of the Eagles picked up the slack. Wendy Lawrence played "real well" at the net, said Gast, leading the winners in spikes and blocks.

Grygla — Argyle

Grygla's volleyball season ended Tuesday with a 3-0 loss to Argyle in the District 32A tournament quarterfinals.

Argyle triumphed 15-11, 15-7, 15-12.

"We were in it," noted Grygla coach Mike Gast. "I wasn't too disappointed. They played hard, we just made some mistakes."

A poor night at the service line really hurt, acknowledged Gast.

Swimmers Face Lakers Friday

Only Lincoln High School fall athletes still active — the girls swim team — will close out their 1986 regular season schedule Friday with a 6 p.m. dual meet assignment at Detroit Lakes.

Thief River Falls is 7-1 in dual meet competition, losing for the first time last week, 95-77 at the hands of Fergus Falls.

The Prowlers easily defeated the Lakers 106-65 earlier this fall, but Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney says this week's rematch could be a lot closer because the smaller Detroit Lakes pool will rob the Prowlers of some of their depth — their strength.

"It should be a competitive meet in their five-lane pool," warns Forney.

The 1986 Section 8 swim meet will be held Friday and Saturday, November 7 and 8 in Grand Forks.

Pioneers Lose 3-0

Northwest Division matches against Brainerd and the University of Minnesota-Crookston will close out the 1986 Northland Community College volleyball schedule.

The Pioneers host Brainerd Saturday at 11 a.m. and will end the year at Crookston Wednesday in a 6:30 p.m. match.

Northland has been struggling lately, losing three straight 3-0 decisions, including a Tuesday night match against the Moorhead State University junior varsity.

The host Dragons won 15-9, 15-9, 15-2. The Pioneers' attack was hampered, pointed out Northland coach, by the absence of Grygla freshman Kari Klamar, who missed the match because of back problems.

Northland lost 3-0 Northwest Division matches to the University of Minnesota-Crookston and Fergus Falls last week.

UMC beat Northland 16-2, 15-9, 15-5 with an aggressive offensive attack Wednesday, and Fergus Falls capitalized on a poor Northland performance at the service line to win 15-2, 15-2, 16-14 Friday night.

Northland is 1-3 in Northwest Division play, owning a 3-2 win over Brainerd back on Oct. 8. The Pioneers stand 5-5 overall in 3-out-of-5 game matches.

Mike Lundgren Sports Editor

University of Minnesota-Crookston and Northland Community College football teams put on a great show Thursday night when the Pioneers edged the Trojans 23-20 in an exciting Northwest Division game at Prowler Field in Thief River Falls.

The weather was nice, the football was good and the game went down to the final seconds before a winner emerged. As Northland coach Rick Nelson and UMC coach Jim Sims said, the fans got their money's worth of excitement.

More of the same may be in store this Thursday when the Pioneers close out their 1986 regular season schedule with a 7:30 p.m. game against Brainerd at Prowler Field.

There won't be the Northland-Crookston rivalry incentive in this one, but that won't take anything away from the game because a post-season Minnesota Community College Conference playoff berth awaits the Pioneers if they can beat the Red Raiders. It's a great way to end the season, and if the weather cooperates, Northland officials are looking for a good-size crowd of spectators.

It'll be quite a challenge for the Pioneers, who have never been in playoff contention before. If they win, they'll drive to Ely next week to face Northeast Division winner Vermilion.

But it won't be easy. Northland has never beaten Brainerd in 10 previous meetings. The only other MCCC Northwest or Northeast Division foe the Pioneers have never been able to beat is Vermilion — a possible foe in the MCCC semifinal playoffs. Brainerd beat Northland 34-14 a year ago. Vermilion out-scored Northland 40-20 earlier this fall.

TRF Volleyball

Thief River Falls, after posting its best-ever regular season record (16-4), begins post-season high school volleyball tournament play Thursday when the Prowlers meet Detroit Lakes in the North Sub-Region 8AA semifinals at Moorhead.

Moorhead and Thief River Falls are seeded 1-2, respectively, into the tournament. If the Spuds and Prowlers win their first round matches, they'll meet in the title match Saturday at Moorhead High School.

The Spuds are the only North Sub-Region 8AA team the Prowlers haven't faced this fall. They beat Detroit Lakes 3-2 and swept Bemidji and Fergus Falls 3-0 in single encounters.

Moorhead was a runner-up finisher in the 1985 Class AA state tournament. The Spuds spent much of their season traveling to the Twin Cities area to face tougher competition, giving them a definite edge at tournament time.

"There are a couple of teams up here that will give us a good match, but a lot of teams are real weak," Moorhead coach Karen Schumacher told Tony Moton of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune recently. "If we don't go to Minneapolis, we don't have as good a chance of going to state."

Moorhead's Twin Cities trips this fall included a 3-1 record in a strong Apple Valley Invitational field and a championship performance in a big Cooper-Armstrong Invitational. They lost just three times — to Columbia Heights, Clarissa and Win-E-Mac.

Interestingly, Clarissa and Win-E-Mac are Class A teams. Clarissa was the Class A state tournament runner-up last fall and carries the No. 1 ranking this year. Win-E-Mac is a heavy favorite in Region 8A.

The first-year Win-E-Mac Pioneers showed just how strong they really are with a runner-up finish at the Moorhead Invitational Oct. 18 when they beat three Class AAA teams before losing a 2-1 championship match decision to Clarissa. Win-E-Mac beat Duluth East 15-3, 15-7, St. Cloud Tech 15-5, 15-10 and Moorhead 15-10, 15-10 before Clarissa triumphed 15-5, 10-15, 15-11 in the finals.

Moorhead, according to reports, is not a tall team, but the Spuds have good jumpers, play strong defense and play with a lot of emotion.

Thief River Falls has played some fine volleyball this year, but the Prowlers' biggest problem — inconsistency — must be overcome.

DEPARTMENT OF NATURAL Resources personnel from Detroit Lakes were in Thief River Falls Tuesday to stock walleye fingerlings into the river at the Centennial Park boat ramp. Some 10,860 fish were stocked here — 503 pounds of 5½-month old walleye fingerlings from DNR stock at Detroit Lakes. The fish, numbering 20 to a pound, were placed into the river by Arnie Ostgaarden. He was accompanied by Phil Meier, Mike Livingood and Jim Mistilke — all from Detroit Lakes. Another stocking was planned in Thief River Falls today (Wednesday) below the dam.

Two From TRF Advance To State Contest Finals

Joe White and Eric Bjorgaard will represent Thief River Falls at the state finals of the Jaycees-sponsored Run, Punt and Pass football competition Saturday, November 15, at Rosemount High School.

Thief River Falls Jaycees chapter sponsored the local Run, Punt and Pass competition September 27 when 27 boys and girls between the ages of 8-13 turned out at the Prowler football practice field.

Trophies were presented to the top three place finishes in each age category, and to the best overall in the Run, Punt and Pass events. The trophy presentations were made the following Friday at halftime of the Thief River Falls-Fergus Falls high school football game.

Winners went to Oklee for regional competition against five other communities in the Thief River Falls Jaycee region.

White won a first place medallion in the 10-year-old age division at Oklee and Bjorgaard collected a runner-up medallion at the 9-year-old level, earning state meet spots. Josh Melby placed third at the regional event for 8-year-olds. Top two place finishers advanced.

"The Thief River Falls Jaycees would like to congratulate all the winners and wish Joe White and Eric Bjorgaard the best of luck at state," said Brent Waale, Thief River Falls Jaycees project chairman. "We would also like to thank all the people who helped to make Run, Punt and Pass '86 a success, and hope to see more kids turn out next year."

Sharp-Tailed Grouse Group Meets

by Jim Mattson

Question: What coos like a mourning dove, gobbles like a turkey, shakes its tail like a rattlesmake, stamps its feet like a boy scout putting out a grass fire — all for the affection of a passing female? Answer: Your brother-in-law? Possibly. But the correct answer is a male sharp-tailed grouse.

Each spring, groups of male grouse gather every morning on traditional display grounds, known as leks, to engage in the time-honored breeding ritual of the species. Generally, one male on the lek has the status of "top gun", the only male to breed females. Meanwhile, the females must run the gauntlet of frenzied, displaying subordinate males to cunsummate a brief relationship with the dominate male. So intense is the activity on the lek that a person can sit undetected in a blind placed only a few feet from the birds to view and hear the show. The only catch is that you must be in the blind before daylight when the birds move onto the lek. The loss of a few hours sleep is well worth the effort.

At a meeting on November 6 in Thief River Falls, you can witness via video tape the breeding antics of sharptails without having to get up early. You will also learn of the plight of the species in Minnesota and of the efforts underway to reverse their spiraling decline. The purpose of the meeting is to establish a northwest chapter of the recently formed Minnesota Sharp-tailed Grouse Society (MSGS). The MSGS, only a few months old, is the brainchild of a few concerned persons in northeastern Minnesota. Membership has grown so rapidly that it was felt the organization would benefit from a chapter in the northwest, the area in the state with the lion's share of sharptails. The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in room B21 at Northland Community College. In addition to the video tape on dancing sharptails, the agenda will include presentations on the status of sharptails in Minnesota, the history and purpose of the MSGS, how the new RIM (Reinvest in Minnesota) program will benefit sharptails, and selection of officers.

At the current rate of decline in sharptail numbers, hunting in Minnesota may possibly be banned in the next few years. It has been estimated that hunters contribute about $40 to local economies for each sharptail bagged. In 1985, only 5,000 birds were bagged compared to over 50,000 as recently as 1980 and as many as 100,000 annually in the 1950's. With proper management these harvest levels can once again be a reality. But it only will happen with a concerted effort by people who hunt sharptails and-or who enjoy hearing the spring sounds of gobbles, coos and rattlesnake tails.

Habitat Matching Fund

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources reports that the RIM (Reinvest In Minnesota) private sector matching program is making good progress with approximately $750,000 already approved for inclusion in the program.

This unique program matches dollar-for-dollar, private contributions with state funds to acquire and develop critical fish and wildlife habitat.

Program coordinator Kim Hennings said that donations have come from a variety of sources including corporations, sportsmens clubs, private individuals and organizations including The Nature Conservancy.

Contributions to the critical habitat matching program may be in cash, land, easements or a pledge.

Department is currently processing 14 land donations in 12 counties totalling 2,129 acres. Once completed, these lands will be established as wildlife management areas, scientific and natural areas and one tract as part of the Dorer Memorial Hardwoods State Forest.

Four parcels, totalling 956 acres, are also being acquired for wildlife management areas with state matching funds made available by these donations. Pledges have also been received for wildlife development projects, including $35,000 from the Minnesota Waterfowl Association to help fund the Lake Christina restoration project.

Anyone interested in more information on the critical habitat matching program should contact Kim Hennings by calling (612) 297-2823, or by writing to the Department of Natural Resources, 500 Lafayette Rd., St. Paul, MN 55155-4007.

A brochure on the critical habitat matching program and a listing of proposed critical habitat projects is available upon request.

DNR Netting Season

The 1986 netting season for whitefish, tullibees and herring has been announced by the Department of Natural Resources.

Only certain lakes in the state are open to netting and the opening and closing dates for the season differ for the various lakes where it is permitted.

Some lakes open during October while others open during November and December.

Netting licenses, regulations and the schedules for the season on specific lakes are available from county auditors. Officials said notices announcing the openings will be made available to local news media and posted at the various lakes.

Only Minnesota residents may purchase a netting license. The cost is $5.50 and is required in addition to an angling license. Regulations allow only one 100-foot net with restrictions in mesh size and depth of water in which the net may be placed.

Approximately 3,000 netting licenses are sold by the Department annually.

Winter Boat Storage

Now that the boating season is over, it's time to prepare your craft for winter storage. An hour or two spent putting your boat and motor to "bed" will pay big dividends next spring.

Tim Smalley, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Boating Safety Specialist, recommends the following procedures to make the job easier:

1. Fill the fuel tanks and add a good fuel conditioner. The conditioner stabilizes the fuel up to a year and prevents gum and varnish from entering the fuel system.
2. Flush the cooling system, remove plugs and drain all water from inboard and inboard-outboard engines. This step can save you the headache and expense of a cracked engine block.
3. Check spark plugs and replace if necessary. While the plugs are out, inject rust preventative oil into the plug holes. Then crank the engine a few times to make sure the oil is spreak inside the powerhead.
4. Check the entire fuel-system for leaks. United States Coast Guard studies have shown that the use of gasoline with alcohol additives (gasohol) may have harmful effects on rubber fuel lines and metal fuel tanks, even to the point of causing dangerous leaks. Fuel tank corrosion can cause rust to clog your fuel filter and your engine may stop at a most inopportune moment. Smalley recommends replacing any deteriorated items and carefully checking fuel filters for rust.
5. Drain oil and refill crank case on I-O and inboard engines. Also replace oil filter.
6. Change gear case lubricant on lower unit of outboards and I-Os. Even a small amount of water trapped in the gear case can cause damage, especially if allowed to freeze.
7. Check props for nicks and damage. Even slight damage can mean the loss of performance. Worse yet, since damage is usually not done to each blade uniformly, the resulting inbalance vibrations can cause fatigue damage to other parts of the engine or drive. Up to a point, dealers can restore a propeller to like new condition for a fraction of the cost of a new one.
8. Store outboards in an upright position.
9. Boats should be cleaned inside and out and covered, even when stored indoors. Remember to allow for air circulation under the cover to prevent mildew from getting a start.
10. Drain any water accumulated in the bilges and leave the transom drain plug out. To avoid embarrassment at the boat ramp, leave a note in an obvious spot to remind yourself to replace the drain plug in the spring!
11. Trailer tires should be examined and grease all wheel bearings, replace them if necessary.
12. Put the trailer up on blocks. That will make your tires last longer and your boat a less likely target for theft.

Taking a little time in the fall to get that motor ready for winter will mean you'll be one of the first boaters back on the water when warm weather returns.

Dam Safety Program

Officials at the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Division of Waters, note that recent heavy rainfalls in the midwest have caused problems at dams in Wisconsin and Michigan. Dam safety administrator in those states have had to contend with emergency situations and evacuations.

Renewed interest in dam safety surfaced in the 1970s when several significant dam failures occurred.

A dam safety program was established in Minnesota in 1977 with authority from the legislature and is administered by the DNR Division of Waters. Rules governing the design, construction, maintenance, operation and inspection of dams were put into effect in 1980.

Dam inspection is conducted by the DNR, U.S. Corps of Engineers, Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, Soil Conservation Service and by dam owners.

Minnesota has about 900 dams and most of them were built in the period of 1900-1940, they must be inspected and maintained to prolong their useful life.

Legislature has appropriated about $7,500,000 since 1979 to identify and correct deficiencies of publicly-owned dams in Minnesota. This money is adminstered by the Division of Waters under a grant and loan program and has been used to repair dams owned by counties, cities, watershed districts and the state.

Much has been done to improve dam safety, however, the goal of safe dams is progressive and continuous.

Many new dams are being built each year while existing structure deteriorate with age requiring repair and/or reconstruction.

Control, storage and release of waters by dams is paramount to water resource development and protection, officials point out. Water, or the lack of it is central to all and affect everyone's daily existence in many ways. People's lives are impacted by programs of flood control, floodplain management, hydropower, irrigation, municipal and industrial uses, water supply, fish and wildlife conservation and a multitude of recreational pursuits.

Life in the big city is tough, especially for trees. But soon, healthier strains of trees may be developed that can survive and beautify the city. International Wildlife magazine reports that the Illinois Tollway Authority is supporting a program at the Morton Arboretum in suburban Chicago, that would breed trees and shrubs that could tolerate inhospitable soil, salt sprays, and other pollutants from expressways. Most promising thus far are several salt resistant Asian elms.

Pork Checkoff Goes Into Effect On November 1

New national legislative checkoff for pork producers goes into effect November 1 when all U.S. pork producers will be required to check off all classes of swine at a rate of .25 of one per cent of gross value. For the first time, importers of hogs and pork products will also participate in the checkoff.

The nation's pork producers have had a checkoff program in operation for many years, but in most states it has been voluntary. Under the largely voluntary program, about 40 per cent of the nation's prok producers were not checking off but were benefiting from the various checkoff support programs. Under the new program, all U.S. pork producers, as well as importers, are required to invest their fair share in industry programs and projects through the checkoff.

The new checkoff is expected to generate approximately $18 million annually, compared to the $10 million that has been collected under the largely voluntary program.

Under the new checkoff, hogs are assessed only once in each class (feeder pig, market hog or seedstock). Generally, markets (including packers and dealers) are responsible for collecting the checkoff, except in the cases of seedstock and farm-to-farm sales. In the case of Seedstock, the seller or breeder is required to remit the checkoff. The new law requires the buyer to remit funds in farm-to-farm sales.

The new national pork board, whose 15 members were officially appointed earlier this month, will have the responsibility of collecting the checkoff and deciding how the funds will be dispersed. It is expected that the board will contract out specific projects and programs to existing industry organizations, including the National Pork Producers council. The board is expected to hold its first meeting in early November.

The new checkoff was designed to generate additional funds for promotion, research and consumer information and that is where the bulk of the new funds are expected to go in order to provide the greatest return for producers by strengthening the position of pork in the marketplace.

A referendum of all pork producers will be held 24-30 months after the new checkoff goes into effect. Until that referendum, pork producers will be entitled to a refund upon request to the National pork board. Refund forms are available from the National Pork Board (P.O. Box 9114, Des Moines, IA 50306) and from state park producer association offices. Requests for refunds will be honored until 30 days after the month of sale. If the referendum is approved, no refund will be offered from that point on.

The National Prok board has the primary responsibility of enforcing the new checkoff. Failure to comply with the collection requirements could result in fines of up to $1,000 for each unreported sale, and the payment of 1.5 per cent interest per month on late payments.

Additional information about the checkoff is available by calling 515-223-2620, or writing the National Pork Board at P.O. Box 9114, Des Moines, IA 50306.

Conditions Call For Livestock Market Strategy

Current conditions in agriculture call for livestock producers to pay close attention to marketing strategy to avoid falling prices in the near future. That's the assessment of the state livestock advisory board, the group which oversees the operation of the joint Minnesota Farmers Union (MFU) and National Farmers Organization (NFO) livestock marketing system in Minnesota.

The board is concerned with the possible effects of low grain prices and USDA Whole Herd Dairy Buyout program on livestock markets. Many farmers have liquidated their dairy herds under the buyout program and are now prohibited from using their facilities for dairying. This factor, combined with low grain prices, could trigger a large increase in farmers using their facilities to feed cattle and hogs.

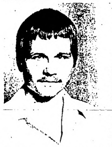
In a statement issued recently, the board said: "This increase in livestock feeding operations could result in an untimely flood on the market putting downward pressure on cattle and hog prices. Orderly marketing is a must if Minnesota livestock producers are to continue receiving a fair price for their product."

The board urged livestock producers to look seriously at forward contracting, a strategy the MFU-NFO marketing system has used with much success in the last year.

"By forward contracting the producer can lock in a price which will guarantee a profit and will stabilize prices for the near future in the market as a whole," the board said. "This strategy is the key to orderly marketing and will help producers avoid falling prices caused by periodic over supply in livestock markets."

Producers can forward contract through any of the 35 MFU-NFO collection points in Minnesota. For more information producers can call NFO's Fred Tate in St. Cloud, 1-800-862-8627, or MFU's Dennis Sjodin in St. Paul, 612-771-3380.

CURT THOMPSON (left) of Thief River Falls has been honored by SeedTec International, Inc., for outstanding sales achievement in the 1985-86 sales year. He was the recipient of the President's Award at the first president's award banquet in Moorhead. The award was presented by C.W. Christensen, president of the company.



BRIAN JOHNSON of Goodridge was the recipient of the Northwest Agri-Dealers association scholarship at the annual scholarship recognition banquet held recently at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC). The scholarship is awarded to an agriculture major returning to UMC. Son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Johnson, he is majoring in agricultural aviation at the two-year institution.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls Water Utility announces that the state maximum allowable limit for turbidity was exceeded for the month of October 1986.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand, or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity level has not created any health hazards because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

Please be assured that the water is safe to drink. The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with state health department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lamm, water department supervisor, at 681-3809.

TRF Cautious About Retail Sales Ranking

State auditor Arne Carlson recently announced that Thief River Falls was ranked 18th in the state in retail sales per capita. Constance Waterous, director of financial analysis, explained there could be a variety of reasons for the ranking.

"The community could use a real shot in the arm," said Joan Lubitz, chairman of the Retail business association. "But we want to be absolutely sure the figures are correct before raising everybody's hopes." According to the department of revenue there is a possibility that one manufacturer has been coded wrong.

All sales are reported to the department of revenue. These sales are separated from taxable and non-taxable sales and then divided by the number of people in the community to reach the retail sales per capita figure. The figures are also for cities with populations greater than 2,500. The population figure used for Thief River Falls was 8,152.

From the rankings Carlson drew a number of possible conclusions. What seemed to affect the rankings most were tourism and promotion of retail centers.

Waterous added that another explanation could be in the location of retail centers. Larger retail centers malls and larger communities in rural areas also explain the per capita figures.

But, "another picture emerges when we look at total volume of retail sales," Carlson said. "Here, as expected, the leaders are the largest cities in the state — Minneapolis, St. Paul, Bloomington, Duluth and Rochester." In gross retail sales Thief River Falls ranked 49th this year, which is a slight improvement over previous years. Thief River Falls ranked 50th in 1984, 51 in 1983 and 52 in 1982. The total volume of retail sales in 1985 was $106,699,373.

In retail sales per capita a slight improvement over previous years was also seen. In 1982 Thief River Falls was ranked 32 with retail sales per capita of $9,068.55, 1983, 27 with $10,404.39, 1984, 21 with $12,072.66, and 1985, 18 with $13,080.74. Again the figures apply to cities with a population greater than 2,500.

Retail sales since 1982 have seen a 39.85 per cent increase. At first glance the figures are encouraging, but the chamber of commerce in Thief River Falls and the Retail business association are holding off on their comments until they receive confirmation of the figures from the department of revenue.

STATE OFFICIALS. Minnesota Pollution control agency representatives and representatives of the Minnesota waste management board met with the Pennington county solid waste committee, Future Fuel Inc of Thief River Falls and Don Grabanski, Pennington county commissioner, last week in Thief River Falls. The meeting involved an application by Future Fuel for a $400,000 grant for the study and testing of compost generated by its pelletizing process. The state officials pictured are: (from left, back row) Dan Krivit, waste management board; Ted Troolin, waste management board; Jack Frederick, PCA; and Don Kyser, PCA.

Future Fuel Seeks MN Grant

Representatives of the Pollution control agency and the Minnesota Waste management board met with the Pennington county solid waste committee, Future Fuel Inc. and Pennington county commissioner Don Grabanski in Thief River Falls last week. Future Fuel is pursuing a grant of $400,000 for testing and development of compost.

Future Fuel Inc. produces pellets from solid waste as an alternate fuel. While pelletizing is its main interest there are a number of separate business areas it must operate because of the nature of pelletizing. Pelletizing requires separation of the garbage it receives, thus aluminum cans is one business, scrap iron and plastic is another. Some solid waste is not suitable for pelletizing and much of that wet fraction becomes compost. Future Fuel believes in a landfill free America. It has found markets or possible uses for about 97 per cent of its solid waste.

The two state agencies were primarily concerned with Future Fuel satisfying a number of questions and concerns about the procedure used in the manufacture, distribution and storage of the compost. Each asked that a document be drafted to satisfy those concerns.

Based on its own research with the University of Minnesota and a report from the Institute of Food and Agricultural sciences of the Florida cooperative extension service at the University of Florida, which indicates compost is not a valid premise, Future Fuel first plans to give away the compost. Don Grabanski, said there are a number of people in the area that have said they are willing to test some of the compost.

According to Grabanski several tests have been done on the compost and so far only one test has come back not positive. It stated that the sample had exceeded the recommended amount of lead. All other chemicals that might be considered harmful were well below PCA standards. Compost is a viable use for farmland but it doesn't have much of a market yet, Grabanski said. However, extensive studies on the marketing of compost are underway nationally.

Grabanski hopes some of the compost can be used on farmland this fall. He said he prefers that it be used in the fall. Compost cannot be used after a crop is in because it uses some nitrogen out of the soil to decompose.

Agricultural land is its preferred use but it can also be used as backfill on county projects and as a cover for land fills.

Minnesota Jobless Rate Increases

Minnesota's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate in September was 5.2 per cent, up slightly from the August rate of 5.0 per cent, but still well below the September 1985 rate of 6.0 per cent, according to Commissioner Joe Samargia of the Minnesota department of jobs and training.

"We're not concerned," Samargia said. "This is only the second time in the past eight months when there has been a rate increase, and department analysts do not attach special significance to the change."

The comparable national unemployment rate for September was 7.0 per cent.

Employment, on a seasonally adjusted basis, showed a gain of 4.0 per cent over the month, primarily on the strength of the nonmanufacturing sector. Within this sector, the transportation, communications and public utilities group was the only one which did not register an increase from a month earlier.

Department analyst Wayne Graner reported that manufacturing, which has been losing jobs for more than two years, showed a gain of 1,900 jobs from August. Graner added that most of this gain was not the result of newly created jobs but the return to work of 1,400 FMC corporation employees had been on strike.

Compared to a year ago, total employment has grown by 0.9 per cent. Sizable gains made in nonmanufacturing industries were only partially offset by a decline of 2,300 jobs in the manufacturing sector, Graner said.

Individual area jobless rates varied from an actual low of 3.1 per cent in Olmsted county to a high of 22.5 per cent in Lake county for August, the most recent month for which county data is available.

Unemployment rates in this article pertain to the entire labor force and are not used to determine whether unemployment insurance benefit payments will be extended beyond the usual 26-week maximum. The unemployment rate among poersons covered by unemployment insurance is used to determine whether the benefit payments will be extended.

COMING AND GOING. J.C. Penney manager Carl Berner (left) has been transferred to an Austin J.C. Penney store as its store manager. The new manager at the J.C. Penney store in Thief River Falls is Tom Morris (right), formerly of Grand Forks, ND.

New Greetings And Goodies

by Sharon LaCoursiere
Times Reporter

Welcome Wagon recently held a three-day Campus Welcome campaign at Northland community college. Hostess Bonnie Jensen distributed over 1,100 packets filled with get-acquainted offers from local businesses to extend a friendly "hello" to new students and "welcome back" to those returning from last year.

Welcome Wagon is a national program of welcome and congratulations in which representatives call on people in the community with civic and cultural information, useful household gifts, and a variety of coupons from area businesses and services. Gifts are presented on behalf of civic-minded sponsors in the community, each personally explained by the Welcome Wagon hostess. Gifts may be as varied as the businesses and services represented; each organization chosing their gift with regard for the new community member.

"Welcome Wagon" was begun in frontier days when communities would welcome passing wagon trains with a Conestoga wagon of their own filled with gifts, hoping to entice some settlers to remain in their community. The company of today was founded in Memphis, TN, in 1928, and has become an American tradition, active in 4,500 communities throughout the continental united states and representing more than 100,000 business and professional sponsors. Thousands of Welcome Wagon representatives call on over one million households annually.

Today's Welcome Wagon hostesses carry on tradition by bringing welcoming baskets to new residents in the community, new parents, engaged couples, newlyweds, those who had a major change of residence within the city, and people celebrating a special occasion, as well as to students in the new campus welcome program.

Bonnie Jensen has been the Welcome Wagon representative in the Thief River Falls area for just a short time. The program began again in the area just over a year ago, after a lapse of 14 years. Bonnie's visits are usually made in the resident's home, by a pre-planned appointment. She arrives carrying her festively decorated basket of goodies, taking time to explain each item in the basket to recipients. As she says, a Welcome Wagon visit is like a house-warming.

As well as distributing literature and gifts, Bonnie is sometimes called upon to answer questions about the community: information about schools, churches, babysitters, etc. She said she enjoys answering questions, and if she doesn't know the answer, she'll find out one way or another. Her job of extending a hand of friendship gives her a great deal of personal satisfaction, which is evident in her enthusiasm as she speaks of her pleasure in meeting and greeting new people.

To request a Welcome Wagon visit, call Bonnie Jensen at 796-5563. She'll arrive at your door in no time with her basket of special treats and a big smile of welcome.

WELCOME WAGON area hostess, Bonnie Jensen, recently spent several days at Northland community college distributing campus welcome packets to over 1100 students. Welcome Wagon will be an active part of the community again after a lapse of 14 years, bringing greetings and gifts to newcomers, new parents, recently married couples, community members who have had a major change of address in town, and those celebrating special occasions, as well as scholars at the community college.

Revelation

She was accused of being "aloof," a bit too high-hat. But, there sometimes comes a time when one must walk, head-high, to keep from limping.

A wayward son, a defiant daughter, an unfaithful wife or husband, financial problems, a series of illnesses in the family, one's own health fears.

These are things we often feel we must carry alone, no one must guess what we are suffering. We are too proud to share.

We walk proudly and keep the hurts inside.

There is a story of a friend who said to another friend, "If you have a party and don't invite me, it never will bother me, but if you have a burden and don't feel I want to share it, that will hurt."

Becoming a part of a Church family will help us find people who care and who will want to share.

You have a right to walk proudly, but you don't have to walk alone. Not ever.

October 31 marks the end of the first quarter at Lincoln. Students at Lincoln are required to take certain classes according to their grade. For example, each student at Lincoln is required to take English for four years. Students are also required to take two years of science, mathematics, social studies and one year of American History. To fulfill graduation requirements, a student must have 22 credits, with one-fourth credit being in the vocational area. Students are graded on a four point grading system.

Other tidbits around Lincoln. The demolition of old Lincoln is now complete and all that remains is to finish bricking up the doors. Sue Lindemoen, the secretary in the principal's office, is on her maternity leave and Mrs. Lindberg will be filling in for her. Practice for the fall play "Don't Tell Mother" is under way every night in the auditorium. Brett Carter, an announcer for KTRF, is directing the play this year.

There will be a senior high advisory meeting this Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the cafeteria at Linocln. It is open to any adult who has a son or daughter attending Lincoln. This is an excellent chance for parents to get together and discuss the activities that go on at Lincoln. The advisory group also met last year. Some of the things they were responsible for last year include changing graduation dates, the after graduation party and having an evening for parents of freshmen to meet with guidance counselors.

New Secretary — Mrs. Vicki Lindberg. Mrs. Lindberg is filling in for Sue while she is on maternity leave. She has been doing substitute secretarial work for about a year. She is married to Calvin Lindberg, a social teacher at Lincoln. They have two children: Eric, a seventh grader, and Traci, a fifth grader. Mrs. Lindberg originally comes from Minneapolis and enjoys such hobbies as cross-stitching, sewing, reading and taking walks with her dog Henri.

Activities Schedule

October 30 — Volleyball sub region vs. Detroit Lakes (at Moorhead); Senior High Advisory committee meeting;

October 31 — Halloween dance; swim meet at Detroit Lakes.

Christmas Seals Sent To 800,000 Minnesota Homes

More than 800,000 homes across Minnesota have received or are now receiving their 1986 Christmas Seals in the mail, said Barry ZeVan, Minnesota Christmas Seal chairman.

"The Christmas Seal campaign represents the spirit of giving and of helping others, as well as the American Lung association of Minnesota's dedication to eliminating such diseases as lung cancer, emphysema, asthma, chronic bronchitis and tubercluosis," ZeVan said.

Lung disease is an ever-growing problem in America. It is the only major disease category in which death rates continue to rise, and is the third most common cause of death in the country. Twenty-nine per cent of our popoulation suffers from chronic respiratory illness ranging from the mild to the severe — and sometimes the fatal. Lung diseases, including lung cancer, kill over 246,000 Americans each year.

"The American Lung association is the oldest voluntary public health organization in America," ZeVan said, "and Christmas Seals give Americans of all backgrounds a chance to reach out and help. It is the thousands of people in Minnesota whose contributions make our all-important fight against lung disease possible right here, where we live and breathe."

ZeVan concluded by saying that those who do not receive Christmas Seals in the mail may call the American Lung association of Minnesota at 1-800-642-5864 (toll-free within Minnesota).

"Sudden Death" To Be Shown Nov. 2 At Holt Church

"Sudden Death," the real life story of a high school athlete who collapsed on the basketball floor, will be shown 8 p.m. November 2 at Emmanuel Lutheran church in Holt.

Produced by Ken Anderson films of Winona Lake, IN, "Sudden Death" tells the story of one of Michigan's finest high school athletes. He excelled in many sports but especially baseball. Invited to Detroit Tiger tryouts, he was rated one of the best first base prospects scouts had ever seen.

But the the young man's highest quest for excellence was in the Christian life. Even sports took second priority to spiritual determinations.

Then came that fateful night when, in the pink of health, he suddenly died. A two hour autopsy could show no cause. But the hundreds of young people who have been challenged by the afterglow of his life may give some indication of the higher reasons.

Veterans Service Office Closed November 5-6

Pennington county veterans service office will be closed Wednesday and Thursday, November 5 and 6, while veterans service officer John Ellison attends a fall training conference at the Regency Inn at Moorhead.

The conference covers a 13-county area of northwestern Minnesota and will include presentations from the department of veterans affairs and VA regional office and medical center staff.

HONESTY and INTEGRITY

QUALITIES DAVE OLIN POSSESSES

In the October 22, 1986 Times his opponent quotes from an ad our committee published on October 13th. He neglects to point out that the word "serious" crimes was added and underlined in an October 15th ad and a Shopper ad and was also in Dave's personal resume in the Times on October 20.

Our copy says "serious". Somewhere the word was inadvertently left out. The ad was run two additional times and "serious" was underlined to point out the error.

To his recollection, Dave's office has lost only three trials of serious crimes — one an aggravated assault, one a criminal sexual conduct case, and one a drug sale case when the witness perjured himself.

Plea negotiation is a necessary evil to save the taxpayer money and to do justice and was used by Dave's opponent when he was Assistant County Attorney for one year and two months before Dave became county attorney. A plea negotiation is not a loss.

Dave Olin's record speaks for itself. He has no reason to exaggerate.

Halloween Safety

The Consumer Products Safety Commission advises home parties instead of trick-or-treating. Other tips for safety include: Keep the jack-o'-lanterns away from curtains or other flammable material. Use only "flame resistant" costumes and masks. Keep candle lit jack-o'-lanterns away from steps and landings where costumes could brush against the flame.

AAA Respondents To Poll Favor Hike In Speed Limits

Over 60 per cent of the AAA members in Minnesota responding to a poll recently prefer a higher speed limit than what is currently allowed. When given a choice of four speed limits — 55, 60, 65 or 70 mph — 39 per cent of the motorists responding to a legislative survey in the AAA member magazine "Home & Away" favored the current 55 mph speed limit; 27 per cent chose 60 mph, 26 per cent opted for 65 mph while only eight per cent favored the 70 mph limit.

Asked on what type of roads motorists would prefer seeing higher speed limits allowed if the government chose to designate only certain roads for higher limits, AAA members opted for interstates, freeways and four-lane metro beltlines only, versus rural highways.

The survey, designed to aid American Automobile association (AAA) officials in determining policies for legislative activities on state and national levels, is offered to the nearly 285,000 AAA households in Minnesota through the member magazine every two to three years. Less than one per cent of the members (2,500 or .88 per cent) responded.

"The response to this year's lengthy, 30-question survey was the best ever here in Minnesota," said Rod Shilkrot, director of community services.

Shilkrot stressed that while nearly 50 per cent of the respondents were age 50 and older, results by age category did not vary to the degree predicted.

"Responses to most issues were fairly consistent across the board," he said, "with some notable exceptions, one being the 55 mph issue."

Almost 45 per cent of the respondents in the age 50 and older group favored 55 when given a choice of four limits. Only 24 per cent in the age 39 and under group, however, chose 55, with 34 per cent of the younger group opting for the 60 mph limit.

"Currently, our state and national organizations both endorse the 55 limit," Shilkrot said. "However, it's this kind of growing sentiment toward change that leads AAA to look at the options and potential impact on highway injuries and fatalities, as well as the economic and social issues affected by such a change. Everything from accident trends, compliance expectations, enforcement effectiveness and fuel consumption levels must be re-examined before policies and laws are changed."

Other topics affecting the motorist raised in the survey included seatbelts, drinking and driving, highway conditions in the state, highway funding, trucks on our highways, licensing and the recent "Project Lifesaver" safety campaign.

Measuring seat belt usage, for example, produced some surprising results. Nearly half the respondents favored adding a penalty fine to Minnesota's fledgling mandatory seat belt law, with 26 per cent admitting a switch to the habit of buckling-up while driving a car or riding as a passenger, as a result of the new law. A whopping 81 per cent of the AAA members polled indicated they do not use seat belts while driving, far above the unofficial state average derived from occasional monitoring. Breaking that down by age groups, the older target group led the younger set in seat belt usage by an 84 to 72 per cent margin.

Highlights of other survey results include the following:

- 81 per cent favor Minnesota's new age 21 drinking law; with "mandatory suspension of driver's license" edging a "mandatory jail sentence" as the most effective deterrent for DWI;
- 58 per cent rate Minnesota's highways in excellent or good condition; with "maintaining smooth roadway surfaces" and "elimination of commuter bottlenecks" listed as the top highway improvement priorities for the state;
- 51 per cent said "no" to the concept of the state being responsible for road construction and improvements to serve new major commercial or industrial developments, with another 22 per cent undecided on this timely issue;
- 50 per cent would vote against an increase in the gas tax to raise revenues for highway construction or maintenance, with 14 per cent undecided;
- 72 per cent agree that long trucks should not be allowed to move on heavily-traveled commuter routes during rush hours in metro areas;
- 58 per cent favor the issuing of a "rules of the road" test to be required, along with vision tests when driver's licenses are renewed;
- 83 per cent claimed awareness of last spring and summer's "Project Lifesaver" program; with 36 per cent indicating that he or she or someone close to the individual started using seat belts as a result of the safety campaign.

Poison Center Issues Tips For Halloween Night

Experts at the Minnesota regional poison center, located at St. Paul-Ramsey medical center and Ramsey clinic, offer the following safety tips to help ensure a safe Halloween evening for trick or treaters:

(1) Talk to children about the importance of not eating their candy until you have had the chance to check it.

(2) Parents should inspect all of the "goodies." Do not allow children to eat anything that is in unfamiliar packaging, is an unfamiliar product, is unwrapped or looks homemade.

(3) Feed children before they go out trick or treating. They will be less likely to snack before you have a chance to inspect their candy.

(4) Limit the trick or treating area to your own neighborhood.

(5) Give the children smaller trick or treat bags. A small bag filled with candy decreases the urge for children to go beyond their own neighborhood to collect more treats.

(6) An adult should accompany all trick or treaters.

(7) Trim costumes and trick or treat bags with reflective tape. Wear light colored clothing and check for flame-retardent labeling.

(8) All costumes, wigs and beards should fit securely. Make sure they allow for full vision and will not slip over the wearer's eyes. Garments should not drag on the ground because children may stumble.

(9) If your child carries accessories, such as toy guns, make sure they are constructed of harmless material.

(10) Candlelit Jack-O-Lanterns should be kept off landings and doorsteps to avoid contact with children's costumes.

(11) Stress the importance of crossing streets carefully.

An adult suspecting a poisoning problem or with a poison emergency on Halloween should call the poison center immediately. The toll-free state WATTS number is 1-800-222-1222.

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

More Predictions

Wouldn't you know it, when making our annual election predictions in Monday's Times, we overlooked one of the more interesting local campaigns — the School District 564 election. We missed it because we used the sample ballots published in Monday's issue as a guide, and there was no sample ballot printed for the school district election.

Our intent was not to avoid making predictions in that contest because matching wits with voters on the local level is part of the fun. As noted in Monday's editorial predictions, our choices do not necessarily mean we support the candidates we expect to win nor are they to be considered endorsement of those candidates.

The school board election this year is interesting for several reasons, one being that there is an open position for which no incumbent is seeking reelection. The loss of Myrle Carlson as a board member due to cancer has resulted in the vacant position on the board. A second interesting aspect is that there are three positions to be filled on the board, which means that the third high vote-getter will be elected — a chance to finish third and still win.

Voters will vote for three candidates on the school board ballot which will make for a lot of votes to be counted. It will also give candidates who are second and third choices a lot of opportunity to pick up important votes toward an election victory.

Seven candidates for three positions provide another interesting aspect to the election, as well as the diversity of the candidates from the standpoint of background and interests. Candidates include incumbents Paul Bortnem and Greg Pribula as well as Jay Borchert, Jack Boyer, Dennis Kiesow, Ron Martin and Frank Womack. We feel that all have a sincere interest in education in this district although they may view problems and needs from different perspectives.

As in most elections where there are no apparently glaring problems with existing office holders, we would expect the electorate to continue to ride with the incumbents. Our predictions, therefore, are that Paul Bortnem and Greg Pribula will be reelected. If that prediction holds true, it will be a five-way race for the third open position.

We will give the edge in that five-way race to Ron Martin, a young man with a growing family who has had an extremely active role in the community. Also well up in the balloting will be Jay Borchert, also an active community resident who has established many contacts through his lay ministry work. Dennis Kiesow, an investigator for the police department, will finish next in the voting, we predict, followed by retired educators Frank Womack and Jack Boyer.

That's the way we see the School District 564 election. Why not write down your own selections and compare them with those above? Maybe you can prove to be a local political expert.

Consider This

Harry Sjulson of St. Hilaire, a member of the Thief River Falls board of education, is serving this year as president of the Minnesota School Boards association. Under his column heading of "Consider This . . .", he wrote the following in the October issue of the MSBA Journal:

In some circles, school administrators and boards appear to have become the "Whipping Boy" for all public education. This attitude seems evident in the Carnegie Report and also in an article by Albert Shanker of the National Federation of Teachers.

It is incomprehensible to me that the Carnegie Forum was set up to make recommendations for improving public education without having representatives from the traditional management team, superintendents, principals and school board, on its panel. This lack is further emphasized by the ambivalence of the Carnegie Report regarding the need for superintendents and principals. There is an inference that lead teachers would be needed for making decisions. The difference is that in our present system, the "Lead Teachers" are the professionals that we call superintendents and principals.

Part of the issue is "Do we need school boards?" What this is really addressing is the need for representative governance. The basic premise in democracy is that the people affected by laws and rules should have a voice in establishing those same rules by the right to freely elect officials to represent them. Furthermore, all societies require laws to govern the conduct of their citizens and rules and regulations to establish certain norms that are considered appropriate for orderly living.

Our public schools are set up with basic rules of human nature in mind, that the public (parents and citizens in general) should have the power through their elected representatives (board members) to establish policy and see that the professionals they hire will run the schools properly. Let us also consider the "Human Nature" element in representative governance. It is to be expected that parents could be affected by many motivational forces but there are two primary ones. Those are the wish for the best quality education for their children and the need to temper this with the cost, in one form or another, of the tax to pay for that education. Input in both of these areas would be diminished if school administrations were to be in the hands of "bureaucracies" not accountable to the electrorate.

Albert Shanker gave what he termed a simple solution to problems in education. He suggested having only one school board meeting a year to evaluate progress, set goals, and hire the superintendent. I believe that this would virtually eliminate lay input into decision making. I wonder if he actually thinks that the public, through their representatives, should be allowed the right to air grievances, correct situations, and give input on a timely basis throughout the year. What Shanker really seems to want is the appearance of democracy by keeping school boards but the effective removal of the practical purpose for their existence by having only an annual meeting.

It seems to me that the problems of public education are here in spite of our present administrative organization rather than because of it. Some of the trends in our society, such as increased family instability, more TV viewing, and heavier drug and alcohol usage, can account for a big share of the educational ills. While it is possible that some modifications in the system may improve the ability of the system to cope with these, I do not believe that the changes recommended by Mr. Shanker would accomplish this. It certainly leads me to the conclusion that the present administrative team concept consisting of superintendent, principals, and school boards with its "checks and balances," is by far the most effective way to cope with education in our complex society.

Could Tax Law Hurt Local Charities?

Following comments are from John Harris, legal counsel for the Minneapolis Foundation:

"We are contacting potential community donors to advise them to make any planned large charitable gifts before midnight December 31, 1986. The tax reform act of 1986 will be particularly devastating to gifts of appreciated property — stocks, bonds, real estate, etc. The implications for our major institutions such as hospitals, universities, museums and others are tremendous. Gifts of appreciated property are at the heart of virtually all capital and endowment campaigns.

Harris echoes the concerns of charitable interests nationwide. The new laws are expected to cut into charitable giving. For example, after New Year's Eve of 1986, the incentive to make gifts of appreciated stocks, bonds and real estate will be greatly reduced for many donors. In theory, the tax reform legislation is saying that the donor is realizing a major advantage by giving away appreciated property. The wealthy donor, so the argument goes, should not completely escape taxation of capital gains through making major gifts.

"We are urging donors to set up funds with our community foundation in 1986," said Marion Etzwiler, President of The Minneapolis Foundation. "While such gifts will always be beneficial to the community and the donor, a gift this year could be a real advantage. Should the next tax laws discourage generosity, all of us in the community will feel the impact."

In a recent study Harvard economists have predicted that philanthropic gifts will be reduced by billions of dollars nationwide. At a time when the private sector has been picking up the slack left by government cutbacks, local charitable interests are already calling for reconsideration of the new tax laws.

N.A.H.

— Bits and pieces from the October 29, 1936, Times, rewritten by Sharon LaCoursiere.

— Enough of 1946 — let's flip back another 10 years to October 29, 1936. As you can see, Mr. Holen was still holding forth back then with his tongue-in-cheek comments.

— The Times was filled with news of the fire at Oen's Store the evening of October 23. The store was razed, and a dozen other businesses were damaged in the fire, with an estimated total loss of $150,000.

Rasmus Oen said he would begin rebuilding at once, since most of the loss was covered by insurance. The city council promptly issued him a permit to erect a new department store building.

Responsibility for preventing a citywide "conflagration" was attributed to the city's new pumper truck, which pumped double streams of water on the roofs of surrounding buildings to contain the fire. Fire chief Leonard Hanson, who sustained shoulder burns in the course of the evening, was quick to praise the assistance rendered by volunteers.

City lights and telephone service were interrupted during the fire, necessitating much replacement of wiring in order to resume service.

— Fire sales were being held at B & B Style Shoppe, The Elizabeth Shop, and Lein's. Oen's Store placed a large advertisement asking customers to bear with them during their rebuilding and to please pay their debts to the store promptly, as cash would be needed to meet the cost of rebuilding and restocking.

Lieberman's, the second most heavily damaged store, also placed an advertisement saying, "It's Coming, It's On the Way. Watch for the Dates."

— The big presidential election would be November 3. President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alf M. Landon, his opponent, were winding down their campaigns in the eastern part of the country. Final returns in the Literary Digest presidential poll showed 54.43 per cent of those responding as favoring the election of Landon, while 40.94 per cent favored Roosevelt. On this basis, the Digest gave Landon 370 electoral votes to 161 for Roosevelt.

In the state campaign, Farmer-Labor candidate Elmer A. Benson had accused his Republican opponent, Martin A. Nelson, of favoring a state sales tax, despite Mr. Nelson's definite assertion that he would veto such a proposal. Republicans in the state were charging their opponents with accepting Communist support and with extravagance in their administration of state affairs.

— Northern Chevrolet Company would be having a "Big, Free Election Party" at 8 p.m. November 3. "Bring the family for a gala evening." There would be free gifts to the first 300 men and women attending, with a special feature of "All New Talking Movies."

It was decided that we would have a July 4 celebration in 1987. It was suggested that we have a list of committees for the July 4 celebration by the next meeting. Also that we ask Bonnie Wichterman of the Saddle Club and other people involved to attend the next meeting. Plans are being made for two class reunions.

Nominating committee: Donald Hesse, Howard Greenwald and Clayton Larson presented the list of officers for 1987: president, Art Fossum; vice president, Edward Eskeli; Secretary-treasurer, Gloria Fossum; alt. secretary-treasurer, Loretta Hesse; membership chairman, Art Froiland. Meeting was adjourned.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

As a rule, political campaigns do not offer much comic relief, but the race for the seat of retiring Maryland Senator Charles Mathias is an exception.

The merriment began when a Baltimore TV station subjected all candidates to a pop quiz of five questions on current affairs.

One question — Maryland's rank among the states in terms of federal aid received — was silly. But the other four were the kind you would expect politicians to know, such as the incident that prompted the bombing raid on Libya, and the names of the Prime Minister of Israel and the leader of the African National Congress.

But only one of the candidates, Republican Linda Chavez, got all four answers right. The frontrunner, Congresswoman Barbara Mikulski, was credited with only one-and-a half correct answers, as was her main rival for the Democratic nomination, Congressman Michael Barnes.

Barnes in particular has reason to be embarrassed. As a member of the House Foreign Affairs committee, and an outspoken critic of Reagan administration foreign policy, he should have been able to name the leaders of Israel and the African National Congress.

I don't know if this mini-debacle will affect the outcome of the campaign. But it does underscore what has become a major government problem. Our elected representatives lead hectic lives, constantly running from one hearing to another, always besieged by constituents and news reporters, and ever on the stump seeking re-election.

All of which leaves precious little time for reading, reflecting and thinking about complex issues they must deal with on a daily basis. This is a scary phenomenon and at least partially explains why so many acts of Congress seem so ill-suited to the real world.

About the only defense available to alleged violators is to prove that a discharge could not cause a significant risk of cancer or observable reproductive health effects over a lifetime of exposure. But there is simply no way to prove that exposure would never cause an adverse health effect under any circumstances. Neither lawyers nor scientists can prove a negative; the defense does not exist.

And did I mention that any potential discharge must be reported immediately to local pliticians and the news media reagardless of whether it has been confirmed? If that is not a surefire prescription for unjustified public panic, I don't know what is.

Perhaps worst of all, Proposition 65 will undermine extensive environmental cleanup operations already under way in California. Instead of enforcing the federal and state drinking water laws already on the books, Proposition 65 would shift focus away from a responsible, science-based environmental program to one based upon vigilantism and endless lawsuits. It would create chaos and bring environmental progress to a standstill.

Proposition 65 does exempt government agencies from its provisions, and for good reason — they would be shut down. And if Proposition 65 is approved November 4, private business will be shut down. Indeed, I suspect that is the real goal of Mr. Hayden and his Campaign for Economic Democracy.

"People are most inclined to lie," the German statesman Otto von Bismarck said, "after a hunt, during a war and before an election."

We are before an election, and the airwaves are filled with congressional candidates vowing to cut spending and hold the line on taxes. The trouble is — when many of these people get back to Washington, it is always business as usual. That is why we have $200 billion deficits year after year, voted by many of those same candidates who vowed to cut spending and hold the line on taxes.

Some citizens are turned off by this betrayal, accusing our politicians of dishonesty. But in the final analysis, we voters are responsible for what goes on in Washington. If we don't get the results we demand, it is because we are not performing our civic duty.

Our problem is that while we demand cuts in overall spending, many of us still demand generous spending on programs that benefit us directly. That is illogical and childish. We can't have it both ways. The hypocrisy in Washington begins at home.

There are 535 members of Congress, all ambitious people eager to make a mark on the world. The main opportunity they have for doing so is by spending money. They will continue spending money like water until we hold their feet to the fire and make them stop.

Some members of Congress insist they have cut spending as much as they can; that the budget deficits stem from President Reagan's tax cuts. This is pure politicasl hokum. Tax revenues have risen steadily under the Reagan administration. The problem is federal spending that has risen even faster.

Many members of Congress are already talking about raising taxes next year to alleviate the deficit. But they will not apply new taxes to the deficit. They never do. They will just spend even more.

There is only one solution to this debacle. We voters must take charge and demand spending restraint. To accomplish this, the U.S Chamber of Commerce has joined with other groups to secure written promises from candidates that they will not raise taxes. We are asking them to sign a "Taxpayer Protection Pledge" assuring us they will not vote for any tax increases of any kind.

Those who take the pledge will be on record. If they vote for higher taxes, we can identify them clearly and let their constituents know they have broken faith.

As for those who refuse to take the pledge, well, you should keep that in mind on November 4.

Voters in California are often called upon to render judgment on outrageous proposals, but none I think compare in sheer deception with Proposition 65, the Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986 — the so-called California Toxic Initiative.

Championed by Tom Hayden's Campaign for Economic Democracy, Proposition 65 is a thinly disquised assault on private enterprise in the name of environmental protection. It would put a price on the head of every business in the state, including farms, and anoint every citizen a bounty hunter.

The alleged goal of Proposition 65 is to eliminate the discharge of any substance the State of California deems unsafe. But the list of potential substances subject to this ban is potentially so broad it could include almost anything — from alcoholic beverages to aspirin to common table salt.

And the ban would apply to the discharge of these substances in "any detectable amount." We live in an age when modern technology can detect molecules down to parts per trillion. At that level, you can find practically anything anywhere.

The bounty hunter provisions assure that anyone with a gripe can sue and be rewarded with 25 per cent of the penalties collected. It costs them nothing to sue, and they don't have to show any injury or even be an affected party. With penalties up to $2,500 a day, Proposition 65 is an invitation for endless litigation against virtually every business and farmer in California.

People who are unable to cope with serious problems will sometimes ingnore them altogether, focusing their attention on extraneous issues that appear more amenable to solution.

Such escapism, subconscious or otherwise, appears to be the prime motivation of Congress lately. With great fanfare, our representatives have enacted dramatic reform of our tax system and overriden President Reagan's veto of economic sanctions against South Africa.

Such "progress" tends to divert attention from the almost total breakdown of the legislative process, and the inability of our representatives to meet their most basic responsibility — managing the public purse.

Funding for the federal government is supposed to be provided through 13 appropriations bills, each of which covers specific government agencies and activities. When the 99th Congress quit Washington to hit the reelection campaign trail, it had completed action on precisely none of them.

The results of this political malpractice are plain for all to see — soaring deficits that grow bigger each year, distorting our economy and saddling future generations with an incredible national debt.

To be sure, reining in the budget will require some tough decisions. There are many contentious issues at stake. But Congress is paid to resolve such issues, and it is not earning its pay.

Many factors contribute to this legislative logjam, but the main one is the predominant mindset of our legislators that they must buy votes. The destructive urge to expand entitlement programs and bring federal pork to constituents is a common affliction among Democrats and Republicans, liberal sand conservatives.

The irony is that few votes are influenced by such things. Two recent studies, based on independent analyses of voting trends, suggest strongly that voters are neither inclined to reward politicians who bring home the pork, nor punish those who do not.

But bad habits die hard, and few of our representatives have the courage to say no to extravagant spending. That being the case, there are other ways to resolve the impasse — such as a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced budget; the line-item veto; restoring the President's impoundment authority; across-the-board percentage reductions in spending; and elimination of cost-of-living increases in entitlement programs.

There is a rising tide of frustration among voters about continuing deficits and the inability of Congress to deal with them. In the final analysis, the best solution of all may be to unelect the worst offenders in Congress and chasten the rest to start earning their pay.

Attended North American Hatchery Conference

Lyle and Muriel Mandt were accompanied by Dennis and Willa Alberts of Dassel and Tony and Cheryl Wasmund of Willmar to the 1986 North American Hatchery Conference sponsored by DeKalb Poultry Research Inc., held on Cape Cod at Wychmere Habor club and hotel located in Harwich Port on Nantucket Sound. The conference began with an authentic outdoor New England clambake Wednesday evening and concluded with an awards luncheon on Friday, October 17. Dennis Alberts and Tony Wasmund are in management and sales at Midwest Hatchery in Dassel. Midwest Hatchery has been a DeKalb Chick hatchery for 32 years.

The plane left Minneapolis at 7:00 o'clock Wednesday morning and landed at Boston, MA, at 12:30 eastern standard time. We rented a station wagon to travel the 90 miles to Port Harwich. It was a very beautiful scenic fall drive. A stop was made at Plymouth, MA. Plymouth is indeed a shrine of American democracy which every citizen is privileged to visit. We visited the Mayflower at the dock where people dressed as pilgrims told us history of the trip of the Mayflower from England in 1620. We also visited the Plymouth Rock and Portico and Pilgrims Village. Our DeKalb group went on a whale watching cruise Thursday afternoon. Whales are interesting mammals like human beings. They are not fish. Boston is a very old and historic city. The east has so much history that one could spend weeks touring and visiting different places. It was a very interesting trip. Lyle and Muriel were houseguests at the Greg and Mari Klesk home in Hopkins on Saturday and returned home on Sunday.

Deer Park Garden Club Tour, October 14th

The Deer Park Garden club made a tour of the Chervestad carrot processing plant at Korydon and Carol Chervestad's farm. The group enjoyed watching the workers unloading, sorting, washing, packaging the carrots and hauling to the warehouses in Grand Forks, Thief River Falls, Fargo, Minneapolis, Chicago and other locations. Our tour guide was Mrs. Kay Erickson of Gully. We also visited the harvesting of the carrots by Sundruds. The carrots are grown on peat soil that is tilled near Trail and operated by Ordean Sundrud and Son of Fosston. The group visited Kelly and Connie Lundeen's blueberry operation of rural Trail. The Lundeens and their children planted 500 blueberry plants on peat soil on their farm. The plants were purchased from a nursery in southern Minnesota and hauled up here by Korydon Chervestad. The berries Connie put in the freezer were of nice quality. Next year they hope to plant 2,000 plants. Whoever wants to buy berries from the Lundeens will be picking their own next year. The blueberry plants are 3 to 4 years old and produce a lot of berries. This year, the family grew mostly for the relatives. We also were introduced to their new daughter, adopted from Korea, a real doll.

We ended the tour at the Chervestad country school house where reading, writing and arithmetic were of great importance in the good old days.

Hosting the tour were Ethel Wiseth of Goodridge and Helen Chervestad. We served carrot juice, carrot cake and carrot decorated sandwiches. Club members who attended were Lavonne Radniecki and Joey, Nora Hanson, Lois Swanson, and her sister, Mrs. Anderson, Inga Coan, Deloris Bendickson, Mrs. Aandal, Wyla Prestegaard of Thief River Falls and Gladys Mae Hamilton of Goodridge. Lois Swanson, vice-president, presided at the meeting. Next meeting will be held at the Goodridge center. Hosting the event will be Norma Hanson and Gladys Mae Hamilton. The lesson is on crafts.

Homestart Class Tour

The Oklee home start class teacher, Mrs. Shirley Vettleson, accompanied her class to tour the "Mr. Carrot," the Chervestad farm carrot plant last week. They learned the processing method — how carrots get into the bag and are sold at grocery stores.

They also toured The M & H Egg plant at the Mable Hofstad farm. Mable presented a show and tell about the hen and her eggs and how they are picked and stored and sold to the stores. The mothers and children attending were Mrs. Lana Nelson, Brent and Christopher, Lori Anderson and daughter, Heidi Larson and Corey, Mrs. Linder of Plummer and Sonja Kolstoe.

"The sugar beet farmers have a program that works. It keeps prices up. . . and it doesn't cost the government any money."

"We need this same kind of program for ALL our farmers. And I'm for it."

"But Stangeland is against it."

"Why?"

"Because the grain corporations and the big companies don't want it."

"In Congress, I'll fight for this kind of program for ALL our farmers."

"And that's the difference."

Some Critical Differences Between Collin Peterson and Arlan Stangeland.

Stangeland	Peterson
Architect of 1985 Farm Bill and current farm policy which lowers prices.	Fought against the 1985 farm bill and will fight in Congress to change the current Stangeland farm policy.
Against the Wheat Referendum which could lead to higher prices and production controls.	Supports the Wheat Referendum backed by 73% of Minnesota farmers.
Supports the unworkable whole herd dairy buyout.	Opposes encouraging Minnesota and Wisconsin dairy farmers to sell out—against giving windfall profits to Southern dairy farmers.
Opposes legislation to remove Minnesota as a nuclear waste dump site. Rated a failing 16% by League of Conservation Voters.	Wrote and passed the bill allowing Minnesota to halt the dumping of nuclear wastes. Chosen "Legislator of the Year" in 1982 by Conservation Federation.
Supports $100 million in wasteful foreign aid for Nicaragua.	Against Contra aid—we should be spending our money for our farmers and small businesses here at home.

Collin Peterson cares enough to fight for Our Farms and Our Families.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

Headlines: "Jobless rate rises to 7.3 per cent" and "Dow Sets Record High at 1885."

Behind the headlines are these facts: (1) There are at least 8½ million legally employed Americans and an estimated 13 million truly unemployed and underemployed men and women; (2) Construction is sluggish because of years of overbuilding in office, hotel and commercial properties as well as cutbacks in factory expansion; (3) Retail sales aren't up to expectations and auto sales have been disappointing, even with six per cent interest rates; (4) There have been cutbacks in business equipment orders, and the computer industry is reeling; (5) There is an overabundance of electricity and an oil glut, so that the electric utilities and oil companies are not expanding; (6) The belief that a lower valued dollar would help exports and reduce imports is questionable because foreign suppliers don't want to lose their hard-won American markets, and are willing to reduce profit margins or even take a loss to keep market shares.

With all those negative facts, there is a growing pension and retirement cash flow. That growth translates into more investment funds. The many mergers and going-private actions of big companies means more money chasing fewer securities. That contributes to the stock market rise, along with our "herd" attitude, everyone wanting to take advantage of a good thing.

Price earnings, multiples, what you pay for the earnings you get, have been rising, and testify to the problem of paying too much for a good thing. Company profits have not improved significantly, and that will convert into poor yields and lower stock prices when the emotional push is through and the "hangover" systems appear.

This is not the time to get sucked into a stock or bond market where prices rise without justification.

In today's mail, I received a letter from a prominent financial journal. It contained three predictions. (1) The Dow Jones Stock Industrial Index will rise to 2,000 from the high 1,800's. With inflation, the decline in the value of the dollar, 1986 stock prices at an index of 1,000, would have to be at 2,637 just to maintain the same purchasing power that they had in 1965. This means that people who bought stock in 1965, with more valuable dollars, have taken a real beating and haven't caught up yet.

The editors also indicate that (2) manufacturing and blue collar jobs that moved overseas for cheaper and more productive labor will return to the United States, providing a few examples that reflect improved productivity through automation.

They also point out that (3) productivity will soar. To be able to return manufacturing to the United States and compete in the real world involves the need for joint understanding by management and labor that would eliminate work rules that increase costs and allow wages that vary with productivity and competition. It would require management that knows how to communicate and inspire support, and that doesn't demonstrate massive greed with excessive bonus and deferred payments while asking employees to "give back" wages and benefits. I don't see that kind of change occurring. When the pain of old failing approaches forces us to face the facts, then these predictions may come true.

We haven't arrived at a heaven on earth, with everyone doing what's right, even if it hurts. That's why I hope you won't be a stock or bond market sucker, confused by statistics. We are still a society of "me" people, and economic storms are ahead. The symptoms, higher unemployment and increasing inflation, tempered only by the oil price collapse, are there for all to see.

That's Straight Talk!

Sheldon "Snooky" Erickson Believes We Need To TIGHTEN THE BELT
Of Our State Government

"The easiest thing to be liberal with is somebody else's money. We need more legislators who are tough enough to say 'NO' but have vision to see a better future for all of us. I can be that kind of State Representative."
— Snooky Erickson

It's time for a conservative voice to speak up for the people of Northwest Minnesota. Sheldon "Snooky" Erickson understands whose money is being spent on state programs and wants to help bring that spending under control.

It's time to end policies of the past four years which forced business and jobs out of the state and attracted welfare recipients instead.

JIM BUTLER
For State Senate
You deserve to know how you have been represented in the State Senate

GUN CONTROL
The United States Constitution gives each of us the right to "keep and bear arms." Yet in 1986 LeRoy Stumpf on two separate occasions opposed efforts to place similar language in the Minnesota Constitution. He voted against a motion to bring this clean, simple, but very important proposal for Senate action. (Senate Daily Journal, March 17, 1986, page 5780; Senate Daily Journal, April 2, 1986, pages 13 and 14).
JIM BUTLER supports traditional American values provided by our constitution, including the Right to Life and the Right to Bear Arms.

TAX INCREASES
You and I pay nearly double the national average in personal state income taxes. Yet in 1983, LeRoy Stumpf voted for the largest tax increase in the history of Minnesota - nearly $1 billion! (Senate Journal, 1983, page 4074).
Minnesotans' Social Security benefits had never been taxed before. Yet in 1985 LeRoy Stumpf voted to extend Minnesota's taxes to take from Social Security benefits. (Senate Journal, 1985, page 2450).
JIM BUTLER supports another billion dollar tax reduction again being proposed by the Independent Republicans allowing taxpayers to keep more of their earnings.

WELFARE / WORKFARE
Minnesota's welfare growth needs to be controlled. Since 1974, state spending for major welfare programs increased 594 percent. Yet, LeRoy Stumpf voted to increase state spending to welfare recipients by 38 percent in 1983 and by an additional 17 percent in 1985. (Senate Journal, 1983, pages 4341 through 4342; 1985, pages 2466 - 77).
Everyone agrees it is necessary to work for your income - even for welfare recipients. Yet in 1985, LeRoy Stumpf voted to penalize counties which require work in return for welfare checks. (Senate Journal 1985, page 2077).
JIM BUTLER supports responsible welfare reform assuring that the needy are provided for, and able bodied people have a means to provide for themselves.

Common Science

by Joe Jeffers, Ph.D.

Often during surgery it is necessary for one to receive a blood transfusion, that is blood from one person is placed into the body of another. Just any blood will not do. It must be of the same type. There are eight blood types — A+, A-, B+, B-, O+, O-, AB+, and AB-. What causes these blood types? They result from the presence or absence of certain proteins on the surface of red blood cells.

There are actually two separate sources of these proteins. Both come from genes, sections of DNA that code for the making of protein. One set of genes determines the general blood group, whether one is A, B, AB or O. The other set determines whether one is + or -. For either trait, a person inherits two genes, one from each parent.

In the case of the general blood group, there are three types of genes available in the population — type A, type B and type O. Any one person can have either two of these genes or two copies of one of these genes at the two gene locations for blood group. For example, if both gene locations have genes for type A blood (AA), the person will be type A. Similarly, two genes for B (BB) give type B and two genes for O (OO) give type O. Type A genes make the type A protein; type B genes make type B protein. Type O, on the other hand, indicates a defective gene, either a type A or type B gene that does not work. This gene does not produce a protein that will bind to the red blood cell.

If a person has one type A gene and one type O gene (AO), he will be blood type A, since the A gene produces the A protein and the O gene produces no protein. Similarly, a person with one type B gene and one type O gene (BO) will be type B. The only way to be type O is to have two type O genes. Therefore no blood group protein will be produced. If a person has one type A gene and one type B gene (AB), both proteins A and B will be produced and the blood type will be AB.

The other set of genes codes for a protein called the Rh factor, so named because it was first identified in rhesus monkeys. If one has a gene which codes for the Rh factor, he is considered Rh positive. If his Rh genes are defective, no Rh factor is produced and he is Rh negative. A person with two genes that work (++) or one gene that works and one that doesn't (+-) will be Rh positive because he can make the protein. A person with two defective genes for Rh (--) will not produce the protein.

Since this set of genes is totally separate from the set for general blood group, any possible combination can occur. A person with blood group A (AA or AO) and the Rh factor (++ or +-) will have blood type A+; a person with blood group A and no Rh factor (--) will have blood type A-. At one extreme is type O-, which has no proteins attached to the red blood cells. At the other extreme is AB+, which has all three.

Why can't these blood types be mixed? Our bodies have produced or can produce antibodies against the proteins we do not have. These antibodies recognize what is foreign in our blood (antigens) and mark the foreign invaders for destruction. That is how we fight off infecting diseases.

If a person of type O+ blood is given type A+, his antibodies will attack the new red blood cells containing the A protein. Similarly if a person with type A- blood is given type A+, he will produce antibodies that will attack the new red blood cells because of the Rh protein. As a rule, nothing can be added to a person's blood unless he already has it.

Type AB+ has all the protein types, so that person could conceivably accept any type of blood; type O- has none of the protein types, so only O- could be used in a transfusion. Since O- has none of the proteins, it is considered the universal donor. In an emergency it could be given to any other type. Type O- negative blood does contain some antibodies against types A and B. The antibody reaction when O- is given to type A-, however, is generally very mild since the anti-A antibodies are diluted when a small amount of O- is added to a lot of A-. Still it is preferable to exactly match blood types.

AGRI-GROWTH REPORT!

by RUSS SCHWANDT

I've mentioned in this column frequently my admiration for former Minnesota Governor and former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Orv Freeman. Thus, you can appreciate how enthusiastic I am about having him as one of our featured speakers for the 1986 Annual Meeting of the Minnesota Agri-Growth Council. Freeman will be our guest speaker at the noon luncheon for the event, which is scheduled for Tuesday, November 18th, at the Radisson South Hotel in Bloomington.

I am particularly excited about having Orv Freeman here because he was intimately involved with the creation and execution of P.L. 480, the Food For Peace program of the federal government. I've talked in these columns many times about how the P.L. 480 program helped American farmers develop new overseas markets for our production. The difference with it being said by Freeman is simply that he was there and he knows the facts far better than I do.

Take Korea, for example. It is one of Orv Freeman's favorite examples. In 1961, when the P.L. 480 program was just starting to help the Korean people, that nation's income was just $85 per person. Its Gross National Product was only $3 billion. U.S. exports to Korea totaled less than $100 million per year.

With the help of U.S. aid programs, like P.L. 480, and other factors, Korea today boasts a per capita income of more than $3,000 per year and a Gross National Product of $35 billion. On top of that, Koreans are importing something like $2 billion a year in U.S. goods.

What the P.L. 480 program did with Korea and a lot of other countries can be done again today. It helped to develop, within those nations, a taste for our products and, as a result, a totally new market for our goods.

Freeman's slogan for this happening is "converting need into effective demand." He believes, as I do, that a U.S. government, properly committed to a course of action, could once again use aid, cheap credit and long-term paybacks as methods to develop new foreign markets for our agricultural production.

Orv Freeman will outline his thinking and where it fits in today's staggering rural economy at our Agri-Growth annual meeting. I want you to join me in hearing his message.

Russ Schwandt is a farmer, agribusinessman, former Minnesota Commissioner of Agriculture in the 1960's, board member of the Seaway Port Authority of Duluth and President of the Minnesota Agri-Growth Council, which was created to speak out for all groups, associations and companies in the state's agriculture industry.

TIMES AROUND THE REGION

Middle River Teacher

Middle River — Sue Herling of Roseau is the new kindergarten teacher in Middle River. She is originally from Thief River Falls, a graduate of Lincoln high school and Northland community college. She attended Moorhead state university and Bemidji state university. She previously taught school in Badger and Roseau. She and her husband, Greg, a school psychologist for the Roseau school district, live in Roseau with their two daughters, Kristy, 17, and Valerie, 13. She is the daughter of Chuck and Shirley Daley of Thief River Falls.

Greenbush Doctor

Greenbush — Dr. Paul Lamble has recently joined the staff ofthe Greenbush clinic. He is a native of Grand Forks, ND, and will be at the clinic in Greenbush until next spring when he plans to attend the University of California to pursue a sub-specialty in the field of rheumatology.

Higher Than Elephant's Eye

Roseau — The Roseau Times Region sports a picture of Thure Brandt standing next to a 12-foot corn stalk he produced this year.

Quick Work

Greenbush — Two anhydrous ammonia tanks being towed by Lionel Torbus of Karlstad left the roadway and overturned October 20 near Greenbush. The fire department was called, but by the time they reached the scene, the manager of the Roseau County Co-Op, where the ammonia was purchased, was already at the scene and had shut off valves to eliminate danger of leakage. There was slight damage to the trailers carrying the tanks, but none to the ammonia or tanks.

Big Spud Business

Oslo — A 24-year-old potato washplant in Oslo has changed ownership and names lately. Big "O" Foods is now "Oslo Potato Packers Inc." and has been purchased with equal ownership by 16 local potato growers. The plant was formerly owned by the late Peter Gerszewski. No major changes are expected in the immediate future says new manager, Dick Wessling. The plant, built in 1962, has a total of 34 bins for storage and will employ 20 to 25 people during its washing operation period of October first through May.

Good Fishin' This Summer

Stephen — It is reported by the Stephen Messenger that DNR plans to kill off rough fish in the Florian Park reservoir are proceeding as scheduled, with few game fish being involved. Seven largemouth bass were found ranging in weight from four to six pounds, but not a single northern weighing over six pounds. Restocking of the reservoir with game fish will get underway in the spring in order to have catchable-sized game fish ready for the summer fishing season.

Too Much Smoke

Red Lake Falls — Shannon Gaulrapp, 18, West Fargo, ND, was seriously injured October 18 when his car collided with a truck driven by Eugene Grapenhoft, 52, Omaha, NE, about four miles north of Red Lake Falls on highway 32. Gaulrapp was taken to Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls with lacerations and a concussion. Grapenhoft and a passenger in the Gaulrapp vehicle were not injured. The car was totalled and damage to the truck was listed at $3,000. The accident was said to have been caused by smoke from burning fields impairing the drivers' vision, according to the Pennington county sheriff's department.

Soil Specialists

Greenbush — The Greenbush Future Farmers of America soils judging team placed first in the regional soils contest held recently in Fertile. They will now compete in the state contest in St. Paul next April, where they will be judged on ability to determine soil layers, degree of erosion, surface soil color, internal drainage, textures, topography, land use capability, water holding capacity, fertilizer recommendations and drainage requirements. Members of the team are Eric Kukowski, Jason Swart, Brandon Kuznia and Brock Stenberg.

Music Controversy

Red Lake Falls — In order to accommodate an irate crowd of parents and students, the October 21 Red Lake Falls school board meeting was held in the school library. The crowd was present to voice their objections to recent cost-cutting measures by the board which included discontinuation of music at school games and other activities. Although several opinions were aired, the issue was not resolved at the meeting, with the school board standing pat on the decision.

Manager Controversy

Baudette — An hour of controversy began a meeting of the North Star Electric cooperative the afternoon of October 18. Close to 400 people attended the meeting to question the board's decision to hire an electrical engineer and former Baudette resident, Maury Olson, as general manager, over another position finalist, 26-year veteran Joyce Olson, who has been acting general manager for the past seven months. Joyce Olson submitted her resignation as a result of the hiring of Maury Olson. Maury Olson is in the process of moving his family from Saudi Arabia to Baudette.

Older Adults Can Join In COMPAS Writing Program

Older adults throughout Minnesota can join a writing program without leaving their homes. The program, Literary Post, is conducted through the mail and participants correspond with mail order editors. Literary Post is conducted by COMPAS, Minnesota's largest community arts organization, and it is available to anyone who is 60 or older.

Literary Post runs from November, 1986 through June, 1987. Each participant is assigned to one of five mail order editors whose jobs are to review the writing of participants and respond with critical suggestions, writing assignments and encouragement. Participants and the mail order editors carry on this correspondence until the program ends next spring.

The COMPAS mail order editors are Bart Schneider, Mary Rockcastle, Nancy Weber, Walt Howerton and Jonis Agee. All of these people have strong writing and teaching experience.

Literary Post is open to any older Minnesotan with an interest in writing: people who want to record their life stories, people who like to write poetry, people who have a great idea for a novel. The writing of both beginning and experienced writers will receive careful attention from the mail order editors.

The only cost for the program is the price of postage stamps. Anyone interested in joining Literary Post should send a note with their name and address to: Literary Post, COMPAS, 308 Landmark Center, 75 W. 5th St., St. Paul, MN 55102. Enrollment is limited. The mail order editors will write to enrolled participants with information on how to begin the program.

This begins the third year COMPAS has conducted Literary Post. Last year more than 700 older Minnesotans corresponded with mail order editor Carol Bly. The overwhelming response to last year's program prompted COMPAS to expand the program and hire additional mail order editors. COMPAS has conducted numerous writing programs for older adults and Literary Post is designed to make high quality literary criticism accessible to older people throughout Minnesota.

Support for this senior writing program is provided, in part, by grants from the Blandin Foundation, Gamble-Skogmo Foundation, Witter-Bynner Foundation and the Ruth Mott Fund. COMPAS is a member agency of United Arts.

Large Turnout Expected For Election

Cast Ballots For Candidates On Tuesday

Election day is almost upon us. Many will breathe a sigh of relief, but not before preparing themselves for a last minute blitz of campaign material. So for the record here is a quick reference to all of the many elections in the Times region:

Pennington county and Marshall county are both expecting fairly large voter turnouts. Auditors are basing their opinions on the fact that there was a large primary turnout and there are a large number of candidates. Pennington county auditors office stated that there are several candidates running for offices that don't normally see more than one candidate. Openings caused by retirement explains much of the interest by candidates. But citizens also seem more interested in their government.

MARSHALL COUNTY: Wayne Bendickson and Roy G. Swanson for county auditor-treasurer; Marion Halvorson and Dwight Peterson for county recorder; Calvin Melgaard for county commissioner, district 1; Delray Larson and George Panek for county commissioner, district 5; Kenneth Price for county commissioner, district 3; Dennis B. Brekke and Bruce Erickson for county sheriff; and Harold G. Myhre for county attorney.

RED LAKE COUNTY: Dave Kankel for auditor; Jay Guillemette for treasurer; Allen Morken for county sheriff; Dan Geller for county attorney; Jerry Thibert for county recorder; Irving Beyer for district one county commissioner; Alvin Jensen for district three county commissioner; and Russell Huotari for district five county commissioner. All candidates in Red Lake county are unopposed.

PENNINGTON COUNTY: Dave Olin and John Novacek for Pennington county attorney; Robert Wold and James Haugen for Pennington county sheriff; Vicki Bjorgaard and Leo Nelson for Pennington county treasurer; Eugene Prestegaard and Ann Pluth-Olson for Pennington county recorder; Kenneth Olson for Pennington county auditor; Don Grabanski for Pennington county commissioner; and Bill Penning for Pennington county fourth district commissioner.

Citizens of small towns in the Times region will also elect mayors and city councilmen during the November 4 general election. Here is a list of those towns and election statistics:

GOODRIDGE: Dr. David Brown and John Cullen are running for mayor; Robert Manderud, Carl Elg, Irvin Hamm and Paulette Kassa are running for two open positions on the city council.

GRYGLA: No one has officially filed for the positions of mayor and two city council seats. The present mayor is Ralph Klein. The two city council seats up for grabs are held by Karl Sundberg and DelRay Ruud.

MIDDLE RIVER: No one has officially filed for the positions of mayor and two city council seats. The present mayor is Sully Gentry and two city council members are Ed Johnson and Mary Hanson.

NEWFOLDEN: Only incumbents have filed to fill the mayoral position and three city council seats. The present mayor is Vern Gustafson. Dave Kragness, Marlin Lee and Ernie Johnson are running for city council seats. Johnson is running to fill a one year appointment made last year.

PLUMMER: Mayor Russell Pahlen is officially unopposed. Two city council seats are on the ballot but only James Schiefert has officially filed.

VIKING: Positions listed on the ballot include city clerk, mayor and one city council seat. Amy Hjelle has filed for city clerk. Ardelle Anderson has filed for the city council position, but no one has filed for mayor. Lloyd Ranum is the current mayor.

The face painting project was part of an effort on the part of the Lincoln high school personal services class to provide a safer Halloween for the youngsters, as well as giving class members a chance to practice their cosmetology.

Accident Claims Life Of Trail, MN Resident Thursday

Jennifer Lynn Peterson, 30, Trail, was pronounced dead on arrival at the Warren hospital after a one-vehicle rollover at the intersection of county road four and county road 39, 11 miles west of Newfolden, according to Marshall county sheriff's office.

According to the sheriff's office a 1985 Plymnouth two-door car owned and operated by Jennifer Peterson was traveling west on county raod four Thursday night when the vehicle went out of control on a curve and rolled into the north ditch. Peterson and a passenger, Jeffrey Iverson of Roseau, were transported to the Warren hospital by ambulance where Peterson was pronounced dead on arrival and Iverson was reported in stable condition. The vehicle was a total loss.

The accident was investigated by the Marshall county sheriff's office.

Farm Accident Claims Life Of Local Resident

Donald George Swanson, 53, route 5, Thief River Falls, was found dead Thursday morning in section 27 of Sanders township. Howard Selm, Pennington county sheriff's department, said Swanson had apparently been run over by a D-6 Caterpillar he was operating while ditching.

Swanson was last seen about 3:30 Wednesday afternoon, and he did not show up at home Wednesday night. Pennington county sheriff's office and Lifestar Ambulance responded to a call to the scene of the accident at 10:40 a.m. Thursday. The sheriff's department said that apparently after running over Swanson, the Caterpillar kept running for about three-eighths of a mile and got stuck in a ditch where it eventually killed. No foul play is suspected, but an investigation is continuing.

FDAC Employee Files Grievance Against Suspension

Investigation board of the Falls Day Activity center in Thief River Falls met Friday morning with Jim Rooker, activity director, who was placed on suspension with pay last week for irregularities in the performance of his job. At the time of suspension no reasons were given for his suspension.

Rooker said Friday that the investigation board met on Friday to discuss complaints against Rooker. Rooker said he could not specify what the complaints were or who they were from except that they involved irregularities in filing of paperwork. Rooker said he was surprised because he had never been told he wasn't doing it right and they had plenty of opportunity to do so.

Rooker said the investigating board plans to meet again this week. He added that the charges of retaliation that he has filed with the Minnesota Department of Human Services Licensing Division, were not discussed at the meeting. He also said the investigation against Evan Armstrong, Falls Day Activity center director who was also suspended with pay, was not discussed.

Charges against Armstrong have not been specifically detailed publicly yet. However, affidavits detailing complaints by staff members against Armstrong were filed early last week. An investigation and audit will preclude formal charges if any are made.

Sandy Johnson, legal assistant for Minnesota's legal advocacy for developmentally disabled persons, said the law encourages reporting of any abuse to the developmentally disabled. In fact, she added, it is required by law. Part of the Minnesota Vulnerable Adults Protection act also protects individuals who report abuse. A clause within the act stipulates that if a staff person who has reported abuse is prohibited access to the facility within 90 days after the report is filed, the person may consider any of those actions retaliatory.

Creation Of Ghosts, Goblins And Ghoulies

by Sharon LaCoursiere
Times Reporter

As a result of a "trick or treat" brochure sent to parents of elementary school children, which stressed the safety of face painting as opposed to masks that hinder a child's vision, children of Edith Etter's second grade class at Mark Twain school received painted Halloween faces last Friday. Students of the personal services class of Northwest Vocational coop visited the classroom armed with tubes, bottles, brushes and sketches of faces, and left a classroom filled with witches, ghosts, goblins, vampires and other assorted Halloween creatures.

This is the fourth year that the personal services class has provided this service for elementary school children. As well as being an enjoyable experience and safety service for the children, it is a learning experience for the personal services class.

To prepare for the face painting session, students of Diane Rothschadl's class draw sketches of the faces chosen by the children on paper, using their knowledge of make-up application and procedure. They also prepare a printed card with instructions for removal of the make-up, which is sent home to the parents.

When painting each child's face, the personal services student uses her own imagination to create the face desired by the child. Each child's face is different, depending upon the imagination and creativity of the student doing the painting, but each child has chosen the basic face he wishes beforehand.

The Northwest Vocational Coop is made up of junior and senior high school students from Newfolden, Strandquist, Plummer, Goodridge, and Thief River Falls. Students performing face painting were Janette Bydlon, Sherrie Katschke, Lisa Bechard, Stephanie Ganer, Marcia Linder and Geraldine Longtin from Plummer; and Stephanie Benson, Laurie Green, Melinda Hausken, Dawn Jenson, Edna Johnson, Heidi Klopp, Kim Lofberg, Michelle Lund, Melissa Puppe, Jayne Schwartz, Tracy Scott, Jackie Smith and Robbin Williamson from Thief River Falls.

The Question Is— To Be Or Not To Be-Witched

Picture, if you can, at 6 p.m. on Hallowe'en, a bus filled with Martian creatures — suits of silver metal, grey faces, heads of blinking lights; each topped with tresses of green, red, gold or blue — descending from their terrestrial vehicle to enter the American Legion club in Red Lake Falls.

The unearthly crew carefully parked their terrestrial vehicle on the hill and went to perform their various mortal duties as employees of the Legion club, expecting to return to their vehicle later in the evening for a solar system sojourn.

For reasons we shall never know, whether bewitched, enchanted, bedeviled or bewildered, the vehicle suddenly slipped its earthly bounds and began a journey of its own — down the hill, over a light pole, skip past one mortal, past another, over the curb and over the walk; finally coming to rest north of Wilcox furniture store, its brief magical expedition halted by an enchanted forest, probably.

Cook's Choice

Thanks to Mrs. Inar Mikkelson of Thief River Falls for today's recipe and helpful hints on how to cook that Halloween pumpkin or garden bounty of squash.

Harvest Moon Squash Pie

2½ cups bakes squash
¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cups whipping cream, whole milk or half and half
3 eggs
1 teaspoon each of cinnanmon and nutmeg
¼ teaspoon allspice or pumpkin pie spice

Whirl baked squash in blender or use electric mixer until smoothly pureed. Add sugar, eggs, cream or milk and spices and mix together until blended.

Pour filling into unbaked pie shell. Bake in center rack of 350 degree oven until set in center, about 50 to 60 minutes. If crust browns too rapidly, lightly cover crust with narrow strip of foil. Let pie cool at room temperature.

How To Bake Squash

With a large knife, cut squash in half. If larger, cut in pieces (6 or 7 chunks). Scoop out and discard seeds and strings. Lay squash halves or pieces shell side up on 10x15 rimmed pan. (A glass baking pan works well.) Bake in 350 degree oven until pulp is tender and pierces easily. To cool, turn squash cut side up. When cool enough to handle, scoop out pulp and measure. For each pie, use the amount required and bake for the suggested period of time.

Guide to baking:
Acorn, 2½ pounds — 45 minutes
Banna, 2 to 2 ½ pounds — 1 to 1 ½ hours
Butternut, 2 pounds — 1 ¼ hour
Delicate, 3 pounds — 30 minutes
Golden Acorn, 2¼ pounds — 45 minutes
Kabocha, 2 ½ pounds — 50 minutes
Pumpkin, 6 pounds — 1 hour
Turban, 2 ½ pounds — 45 minutes
Sweet Dumpling, 2 ½ pounds, 45 minutes

The INSIDE SCOOP
by GAYLE BORCHERT

This week Lincoln will play host to the district one Future Homemakers of America convention. Lincoln has not hosted one since 1968. The theme of this year's convention is "Youth Explosion, You're the Spark." The district officers organize and put on the program. They have spent a good deal of time lining up speakers. They have arranged for several local people to speak. Miss Shaw is the Lincoln FHA advisor and she has five members this year. Each year the local chapter tries to start some type of service project. At the end of the year, members and their mothers see something educational and also do a little shopping.

The Captain's club is a new organization that was just formed last year by Mr. Stock and Russ Smith. It includes the captains or representatives from each of the sports. The purpose of the club is to provide a place where leaders of the various activities can get together and discuss ideas and share problems. As a result of last year's meetings, a captain's handbook was put together and distributed to all of this year's captains.

This Monday the Lincoln choir will participate in the Fall choir festival at East Grand Forks. The choir director is Mr. Morken.

On Tuesday the fourth of November, Scherling photography will be taking color photo packets for the underclassmen. Also on Tuesday is election day. Lincoln will serve as a polling place. Hopefully, all seniors who are eighteen years old will get out and vote.

Student teacher — Mrs. Dian Johnson. Mr. Dyrud and Mrs. Johnson have a student teacher in English classes this quarter. Her name is Mrs. Dian Johnson. She grew up in Minneapolis and currently lives in Thief River Falls. She is married and has three grown children. Mrs. Johnson attended Northland community college and is currently finishing her English major at Bemidji state university. After college, she would like to take a trip to Europe and possibly continue on to receive her master's degree.

Her hobbies include collecting antiques, sewing and handicrafts. She also enjoys music, reading and animals.

This week's activities:

Monday, October 3 — Fall choir festival at East Grand Forks; FHA district one convention at Lincoln.

Tuesday, October 4 — Pictures at Lincoln; Report cards are due out.

Friday, October 7 — Girl's swim regions at UND.

Saturday, October 8 — Girl's swim region at UND.

AMERICAN RED CROSS commends Vern Treat (left), director of student services at Thief River Falls AVTI, for his extraordinary personal action in helping to rescue an elderly man from the waters of Rainy Lake in July 1986.

Visiting International Falls for a career conference at the high school, Treat was among delegates who joined in a short tour on the Canadian side of Rainy Lake.

While crossing the causeway east of Fort Frances, the motorists were stopped by a young boy frantically shouting that his grandfather was drowning nearby. Treat ran an estimated 200 yards to the rocky shoreline, dove in and helped pull the drowning man to safety.

Another member of the party applied mouth-to-mouth and CPR procedures until an ambulance arrived.

Mr. Treat's action — his concern for a fellow human being — is worthy of special recognition. Pictured with Treat is Nick Kantos, counselor, International Falls high school.

Large Turnout Expected Tues. For Election

member positions include: Jay R. Borchert, Paul L. Bortnem, Jack Boyer, Ron Martin, Dennis Kiesow, Greg Pribula and Frank Womack.

SWCD CANDIDATES: Pennington county voters will vote on two supervisor positions with the Pennington county soil and water conservation district. Only incumbents filed. Raymond S. Olson filed for the office of supervisor of district one; and Clair C. Larson filed for supervisor of district five.

Marshall-Beltrami Soil and water conservation district will also have two positions open. Lloyd Wiseth has filed for re-election in area three, but no one has filed for the supervisory position in area five, which covers Espelie township in Marshall county and Lee, Benville, Northwood and Big Grass townships in Beltrami county.

JUDGES: Voters in the Times region and indeed a substantial part of Northern Minnesota will vote for many judges. Only two of which will be facing competition for the same seat. James R. Wilson and F.R. Weddel are running for the same ninth district seat which will primarily be served in Beltrami and Clearwater counties. John Remington Graham and Clinton W. Wyant are running for the same ninth district seat which will primarily be served in Crow, Aitken and Itasca counties.

Other judges and the counties they serve are: Robert S. Graff serving Hubbard, Cass, and Itasca; James E. Preece serving Beltrami, Hubbard, Clearwater, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods and Cass; Robert J. Ryan serving in Crow Wing and Aitkin counties; W.J. Spooner serving in Itasca; and Keith L. Kraft, the only judge without formal training as an attorney and listed as the only county judge left in Minnesota, serving Hubbard, Cass and Itasca counties.

State judges include: George H. Scott for associate justice to the supreme court; Lawrence R. Yetka for associate justice to the supreme court; Gary L. Crippen for court of appeals judge; Thomas Forsberg for court of appeals judge; Doris R. Leslie for court of appeals judge; Robert J. Nierengarten for court of appeals judge; and R.A. Randall for court of appeals judge.

STATE GOVERNMENT: A comparison between the results of the Minnesota primary and the primary in Thief River Falls showed little difference. The choices made in the NBC polling district, 4C, was even closer. Only two names were different. In the secretary of state race 4C voters chose Myron Nysether (IR) over the state's choice of Don Koenig (IR); and, in the state auditor race 4C voters chose Al Hanson (DFL) over the state's choice of John Dooley (DFL).

The following candidates will be running for office on the state ballot: United States representative, district 7, Collin Peterson, Arlan Stangeland (IR) and John Hall (Citizens party).

State Senator, district 1, LeRoy Stumpf (DFL) and Jim Butler (IR).

State representative, district 1B, Wally Sparby (DFL).

DIABETES AND THE EYE

Diabetes is a very complex disease. In addition to the elevated blood sugar levels, diabetes can cause many other alterations in our body chemistry.

There is also a tendency to accelerated "hardening of the arteries", a process which plugs blood vessels and leads to problems with the heart, kidneys, - and the eyes.

The occurence and severity of diabetic eye complications varies greatly from patient to patient. One diabetic may have severe problems after only a few years, where the next may get by for many years without complications. After having diabetes for twenty years, about 75% of patients will have eye problems.

The eye complications are termed "diabetic retinopathy", because the problems occur in the retina, inside the eye. The blockage of small blood vessels in the retina causes hemorrhages and swelling of the retina, which blurs vision. In later stages, massive hemorrhages inside the eye may occur, and the retina can be pulled of by scar tissue, causing a blinding retinal detachment.

Before the introduction of laser therapy, little could be done about diabetic retinopathy. Now, most blindness can be prevented, particularly if complications are recognized and treated early. Laser treatments "cauterize" the retina and dry up damaged, leaking blood vessels. Advanced cases may require vitreous or retina surgery. Its very important for all diabetics to have their eyes checked yearly, even if their vision seems normal, to detect diabetic retinopathy before it affects their vision.

Yes, it really happened. Six employees of the American Legion club in Red Lake Falls, dressed in their Martian suits to celebrate Halloween with the patrons, parked their bus and went inside to go to work. For some unknown reason, the bus remained parked for a short time, then began to roll down the hill, narrowly missing two pedestrians in its path, striking a city light pole with enough force to shear it off, and coming to rest in a stand of trees about 150 feet from the Legion club after climbing the curb and crossing the sidewalk.

Are we imagining magical forces at work here? Sheriff Kermit Knutson stated that no person was involved in the release of the breaks on the bus and the incident was "definetly not a Halloween prank." A bewitched bus? Why not? Certainly stranger things have been known to happen on Halloween night? Why not, indeed?

TRF Woman Dies At Wheel Of Car Friday Morning

Yvonne Marie Altendorf, 35, route 2, Thief River Falls, died while at the wheel of her gold-colored 1974 Plymouth Friday morning in Thief River Falls. Thief River Falls Law enforcement center is still waiting for the cause of death to be determined.

According to the law enforcement center, Altendorf's car entered Fourth Street at Atlantic heading west, then angled toward the north curb, bouncing over the curb and striking a 1978 Ford pickup owned by Roger Konickson of Plummer. Konickson reportedly had to jump out of the way to avoid being hit. The Altendorf vehicle continued across the south lawn of the Heritage community center bouncing over sidewalks and a rockpile on the west side of the center and then crossed Horace avenue and into the parking lot where it struck two more vehicles before coming to a stop.

Altendorf's five-year-old daughter was a passenger in the car but was uninjured. The Altendorf car was a total loss.

The Konickson pickup sustained $400 damage. The second vehicle a 1979 Ford pickup struck was owned by David Pierson of Thief River Falls. About $1,000 in damages were estimated for the Pierson pickup. The third vehicle, a 1977 Dodge Grand, was owned by James Hoks of Thief River Falls. About $300 damage was reported to the Hoks car.

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Veterans Day Nov. 11

Minnesota American Legion provides the following comments about the observance of Veterans Day which is only a short time away on November 11:

On Veterans Day, November 11, this nation pauses to recognize the services performed by a very special group of men and women.

Recent events have reemphasized just what it means to be a veteran . . . and to have served our nation and our flag with pride and honor.

The veterans of today are living examples of the type of service which brought our nation into being and preserved it to this day. For more than 200 years, whenever the forces of tyranny and subjugation threatened, gallant citizens have answered our nation's call. In prosperous times and in desperate days, there always have been those in the United States to risk all they had for what we all hold dear.

They answered the call. They served with honor. They kept faith with us. On this day set aside for their recognition, we have the chance to reaffirm our dedication to the principles they have helped to preserve.

Their service has been in keeping with the best traditions established in this nation more than 200 years ago, when the first generation of this country's veterans set down the tradition of the citizen soldiers defending unto death the principles of justice, freedom, and democracy.

America's veterans have fought for that still-elusive objective — the end of all wars. They fought against the recklessness of the few who would try to subject their brand of tyranny on the multitudes. Their sacrifices have not been merely to defend our nation's shores, but to champion the cause of freedom and individual dignity wherever it was threatened.

Today, there are men and women serving in the uniform of our country, stationed in outposts around the world, working to help assure that their sons and daughters may enjoy a world of peace. They will give, as today's veterans have given, until their job is complete.

Veterans — today's and tomorrow's — are the mortar that holds the foundation of our country together.

Let's look back for a moment to consider that cold, tired, hungry soldier of our nation's infancy. What would he say if he could talk to us today?

Could it be that he would begin by saying this is no time to consider reducing our commitment to maintain peace through strength? For — even in 1776 — there were voices of doubt, crying for the citizen soldier to give up his musket for a plow. But — he didn't heed those cries, not as long as his liberty was in jeopardy.

History has confirmed the wisdom of his resolute action. And the spirit of that first veteran must guide us today, no matter what the well-intentioned but misinformed may protest.

We need only to consider the news of the world today, delivered to us as free men and women by a press which is not restricted by government fiat, that we must be prepared to protect ourselves.

There are those which will call it "saber rattling," but the real enemies of peace and freedom will see it as a deterrent to waging war against us.

Today's veterans also know that their service goes beyond support of this country's efforts to maintain a positon of strength in the family of nations. Today, they make up the "home team" within the community where they continue to serve the many needs of mankind.

On this very special day we pause to salute the veterans — men and women — of our nation — and our community — for their continued dedication of service in the finest tradition of America.

Lying Is Bad Business

Following editorial is from the Duluth News-Tribune and Herald:

When the Allies in World War II planned to invade the European continent, they plotted to deceive the Germans into thinking they would land at Calais, the northern French port closest to the point of embarkation across the channel from England.

On D-Day, of course, the invasion came at Normandy, a more distant point thought unlikely by Germany as a site for the attack, especially after its intelligence had received so many false signals. Call them lies.

Why dredge up all this history now? The Reagan administration is being criticized from several quarters for putting out information recently that the U.S. was going to bomb Libya again when it had no intention of doing so.

Almost anything goes in time of war, such as putting out false information to the Germans before D-Day, but we are not at war with Libya — at least not in a declared sense. Throwing the population of a foreign country into fear by saying an attack is imminent is not something we associate with right in America.

And further, what effect might the dissemination of such disinformation have on our relations with other countries, especially those that are marginal allies but certainly not enemies? When will we lie to them?

A policy of lying is a bad business.

The Askin' Season

Following editorial is from the Iowa Farm Bureau publication and is particularly pertinent in this area at this time:

It's getting close, that season which for many people is the best time of the year, the hunting season. Some people hunt for birds and animals, others for nuts, fall flowers and weeds.

It makes no difference whether people go hunting with a gun, camera, bow or basket; they have an obligation in common. They should ask permission early.

That's why this time of year could also be called the "Askin' Season." If people have not done so already, now is the time to ask permission to tromp through someone's woods and fields. Ask landowners about their rules.

For instance, landowners want their fences straightened after people climb over them. They don't want fences cut.

They want people to carry their debris home with them, and that includes bottles, candy wrappers and other garbage so many people throw into the ditches.

Landowners want gates left the way they are found. That means if they are open, leave them that way. If they are closed and you open a gate to go through it, close it behind you.

Ask permission before removing found artifacts. One lady refused permission to everyone to use her land after someone stole a rusty cast iron hitching post. Many other farms are closed to hunters today because of missing log chains, tools, fence posts and other items.

Yes, there are going to be many people, men and women, boys and girls, out tromping the fields and forests this fall. They are going to have the opportunity to develop new friendships among the landowners.

Take the time now to be among the majority who will be welcomed back in future years. Ask landowners now for permission to hunt. Learn the boundaries of the land being hunted. Treat the land as if it were your own yard. And when you are done for the day stop and say, "Thanks," to the landowner. Such courtesy will be appreciated.

Asking For Trouble

Following editorial is from the Omaha World-Herald:

Any drinker who puts his trust in a "breath buster" mouthwash to protect himself from being charged with drunken driving is asking for trouble.

The idea of a super mouthwash, powerful enough to consistently fool a breath-analysis test for alcohol, is no doubt appealing to some people who make a practice of drinking and driving. But there's not much of a future in it for drinking drivers.

For one thing, informal tests of one such product sold in some bars in the Omaha area have been inconclusive. That shouldn't be surprising. A breath test measures the amount of alcohol thrown off through the lungs when a person exhales. At best, any effect of a mouthwash would be temporary.

For another thing, a drunk with sweet-smelling breath is just as dangerous behind the wheel as a drunk whose breath smells like a brewery. Perhaps even more dangerous. If using a breath buster gives a person the feeling that he doesn't need to worry about being asked to blow up a balloon, he might be tempted to have one more drink for the road. He might be inclined to take fewer precautions once he gets in the driver's seat.

The tooth fairy doesn't exist. There is no pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. The Big Rock Candy Mountain is a figment of somebody's imagination. The same is true of the idea that it is possible to drink excessively and, using a wonder product, avoid the consequences.

Excessive drinking causes intoxication, and the only responsible way of avoiding the consequences of that is to exercise moderation.

Borrowed Nonsense

Where else but in America would a person purchase a golf cart to pursue a game taken up to provide exercise?

Purposeful Classified: "Young farmer with newly purchased land wants to meet young lady with tractor. Please send picture of tractor."

A Sunday school teacher asked her young class if anyone knew where God lives. "He lives in our bathroom," one youngster volunteered. The teacher was incredulous and asked why that answer was given. SIZABLE DONATION to the Heritage Center was given by the Thief River Falls Eagles club at their meeting Tuesday evening. Newly-elected Eagles president, Melvin Johnson, is shown presenting a check for $5,000 to Morris Howick, making a grand total of $15,000 donated to the Heritage Center by the Eagles club since 1965. Johnson said the money is raised through charitable gambling, earmarked to be used for community improvements, and "the Heritage Center is a good place to give it."

Grain Elevator Failures: A Matter of Record

The problem of the possible failure of the local grain elevator is just one of many problems Minnesota farmers face. However, as the grain harvest winds down it might be helpful to review Minnesota's Grain Storage Act and Grain Buyers Act. These laws provide some protection for grain producers, although it is essential that certain conditions be met.

The key provision of each of these laws is the requirement that grain dealers and grain elevators be licensed and post a surety bond with the Minnesota Department of Agriculture under which the surety promises to pay farmers should something happen to their grain. Two types of surety bonds are required. One covers the storage of grain and the other covers the dealer's or elevator's failur to pay for grain purchased from the farmer.

For protection under the "storage bond," a producer must be able to provide evidence that his grain was in storage. The law specifies that evidence is a warehouse receipt or a scale ticket marked "storage." In the event of a grain elevator failure, if that evidence is not available a farmer cannot seek restitution under the bond and his claim would be treated the same as any other unsecured creditor in any bankruptcy proceeding.

Producers intending to store grain rather than sell must take the steps necessary under the law to document that status. Remember that the law requires all grain elevators to issue a scale ticket for each load of grain received. The ticket must state whether the grain is received on contract, for storage, for shipment or for sale. As such, a producer intending to store grain should be certain he receives a properly marked scale ticket. If it isn't marked "storage," the law assumes that the grain was sold at the time of delivery.

In addition, the law does not specify when an elevator must issue a warehouse receipt following the issuance of a scale ticket. Farmers should be certain to verify their records and insist that a warehouse receipt be issued as soon as practical.

While there is a buyer's bond requirement, grain sellers are not nearly as well protected as producers intending to store grain. Under a sale transaction, title to the grain transfers to the elevator or buyer at the time the grain is delivered. If a farmer is not paid for the grain, he not only has no title to the grain, but no scale ticket or warehouse receipt either. In the event of a bankruptcy he similarly would be an unsecured creditor and would have to stand in line until all secured creditors have been paid.

The grain buyer's bond only assures payment for a "cash sale of grain." When you make a cash sale on a single shipment of grain, you must be paid at least 80 per cent of the local market value of the grain by the close of the following business day. On multi-shipments, you must be paid within ten days after the initial shipment or within 48 hours after completion of the last shipment.

Any sale transaction that is not a cash sale is considered a voluntary extension of credit and is not afforded protection under the Grain Buyers Bond. This concept includes any arrangement in which immediate payment is not contemplated. The law does require all credit contracts to be in writing and requires an elevator (or any licensed grain buyer) to maintain in storage or other assets an amount equal in value to at least 90 per cent of what it owes in voluntary extension of credit contracts. However, these requirements are no assurance that a failed elevator will be able to honor those credit agreements. Farmers should be aware that in any arrangement other than a cash sale they are relying solely on the elevator to pay in accordance with its contractual agreement.

Claims against either type of surety bond must be filed with the Department of Agriculture within 180 days of the loss. Claims for storage should be documented by a copy of your warehouse receipt or scale ticket. If the transaction is a cash sale, evidence should be presented to support the claim that the sale was intended to be a cash sale, rather than a voluntary extension of credit.

Any questions about your rights or about the duties and obligations of your local grain elevators can be directed either to the Department of Agriculture's Warehouse Division, (612) 341-7190; or to the Attorney General's Agriculture Division, (612) 297-1548.

Fatal Plane Crash

International Falls — Federal investigators have ruled out weather and engine malfunction as causes of an airplane crash October 25 near Rainy Lake that killed two men. Pilot Clarence F. LaBlanc, 49, South International Falls, and passenger Dale N. Holt, 32, rural International Falls, died when the plane crashed about four miles east of International Falls. Eye witnesses said the plane circled Holt's home twice then banked and fell toward the ground. A final report on the incident is not expected for about a year, according to an investigator from the Federal Aviation administration and a representative of Piper aircraft of Lock Haven, PA.

Lots Of Bouncing Boys

Karlstad — Tri County junior high school will create an additional basketball team for the 1986-87 season, announced the board of education, if funding for the coach's salary can be found. Eric Heath, B squad coach, said that he expects as many as 25 to 30 boys to join the squad this season, and the best solution of what to do with the record number of boys seeking to play basketball is to create a ninth grade squad to play its own schedule.

Skol

Alvarado — Liquor is finally being served legally in the city of Alvarado. On the third try, Alvarado voters finally okayed the serving of liquor at the September 9 election with a vote of 95 to 78. The issue had been defeated in the 80-year-old community twice before.

New Nursing Director

Roseau — Deb Wedger has been named Director of Nursing for long term care at Sheltering Oaks and Skilled Care. She had been assistant director of nurses since coming to Roseau in 1985. Wedger is originally from Gully, but made her home in Thief River Falls for 13 years before moving to Roseau. She was employed at Oakland Park nursing home here for 10 years, and received her nurses aid and registered nursing training at the Thief River Falls AVTI and Northland community college.

Mystery Person

Karlstad — The city of Karlstad will have a "Mystery Person"; contest with different clues available at business places around town. Correct guesses on each of three mystery person contests will be eligible for a drawing for 50 Karlstad Bonus Bucks, with all winning contestants entered in the grand finale drawing for 200 Bonus Bucks on Santa Claus Saturday, December 13.

Sticky Situation

Warroad — Christian Brothers hockey sticks will soon be sold in Japan, it was announced recently. Last week the Japanese distributor visited the Warroad plant to get acquainted with the people and product he will soon be representing. It is estimated that the Japanese distributor will have a market for a least 60,000 sticks a year.

Lucky Spot

Hallock — A Hallock resident was the victim of an accidental shotgun blast October 26. John Deere, 29, was hunting ruffed grouse with his family when he apparently tripped, causing his gun to discharge and strike him in the left shoulder. As luck would have it, the group was hunting across the road from the Bud Larter farm, where Dr. Roland Larter was a visitor, so the wound was treated and Deere transported to the Kittson Memorial hospital for surgery. Deere's wife, Rhonda, said "The shotgun pellets apparently missed the major arteries and didn't break any bones."

Super-Sharing

Kennedy — The Kennedy superintendent of schools has announced his retirement in July of 1988, and recommended that the school board consider sharing a superintendent with the Hallock school district. The board will be looking into the feasibility of super-sharing.

No Way

Red Lake Falls — The Red Lake Falls county auditor disagreed with a statement made by state auditor Arne Carlson that Red Lake county is one of six in the state that is in such poor financial condition it may have trouble paying bills next year. Carlson made the statement in connection with the proposing of a $20 million financial pool to aid "stressed counties." Kankel said, "If, indeed, any county can't pay its bills, it won't be Red Lake County." Other counties included in the reported as "stressed counties" were St. Louis, Lake, Big Stone, Itasca and Cass.

Ouch

Greenbush — Keith Kilen of rural Greenbush was injured October 27 when the handyman jack he was using to hook a cattle feeder up to his pickup slipped and struck him in the head. He was admitted for treatment at the Greenbush Community hospital and released the next day to recuperate at home.

Scratch That

Roseau — Milt Anderson, the mayor of Roseau, has filed for his fifth term in that position and then decided not to seek reelection. He said, "Eight years is a long time to be the mayor of a city. The Council needs new blood in the mayor's position." Since his is the only name on the ballot, citizens of Roseau are being urged to write in the candidate of their choice this year.

New Owners

Fertile — The Fertile Journal will have new owners, effective November 1. Michael and Myrna Moore of Fertile have purchased the newspaper from David and Candace Evans. The Moores have been active in the community since 1975. Both are North Dakota natives.

Warroad TV Stars

Warroad — Two of Warroad's well-known Olympic hockey stars, Bill Christian and his son, David, will be featured on the WTBS television program, "Portrait of America" November 2. Subsequent showings will be November 13 at 7:05 p.m.; November 20 at 11:20 p.m.; and November 21 at 9:20 p.m. The program, narrated by Hal Holbrook, will feature great things in the state of Minnesota. The Warroad portion will feature the youth hockey program and the Christians' involvement in it.

Good Advice

Crookston — "Be honest and straight-forward, and take time to help" is the advice given to working women by Marian Normandin, Crookston Woman of the Year, who was chosen out of 16 finalists by the Business and Professional Women club of Crookston. She is a secretary for MetaDynamics, a consulting firm, and was secretary for Northwest Regional Development Commission and Aging Advisory Committee for Region I.

Tough Job

Greenbush — A former Greenbush resident was one of several fire fighters who were involved in rescue attempts in the Minneapolis duplex fire that claimed eight lives October 25. In addition to the eight fatalities, nine people were injured. Kevin Rousseau is a rookie fireman with the city of Minneapolis, and was active in getting people out of the blazing building.

Lots Of Miles

Karlstad — 52 walkers covered 490 and one half miles on the first annual Karlstad community walk October 19. The walk was held to benefit Pathways Bible Camps and Valley Group home, and raised total pledges of $2,659.26. One of the youngest "walkers" was Nicholas Anderson, who rode in a baby carriage while his parents and grandparents walked in the community endeavor.

Good Going

Karlstad — Karlstad Aerie of the Eagles recently donated $1,000 to the Karlstad high school baseball improvement fund as part of the Eagles People Helping People program. The donation will be used to complete payment of new dugouts at the school baseball diamond. As a part of the same project, the Eagles also donated $500 to the Karlstad Tiny tot program.

SOME FOUND IT FUN, while some found it strange and uncomfortable. Children at Sue Krause's day care center in Thief River Falls held their annual Halloween party Thursday morning. Pictured from left are: (front row) Cole Holthusen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Davis Holthusen; Mary Lasha, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lasha; Aaron Jensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kendall Jensen; Ben Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Johnson; Mitch Pribula, son of Mr. and Mrs. Greg Pribula; Jennifer Novak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Novak; (back row) Mary Lasha, co-owner; Lindsey Cedergren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Cedergren; Joey Pribula, son of Mr. and Mrs. Greg Pribula; Kylie Rogalla, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Rogalla; Joshua Jensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kendall Jensen; Carson Comstock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Comstock; and Sue Krause.

Tough It Out

Indus — Indus high school hockey team will go it alone this year, deciding to keep its own hockey program instead of affiliating with Lake of the Woods, Littlefork or International Falls high schools or split the Indus school district in two. The hockey team will have 12 to 14 players this season, but will face problems in the future with high school enrollment dropping in the city, said hockey committee chairman, Dave Imes. The decision to continue the hockey program was made by a committee set up to assess and plan the future of the Indus school. Imes said, "The feeling seemed to be that if we lose our hockey program, we will lose the whole school."

Spare Time Signs

Crookston — Bob Janorschke, Jr. is a counselor at the Crookston corrections center, but his spare time is spent making signs. His newest creation is a solid redwood, 410-pound sign for the mental health center. Janorschke estimates he spent 125 hours working on the sign, which is hand crafted and specially treated to resist weathering.

EARNIE AND BEATNIK. Aaron Jensen and Ben Johnson weren't too sure what to make of the strange costumes and goings on. They probably got their first clue when the children at Sue's day care center in Thief River Falls were fed "owl eyes and cow juice" for breakfast.

Pioneers' Defense Stops Red Raiders For State Playoff Berth...

Northland Beats Brainerd 10-7 For First Division Title

Northland's offense put the Pioneers in position to win its first-ever Northwest Division football title a week earlier with a big-play effort that beat the University of Minnesota-Crookston 23-20. But it was Northland's defense that won the crown Thursday by smothering numerous Brainerd scoring opportunities in securing a 10-7 community college victory at Thief River Falls' Prowler Field.

It was Northland's first win over Brainerd in 11 tries, completing a three-game 1986 sweep of Northwest Division foes that qualifies the 5-3 Pioneers for the Minnesota Community College Conference state football playoff semifinals this week against Northeast Division champion Vermilion in Ely.

A strong wind and turnovers dictated the course of Thursday night's regular season final. Punts that went nowhere into the wind provided both teams — Brainerd in particular — great scoring opportunities, but defenses on both sides of the ball — Northland in particular — stonewalled both offenses. Five times the Pioneers stopped the Red Raiders without points after Brainerd had gained possession inside Northland territory, and six times altogether the Red Raiders came up pointless after possessions that had reached the Pioneers' 20, 20, 28, 28, 33 and 28-yard lines.

Play of the defense highlighted what was an otherwise less-than-exciting contest, despite a playoff berth that was at stake for the Pioneers.

"We didn't play with a lot of emotion," acknowledged Northland coach Rick Nelson, "but the defense did the job. They made one mistake that cost us seven points, but they came up with the big plays when we needed them."

Assistant coaches Paul Williams and Steve Bengston, who work with the defense, were certainly pleased with their troops.

"They've been playing well all year," offered Bengston. "There was a lot of griping about certain things earlier in the year, but we got that taken care of, and they have really come together as a unit."

"The defense had a so-so game against Crookston," explained Williams, remembering the 473 yards and 30 first downs the Pioneers surrendered to the rival Trojans. "We pushed them hard all week, and they came through for us tonight."

Northland forced five Brainerd turnovers to stop most of the Red Raiders' scoring threats. Steve Wiskow had two fumble recoveries, while Dean Zimmel had one, and both Mike Stennes and Chad Ekeberg came up with pass interceptions.

"We've been successful," pointed out Bengston, "when we've caused turnovers: interceptions and fumbles."

Wiskow and Stennes, both inside linebackers, plus defensive tackles Jeff Johnson and Anthony McCullough form the heart of the Northland defense, explained Bengston. "The defense is build around those four guys in the middle," he said.

"Jeff Johnson had a whale of a first half," Williams said, citing two fumbles that were caused by Johnson and recovered by his teammates.

It was a hit by Johnson, a 6-1, 240-pound sophomore from Thief River Falls, that forced the fumble recovered by Zimmel at the Brainerd 10-yard line in the first minute of the second quarter. Three plays later halfback Steve Ristau went off left tackle from two yards out for a 6-0 Northland lead. Ron Dass added the conversion kick with 13:09 remaining in the first half.

That was the first of four Northland second quarter possessions with the gusty wind at the Pioneers' back. The next two possessions ended with Dass missing 41 and 38-yard field goal attempts, but his third try provided what proved to be the game-winning points when the sophomore from Ely connected on a 23-yard attempt with just nine seconds left for a 10-0 cushion.

The field goal capped a 10-play drive that started at the Northland 29 with 2:05 to play. Ristau broke loose on a 13-yard run around the left side to start it; quarterback Scott Willoughby hit wide receiver Dean Brandon with a 21-yard pass completion; found Brandon again on an 11-yard play; and connected with Scott Groven on a 16-yarder to the Brainerd 10-yard line to set up the field goal.

While missing those numerous scoring opportunities from closer in, Brainerd struck from long range to make it a suddenly close 10-7 game when quarterback Tom Doubler went over the middle on a 48-yard touchdown pass to Scott Tryggeseth with 4:17 remaining in the third quarter. The receiver caught the ball between Ekeberg and Mike Zelinski and sprinted untouched into the end zone. John Tibbetts made the conversion kick.

Brainerd had two fourth quarter shots at a win or a tie, but Stennes, a 6-1, 210-pound sophomore from Erskine, stopped a 14-play Red Raider drive into the wind with an interception at the Northland 28 with 5:55 remaining; and after Willoughby failed to pick up a first down on a fourth-and-two bootleg at the Brainerd 39 with 2:34 left, Ekeberg killed the last-chance Brainerd hopes with an interception at the Northland 22 with 1:57 to play. It was the ninth interception of the season for the 5-11, 180-pound sophomore from McIntosh.

"It wasn't real exciting," admitted Nelson, "but the kids gutted it out."

Kickoff time for the Northland-Vermilion playoff game has been set for 1 p.m. Saturday.

RUNNING BEHIND blockers Grant Grabanski (88) and Greg Bieganek (74), Thief River Falls wide receiver Scott Groven (9) was turned into a ball carrier on a reverse in the second quarter of Thursday's community college football game against Brainerd in Thief River Falls. Groven, who picked up 16 yards on the same play earlier in the game, lost one yard this time. The Pioneers beat the Red Raiders 10-7.

Congratulations go out to the Northland Community College Pioneers following their 10-7 Thursday night victory over Brainerd that clinched a Northwest Division football title for the winners.

Head coach Rick Nelson, assistant coaches Paul Williams, Kevin Schuman and Steve Bengtson and the entire squad are to be complimented on a fine 1986 season.

A 5-3 regular season record is the best finish ever for the Pioneers, who never won more than three games in 10 previous years of intercollegiate football. They won only three games combined over the past four years, including back-to-back 1-7 finishes in 1984 and 1985 under Nelson.

Considering past results, the 5-3 record is quite an accomplishment. And the Pioneers weren't that far from a 6-2, 7-1 or even 8-0 season. They lost a narrow 16-13 decision to Itasca, blew an early lead in a 40-20 defeat at the hands of Vermilion and played poorly in a 29-6 loss to Hibbing, a team Northland certainly should have beaten. At the same time, the 5-3 record could have gone to 2-6 since they came up with narrow wins over the Moorhead State University junior varsity 14-13, University of Minnesota-Crookston 23-20 and Brainerd 10-7.

It's been an interesting season for the Pioneers, who will take on Vermilion Saturday at 1 p.m. in Ely in the opening round semifinals of the Minnesota Community College Conference state football playoffs.

Vermilion was 7-0 and ranked No. 1 in the latest NJCAA Region 13 coaches' poll before the Ironmen stumbled in a regular season-ending 28-19 loss to Itasca Thursday night.

The Northeast Division champion Ironmen rate as the favorite over the Northwest Division champion Pioneers based upon the outcome of the Oct. 4 game played in Thief River Falls, and the fact Northland will be on the road for the playoff game.

Northland didn't play a particularly outstanding game, especially offensively, in beating Brainerd, but still came out a winner. One of the lone bright spots on offense was the play of Thief River Falls sophomore wide receiver Dean Brandon, who caught four passes — most in key situations — for 51 yards. Brandon often plays in the shadow of fellow wide receiver Scott Groven, a sophomore from Goodridge, but Thursday he was the game's top receiver.

The wind certainly affected play. Northland's Deon Schmidt, for example, had punts that traveled 18, 5, 4 and 9 yards into the stiff breeze, and punted once with the wind at his back when he got off a 57-yarder. Brainerd's John Tibbetts punted 14 and 22 yards into the wind and 44 yards with it.

Northland will have to play better Saturday to beat Vermilion, but don't sell the Pioneers short. They could pull off an upset and make it to the state title game a week later against the winner of the Southern and Central division champion match-up. North Hennepin, like Northland, will be a first-time playoff participant as Central Division champion. Rochester is a frequent playoff qualifier and reigns as Southern Division champion.

North Sub-Region 8AA Volleyball Finals . . .

Spuds Sweep Prowlers 3-0

Moorhead overpowered Thief River Falls 15-2, 15-6, 15-6 Saturday in the finals of the 1986 North Sub-Region 8AA high school volleyball tournament.

The matchpup of the No. 1-seeded Spuds and No. 2-seeded Prowlers in the Moorhead High School gym was no contest.

"We expected a closer match," acknowledged disappointed Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson, "but Moorhead just has a solid volleyball team. They're really strong serving, and that (serve reception) is our weak point. Put 2-and-2 together, and that's what you end up with."

Serve reception was a problem all night, pointed out Anderson, especially in the 15-2 first game blowout. The Prowlers made a better showing in Games 2 and 3, she said, but it still wasn't enough to challenge the hard-hitting Spuds.

Moorhead will take a 23-4 overall record into the Region 8AA title match Saturday vs. the South Sub-Region 8AA winner, either Sauk Rapids or Rocori, at a neutral site. Thief River Falls finished the year at 17-5.

The Prowlers reached the North Sub-Region 8AA finals by beating No. 3-seeded Detroit Lakes 15-6, 16-14, 15-8, in a Thursday night semifinal match at Moorhead. The Spuds swept No. 4-seeded Bemidji 15-7, 15-5, 15-2 in the other semifinal that night.

Stephanie Benson was named Thief River Falls Player of the Night award winner for her efforts against Detroit Lakes, said Anderson. "She had a very nice night blocking and spiking," noted Anderson, who also cited the strong net performance turned in Vikki Weigand and a solid setting job by Bekah Bortnem.

"We were in control," mentioned Anderson. "The kids did a nice job."

Bortnem had 11 service points for the Prowlers against the Lakers, with Benson contributing 8.

Lakers Beat TRF Swimmers

Detroit Lakes, beaten by Thief River Falls 106-65 earlier this fall, turned the tables on the Prowlers Friday when the Lakers emerged a 47-36 winner in a girls high school swim dual.

It was the final regular season meet for the Prowlers, who went 7-2 in dual meet competition this year. The only other loss was a 95-77 setback at the hands of a strong Fergus Falls team October 21. Thief River Falls started the year 7-0 in dual meet competition.

Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney warned beforehand that Detroit Lakes' smaller five-lane pool would change the complextion of the Prowlers--Lakers meeting. Swimming in Thief River Falls' six-lane pool in their first meeting, the Prowlers' depth was a big point-producer. That depth was removed Friday, and with just three first place finishes, the Prowlers weren't able to keep pace with the Lakers' small, but talented group of individuals.

For the Prowlers, Marci Turenne won the 100-yard butterfly in 1:12.25; Gayle Borchert took the 100-yard breaststroke in 1:19.64; and Borchert, Marci Turenne, Michelle Turenne and Heidi Tofte captured the 200-yard medley relay in 2:09.66.

Three Prowlers turned in career personal bests during the meet, including Christy Puetz in the 50-yard freestyle; Laura Beito in the 100-yard backstroke; and Pete Kuyath on her leg of the 200-yard medley relay.

Thief River Falls qualifiers will compete in the 1986 Section 8 swim meet Friday and Saturday at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks.

TWO NORTHLAND Community College defenders, Kari Klamar (4) and Angie Enerson (15), went up to block a shot by Brainerd's Roxanne Tetrick during Saturday's Northwest Division volleyball match in Thief River Falls. The Red Raiders swept the Pioneers 3-0.

Red Raiders Beat Northland . . .

Brainerd Wins 3-0 Volleyball Decision

Brainerd breezed to a 15-6 victory in Game 1, but the Red Raiders had to work for 15-12, 18-16 wins in Games 2 and 3 before going home with a 3-0 community college volleyball sweep over Northland Saturday morning in Thie River Falls.

It was the final home appearance of the 1986 season for the Pioneers, who finish the schedule Wednesday at the University of Minnesota-Crookston. The Red Raiders close out the season against Fergus Falls. The Spartans and Trojans are both 4-1 in the Northwest Division and assured of state meet berths, while Northland and Brainerd, after splitting a pair of matches this fall, are both 1-4.

"I told them (Pioneers) to go out and have some fun," explained Northland coach Deb Jacobson in describing her pre-match address to a team that has struggled throughout the second half of the year. It's been a month, she said, since the Pioneers have had a practice session that featured the entire team. The absences, for a variety of reasons, have taken their toll on the team's record, and the coach, who is completing her 13th year at the Northland helm. "It's been one of those years," she acknowledged. "It must be the unlucky 13, or something."

Brainerd, beaten 3-2 by Northland back on October 8, appeared headed for an easy three-game sweep with a 9-1 lead in Game 2. That's when Northland began to show a little spark, though, pulling within 10-9 on a kill spike by Greenbush sophomore Julie Berganev and a point-producing block by Grygla freshman Kari Klamar.

Northland stayed within 13-12 when Roseau freshman Sharman Monkman came off the bench for a string of service line points and Erskine freshman Angie Enerson put away a spike to make it a one-point game.

But Brainerd closed it out behind the hard-hitting of 5-11 Hinckley freshman Carla Mettling, winning it on a Mettling kill spike.

Game 3 provided the kind of action that would draw fans to volleyball. Both sides made mistakes, but made up for them with all-out hustle and a number of outstanding individual efforts through numerous long rallies.

Northland made it interesting by staving off defeat for some 15 minutes after facing a 14-7 deficit. The Pioneers pulled within 14-11 after a spike by Klamar, lost service, but regained it immediately and tied it 14-14, first on a tap by Newfolden freshman Patty Odberg, then on two outstanding plays by Red Lake Falls freshman Janell DeHaan, who won a 2-on-1 confrontation at the net for the 13th point and stayed with a ricocet off the rafters to set up the 14th point.

Mettling put Brainerd ahead 15-14 on a kill spike, but Northland tied it again at 15-15 on a tap by Newfolden freshman Becky Knutson.

Both sides then went through two service rotations without scoring. Brainerd grabbed a 16-15 lead when Terri Larson and Sheila Bowen came up with a double-block on Klamar, but the next serve was long, and Knutson's ace tied it at 16-16.

A kill by Larson broke Knutson's serve, giving the Red Raiders the edge, and they collected points 17 and 18 on mis-handled hits by the Pioneers.

"It was a typical Northland match," explained Jacobson. "We started slow, but we came back at the end. It was a little disorganized at times, but that's what happens when you don't come to practice."

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls Water Utility announces that the state maximum allowable limit for turbidity was exceeded for the month of October 1986.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand, or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity level has not created any health hazards because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

Please be assured that the water is safe to drink. The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with state health department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lamm, water department supervisor, at 681-3809.

Card of Thanks
I wish to thank all relatives, friends and neighbors who have brought food, gifts and flowers to our house during this time that I have been disabled. Your kind acts have been greatly appreciated. May God richly bless you all.

In Memoriam
In loving memory of my dear son, Bud McEnelly who passed away Nov. 3, 1978.

Though his smile is gone forever,
And his hand we cannot touch,
Still we have so many memories of the one we loved so much.
His memory is a keepsake with which we will never part.
And we will always have him,
very deep within our hearts.

Sadly missed by his mother, Selma Anderson and sister Betty. 1t86p

5-Day Stop Smoking Clinic To Be Held At TRF Hospital

Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls will be the location of a five-day stop smoking clinic to help a person break free from the tobacco habit beginning 7 p.m. November 17.

"The best way to help a person break free from the tobacco habit is to educate him in dealing with stresses and difficult social situations," said Dr. Leo Herber, program director. "This five-day plan is very much oriented toward teaching people how to live, not just how to give up the smoking habit. It teaches concepts of self-worth and stress-management strategies."

Each day of the clinic has a special emphasis, according to the directors of the plan. This first concept area is support. "It is very difficult to people to change, and support is needed in the quitting process," Dr. Herber said.

The second area is health awareness. "Rather than showing them how bad smoking is, we are going to show them how nicely the body works," he says. "Then there are the substitution strategies. These are the nuts and bolts, the gimmicks, if you wish to call them that, of helping a person to quit, and changing a habit," he continues.

Personal growth and development is the fourth area. "This five-day plan has the tools to help a person really be successful in his spiritual and emotional growth." Concept five deals with motivation and how to be successful. And lastly, "we emphasize spiritual growth and development," Dr. Herber said. "There are two or three Bible texts which a person can claim as promises for God's help."

The five-day plan, beginning November 17, 1986 and running through November 21, 1986 will meet in the basement meeting rooms at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls. This program is sponsored by Northwest Medical center, the Falls Clinic division of Dakota Clinic Limited, Northwest Radiology associates and the Ramsay Eye clinic. It has been developed and is conducted by the Seventh Day Adventist church. For more information on this program, or to register, call Gail Holland at Northwest Medical center, 681-4240, ext. 210. Cost for participants will be: 1 person-$15, two from one family-$25, and three from one family-$30.

Local Breeder Of Polled Herefords Receives Award

Stanley Hruby of Goodridge, is the owner of a Polled Hereford cow which has been named a Benchmark Dam by the American Polled Hereford association. This cow is one of 748 elite dams winning this award given by the APHA to the breed's most efficient and consistent producing females.

Their are 363 owners represented by the listing, which also includes 376 first-time Benchmark dams. The number of Benchmark dams honored is up nine per cent over 1985. Dr. Jim Gibb, APHA director of education and research said, "This increase speaks well of the greater commitment of Polled Hereford breeders to the guide lines performance programs and to the production of the right kind of Polled Hereford females. These Benchmark dams have proven themselves to be problem-free, working cows that will produce the kind of bulls in demand by commercial customers."

To qualify for the award, each cow must have had at least three calves, with weaning weights for all her calves recorded in the APHA's guide lines program. Her calves' weaning ratios must also rank her in the top 25 per cent of her owner's herd, she must have had her first calf prior to turning 25 months old, and have had an average calving interval no longer than 365 days.

Good Turnouts And Surprises Seen In Area City Elections

City elections were held around the Times region Tuesday with some interesting results in at least one community. While Viking may have had only 44 votes cast, the race for Mayor was close — one vote close.

Amy Hjelle, city clerk who ran unopposed and collected 44 votes, considered the election turnout pretty fair. She said that a funeral on election day might have turned away some voters but otherwise it was a pretty fair turnout. In the race for Mayor of Viking no one officially filed, but it turned into a race. The incumbent mayor, Lloyd Ranum, won the election with 14 votes while write-in Arnold Weleski was only one vote behind. Other write-in candidates who accumulated one-vote-or-more included: Richard Ness, 3; Wayne Peters, 2; Matthew Havumaki, 1; Donna Sustad, 1; Kenneth Vanderport, 1; and John Gustafson, 1. Eight write-in names were left blank.

In Goodridge where several candidates filed officially there were 70 votes cast. In the mayoral race, Dr. David Brown, with 41 votes, won over challenger John Cullen, who ended up with 29 votes. In the city council race where four candidates filed for the two positions, two each seat, Carl Elg

Close Election Contests Materialize In Counties

Expected close races in Tuesday's general election materialized in a number of cases in [illegible]ngton and Marshall counties and in the Seventh Congressional District. Voters turned out in good numbers in Pennington and Marshall while Red Lake county -- with only one write-in candidate disturbing a slate of unopposed incumbents -- was a sea of tranquility amidst area election turmoil.

With 925 of 926 precincts reporting in the Seventh Congressional District, Congressman Arlan Stangeland was clinging to office by gnawed fingernails over challenger Collin Peterson. Unofficial tabulation showed Stangeland with 93,546 votes and Peterson with 93,335 votes — a margin of only 211 votes. Last election Stangeland swamped Peterson with 57 per cent of the vote to 43 per cent for Peterson. A recount this time around is expected.

In Pennington county two races resulted in extremely close decisions. Vickie Bjorgaard edged Leo Nelson for the county treasurer seat being vacated by Ellsworth Jorgenson 2,840 to 2,731, a margin of only 109 votes. County attorney Dave Olin won reelection over John Novacek with a 103-vote margin, 2,837 to 2,734.

For county sheriff, Bob Wold had a more comfortable margin over Jim Haugen, 718 votes. Wold, a deputy sheriff for 12 years, polled 3,160 votes while Haugen, a Thief River Falls police patrolman, had 2,442.

In Marshall county, Roy Swanson rode the crest of a strong vote in Warren to shade Wayne Bendickson for county auditor-treasurer 2,812 to 2,547. They were seeking the position being vacated by Charles Cheney. Swanson trailed until the Warren results were released at mid morning today, but he carried his home town 664 to 368. Bendickson, formerly of Thief River Falls, is the Marshall county assessor.

For Marshall county recorder, Marion Halvorson polled 3,048 votes to defeat Dwight Peterson who had 2,385. And Dennis Brekke easily won reelection as sheriff over Bruce Erickson 3,418 to 2,073. Erickson is a son of former Marshall county sheriff Oscar Erickson.

In the fifth commissioner district of eastern Marshall county where former commissioner George Panek challenged incumbent Delray Larson, Panek received only 323 votes while Larson carried 14 of the 17 precincts to gain 748 votes. Panek carried Excel 70 to 62, Grand Plain 35 to 9 and Moylan 36 to 25 while Larson rolled up huge margins in Cedar 53-2, Como 20-3, Eckvoll 43-6, Espelie 20-2, Moose River 21-0, Rollis 77-1, Veldt 20-1 and Whiteford 27-2.

At latest report with returns believed to be complete, LeRoy Stumpf had won reelection handily over Jim Butler 14,142 to 5,906 in Senate District 1. In House District 1A, Jim Tunheim won reelection over Sheldon (Snooky) Erickson of Badger. Latest vote count in that race showed Tunheim with 6,869 and Erickson with 5,164. Rep. Wally Sparby was unopposed in District 1B.

In other Pennington county election activity, Eugene Prestegaard handily won reelection as county recorder over Ann Pluth Olson with 3,730 votes to 1,798 for the challenger. Unopposed candidates and their vote totals included Kenneth Olson, auditor, reelected with 5,745 votes, Donald Grabanski, second district commissioner, reelected with 810 votes; William Penning, fourth district commissioner, elected to succeed Otto Stenberg with 970 votes, and Dr. Richard Heinrichs, elected county coroner to succeed Dr. E. O.

NCC Theatre Will Switch Plays Due To Inavailability

Northland community college theatre director Roger Vaughan reports that the production of "The Nerd" by Larry Shue, originally scheduled for October 31 and November 1 and 2, was cancelled due to lack of availability of the show at this time.

Due to the popularity of Shue's play "The Foreigner," a production of "The Nerd" has been proposed for Broadway, and availability of the show for amateur leasing has been restricted totally in the United States, Vaughan said.

He has rescheduled Larry Shue's other play, "The Foreigner," to open Friday, November 14 at 8 p.m., with shows also scheduled for Saturday, November 15 at 8 p.m., and Sunday, November 16 at 3 p.m.

The same individuals who had originally been cast in "The Nerd" will appear in "The Foreigner" since both casts call for two women and five men.

Playwright-actor Larry Shue was killed in a plane crash recently making the three plays he has written high demand shows on season bills for college, university and community theatres in this country. Since the success of "The Foreigner," directors have been interested in Shue's other plays, but since the estate controls the rights to production, and "The Nerd" had never been produced on Broadway and since the New York production could be followed by road companies doing the show, it could easily be a year or more before the restriction on amateur rights may be lifted, Vaughan said.

5-Day Stop Smoking Clinic To Be Held At TRF Hospital

Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls will be the location of a five-day stop smoking clinic to help a person break free from the tobacco habit beginning 7 p.m. November 17.

"The best way to help a person break free from the tobacco habit is to educate him in dealing with stresses and difficult social situations," said Dr. Leo Herber, program director. "This five-day plan is very much oriented toward teaching people how to live, not just how to give up the smoking habit. It teaches concepts of self-worth and stress-management strategies."

Each day of the clinic has a special emphasis, according to the directors of the plan. This first concept area is support. "It is very difficult to people to change, and support is needed in the quitting process," Dr. Herber said.

The second area is health awareness. "Rather than showing them how bad smoking is, we are going to show them how nicely the body works," he says. "Then there are the substitution strategies. These are the nuts and bolts, the gimmicks, if you wish to call them that, of helping a person to quit, and changing a habit," he continues.

Personal growth and development is the fourth area. "This five-day plan has the tools to help a person really be successful in his spiritual and emotional growth." Concept five deals with motivation and how to be successful. And lastly, "we emphasize spiritual growth and development," Dr. Herber said. "There are two or three Bible texts which a person can claim as promises for God's help."

The five-day plan, beginning November 17, 1986 and running through November 21, 1986 will meet in the basement meeting rooms at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls. This program is sponsored by Northwest Medical center, the Falls Clinic division of Dakota Clinic Limited, Northwest Radiology associates and the Ramsay Eye clinic. It has been developed and is conducted by the Seventh Day Adventist church. For more information on this program, or to register, call Gail Holland at Northwest Medical center, 681-4240, ext. 210. Cost for participants will be: 1 person-$15, two from one family-$25, and three from one family-$30

Stanley Hruby of Goodridge, is the owner of a Polled Hereford cow which has been named a Benchmark Dam by the American Polled Hereford association. This cow is one of 748 elite dams winning this award given by the APHA to the breed's most efficient and consistent producing females.

Their are 363 owners represented by the listing, which also includes 376 first-time Benchmark dams. The number of Benchmark dams honored is up nine per cent over 1985. Dr. Jim Gibb, APHA director of education and research said, "This increase speaks well of the greater commitment of Polled Hereford breeders to the guide lines performance programs and to the production of the right kind of Polled Hereford females. These Benchmark dams have proven themselves to be problem-free, working cows that will produce the kind of bulls in demand by commercial customers."

To qualify for the award, each cow must have had at least three calves, with weaning weights for all her calves recorded in the APHA's guide lines program. Her calves' weaning ratios must also rank her in the top 25 per cent of her owner's herd, she must have had her first calf prior to turning 25 months old, and have had an average calving interval no longer than 365 days.

Close Election Contests Materialize In Counties

Expected close races in Tuesday's general election materialized in a number of cases in Pennington and Marshall counties and in the Seventh Congressional District. Voters turned out in good numbers in Pennington and Marshall while Red Lake county — with only one write-in candidate disturbing a slate of unopposed incumbents — was a sea of tranquility amidst area election turmoil.

With 925 of 926 precincts reporting in the Seventh Congressional District, Congressman Arlan Stangeland was clinging to office by gnawed fingernails over challenger Collin Peterson. Unofficial tabulation showed Stangeland with 93,546 votes and Peterson with 93,335 votes — a margin of only 211 votes. Last election Stangeland swamped Peterson with 57 per cent of the vote to 43 per cent for Peterson. A recount this time around is expected.

In Pennington county two races resulted in extremely close decisions. Vickie Bjorgaard edged Leo Nelson for the county treasurer seat being vacated by Ellsworth Jorgenson 2,840 to 2,731, a margin of only 109 votes. County attorney Dave Olin won reelection over John Novacek with a 103 vote margin, 2,837 to 2,734.

For county sheriff, Bob Wold had a more comfortable margin over Jim Haugen, 718 votes. Wold, a deputy sheriff for 12 years, polled 3,160 votes while Haugen, a Thief River Falls police patrolman, had 2,442.

In Marshall county Roy Swanson rode the crest of a strong vote in Warren to [illegible] Bendickson for county auditor [illegible] 2,812 to 2,547. They were [illegible] the position being vacated by [illegible] Cheney. Swanson [illegible] Warren results were [illegible] today, but he [illegible] home town 664 to 368. Bendickson, formerly of Thief River Falls, is the Marshall county assessor.

For Marshall county recorder Marion Halvorson polled [illegible] votes to defeat Dwight Peterson who had 2,385. And Dennis Brekke easily won reelection as sheriff over Bruce Erickson 3,418 to 2,073. Erickson is a son of former Marshall county sheriff Oscar Erickson.

In the fifth commissioner district of eastern Marshall county where former commissioner George Panek challenged incumbent Delray Larson, Panek received only 423 votes while Larson carried 11 of the 15 precincts to gain 748 votes. Panek carried Excel 70 to 62, Grand Plain 15 to 9 and Moylan 36 to 25 while Larson rolled up huge margins in Cedar [illegible], Como 20-3, Eckvoll 44-6, Espelie 20-2, Moose River 21-0, Rolls 27-1, Veldt 20-1 and Whiteford 27-2.

At latest report with returns believed to be complete, LeRoy Stumpf had won reelection handily over Jim Butler [illegible] in Senate District 1. In House District 1A, Jim Tunheim won reelection over Sheldon "Smooky" Erickson of Badger. Latest vote count in that race showed Tunheim with 6,069 and Erickson with 4,164. Rep. Wally Sparby was unopposed in District 1B.

In other Pennington county election activity, Eugene Prestegaard handily won reelection as county recorder over Ann Pluth Olson with 3,730 votes to 1,798 for the challenger. Unopposed candidates and their vote totals included Kenneth Olson, auditor, reelected with [illegible] votes; Donald Grabanski, second district commissioner, reelected with [illegible] votes; William Penning, fourth district commissioner, elected to succeed Otto Stenberg with 970 votes and Dr. Richard Heinrichs elected county coroner to succeed Dr. E. Bortnem, Martin And Kiesow Named To School Board

Thief River Falls board of education will have two new members for the coming year as a result of the election conducted Tuesday in connection with the general election. One of the new members will fill a vacancy created by the death of Myrle Carlson and the other will replace Greg Pribula who lost his reelection bid after two terms on the baord.

Rev. Paul Bortnem, an incumbent, was top vote-getter among seven candidates for the three positions available, tallying 2,772 votes. Also elected were Ron Martin with 2,466 votes and Dennis Kiesow with 2,226 votes. Incumbent board member Pribula finished fourth with 2,014 votes, followed by Jay Borchert with 1,635, Frank Womack with 1,453 and Jack Boyer with 1,139.

In Red Lake county, three precincts gave totals of 12 votes to Borchert, 10 to Bortnem, nine to Martin, eight to Womack, six to Kiesow, five to Pribula and two to Boyer.

In the five Marshall county precincts where votes were cast, Bortnem received 121, Borchert 102, Martin 94, Pribula 75, Kiesow 72, Womack 43 and Boyer 38.

NCC Theatre Will Switch Plays Due To Inavailability

Northland community college theatre director Roger Vaughan reports that the production of "The Nerd" by Larry Shue originally scheduled for October 31 and November 1 and 2 was cancelled due to lack of availability of the show at this time.

Due to the popularity of Shue's play "The Foreigner," a production of "The Nerd" has been proposed for Broadway, and availability of the show for amateur leasing has been restricted totally in the United States, Vaughan said.

He has rescheduled Larry Shue's other play "The Foreigner" to open Friday, November 14 at 8 p.m. with shows also scheduled for Saturday, November 15 at 8 p.m. and Sunday, November 16 at 3 p.m.

The same individuals who had originally been cast in "The Nerd" will appear in "The Foreigner" since both casts call for two women and five men.

Playwright-actor Larry Shue was killed in a plane crash recently, making his three plays [illegible] high-demand shows this season [illegible] for college, university and community theatres in this country. Since the success of "The Foreigner," directors have been interested in Shue's other plays. [illegible] estate controls the [illegible] production and "The Nerd" had never been produced [illegible] and since the New York production could be followed by [illegible] doing the show, it could easily be a year or more before the [illegible] amateur rights may be [illegible] Vaughan said.

CERTIFIED RADIOLOGIC TECHNOLOGISTS, Luanne Berning and Elaine Borsheim pose with newly purchased mammography equipment at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls. This week has been declared National Radiologic Technologist week.

Deficiency And Diversion Funds Paid In Advance

Advanced deficiency and paid diversion payments to farmers in Minnesota this fall should total in excess of $400 million, addording to Congressman Arlan Stangeland. "These advanced deficiency payments will allow many of the recipients time to adequately plan their 1987 spring planting and seek other sources of funding, if necessary," he said.

"I am pleased that the Secretary of Agriculture has responded to a portion of the farm crisis in this manner. Allowing farmers to receive these early payments signifies a growing awareness of the needs of American agriculture during these difficult times."

In addition, the congressman announced that he has contacted Secretary of Agriculture Lyng, requesting that he analyze and evaluate the current change in corn differentials in northwest Minnesota.

Stangeland's letter to Lyng stated that "a comparison should be made on differentials established in neighboring states, including those established for North Dakota. Fair and equitable treatment for everyone should be our primary concern if this policy is to be successful."

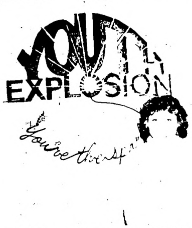
TRF Hospital Notes National Radiologic Technologist Week

November 3 - 9, has been declared national radiologic technologist week at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls. X-rays were discovered on November 9, 1895 by Wilhelm Roentgen. The first medical x-rays taken in the United States were taken by Eddie McCarthy Hanover in February of 1896. In 1922, plans for the American society of radiologic technologists (ARRT) were adopted. The ARRT has become the standard of professional acceptability to operate x-ray equipment.

The radiologic technologists at Northwest Medical center are all certified radiologic technologists. They are all very proud of their profession and continue to work and study to maintain a high level of excellence.

Quality staff need quality equipment to obtain the best possible results for the patients of Northwest Medical center. We are pleased to say that last year new flouroscopic and special procedure unit was added and recently a state of the art dedicated mammogram unit arrived. This new mammogram unit has added capabilities that our one year old unit did not possess. One area of improvement is it will accept larger cassettes, thus reducing the need for additional pictures and additional x-ray exposure. Another feature includes ability to magnify given areas of the picture and thus show detail that would not be visible on non magnified radiographs.

The staff of the radiology department at Northwest Medical center look forward to serving you in specialty areas of: ultrasound, nuclear medicine, CT and radiography.



KATHY COYLE of KXJB was a guest speaker at the 1986 district Fall meeting of Future Homemakers of America. Computer Program Report Heard By TRF School Board

Computer program report by Dick Tyler and Virgil Burger provided School District 564 board members with a summary of the progress so far in the four-year program when the board met in regular session recently at the school district service center.

The report indicated that students in the local school system are exposed to computers beginning in kindergarten classes and that each elementary school has 15 computers stationed in libraries, classrooms or a separate laboratory. Franklin middle school has two computer labs with 47 computers in addition to those units available in teacher workrooms and the library. Lincoln senior high school has 58 computers in its program.

Sixth graders are required to take one six-week class of keyboarding and four other computer classes are offered that students may choose to take. At Lincoln computers are used in classes such as business education, English, German and home economics in addition to four being available in the library for students to use. Three semester courses of computing are offered to students. Additional computers will be purchased during this, the second year of the four-year program, and teacher training sessions are recommended, Burger and Tyler said.

Kindergarten teaching staff including Diane Marshall, Deone Cerny, Susie Olson, Bernadette Larson and Deb Fulton reported on change back to half-day sessions and addition of the developmental kindergarten section. They noted improvement in student performance as a result of changes which were the result of recommendations made by the kindergarten task force.

Dr. Leo Ruberto, superintendent of schools, presented the proposed Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) policy for review and discussion. The board seeks public input on the policy and copies are available for review at the school district service center.

Student discipline policy being proposed was also discussed and Supt. Ruberto will review it with building faculty for additional input prior to presenting it in final form for action at the December meeting.

Custodial uniform committee had made its selection, according to Jerry Prickett, supervisor of buildings and grounds, and a sample was shown at the meeting.

A number of extra-curricular assignments were approved and include Alan Buhl, high school head girls golf coach; Richard Tyler, high school head boys golf coach; Tim Olson, high school head boys track coach; Jeff Mumm, high school assistant boys track coach; Whitey Olson, high school head boys tennis coach; William Fogarty, high school student senate;

Also Cal Lindberg, ninth grade advisor; James Goldesberry, 10th grade advisor; Darwin Boutiette, 11th grade advisor; Jim Kotz, 12th grade advisor; Ev Marshall, high school stage manager; Kevin Ryan, high school pep band and marching band (separate assignments) and Tracey Wensloff, high school assistant hockey coach. Salaries ranged from $1,626 for head coaches, pep band director and assistant hockey coach to $252 for ninth and 10th grade advisor.

Proposed administrative organizational chart was approved for the AVTI and postings were athorized for an associate director, assistant director and aviation programs supervisor.

Henrietta Ness was hired as work and family program coordinator effective November 3.

Regular meetings scheduled for December 8 and 22 were cancelled and one meeting on December 15 at 7:30 p.m. was scheduled for December. Next regular meeting of the board will be November 10 at 7:30 p.m.

Gain the competitive edge needed to earn a high-paying postal career. Outstanding job security, superb benefits, excellent advancement opportunity, men and women regardless of age, education and experience are eligible — these are some of the advantages of obtaining a position in the postal service. The first step to landing a rewarding, lucrative postal career is getting your name on the "Register of Eligibles", which is accomplished by passing the USPS employment entrance examination. They will be held on Saturdays, November 8 and 15 at the Thief River Falls AVTI, Highway One East, Thief River Falls, from 1-4:30 P.M. There is still limited space available in either workshop.

Participants will learn the required steps to getting a postal job, when and how to apply, the types of questions you will find on the postal exam, rules and regulations for the exams, proven techniques and strategies for improving speed and accuracy exam traps designed to trick you into a lower score, and how to prepare for the test.

ELECTION ACTIVITY continued late into the night and on into the early morning hours following Tuesday's election in Pennington county. Stacy Davidson (seated at right), deputy auditor, was on the phone most of the evening taking election reports from precincts and providing information to callers. She was assisted by Janet Olson (left), wife of county auditor Ken Olson, who was on hand to help. In back are Rick Gustafson of KTRF radio and Robin Asp, who was assisting the station in its live coverage from the county auditor's office. The auditor's office is a hub of post election activity as newspeople, candidates, campaign workers, election judges and township clerks bustle around in search of information or attempting to complete their work.

TRANSCRIBING vote totals from the automatic counting report on to state voting report forms is one of the tasks of Thief River Falls election officials following each election. Working on the project in the county board room adjacent to the county auditor's office are (clockwise from right), Roger DeLap, Opal Dargus, Hazel Maves, Lisa Wagner, Della Burstad and June Swanson. The city of Thief River Falls and townships of North and Rocksbury use a punch card voting system which permits more rapid tabulation of voting results. The totals must be transferred to official state forms for final reporting.

To The Editor:

As the general co-chairmen of this years "Top Hat Revue," my wife and I would like to thank the Thief River Falls community for supporting us in our endeavors. Because of everyone's support, our project was a success, not only for the arts council but for the community as a whole.

We will again be able to meet our goals for this year's "Top Hat Revue." With the $3,000 that was raised for the arts in Thief River Falls, we plan to establish a second $100 scholarship for students attending Northland community college and demonstrating potential in the visual and-or performing arts. The arts council plans to sponsor another children's theater production this summer, and if enough interest is voiced, we may look into an adult theater production.

Through the course of this project, a number of people have contributed their time, talents and other resources. These businesses and individuals should be commended for their concern about the arts in Thief River Falls.

As with all productions of this magnitude, oversights do occur. I want to apologize to anyone who may not have been publicly recognized for their contributions. There are also two businesses that I am aware of that were omitted from our souvenir program. They are Belmont Funeral Home and Cathy Belmont Interiors.

Thank you,
Kevin and Judy TeBeest

with 46 votes, and Robert Manderud, with 45 votes, won over their challengers. Pam Kassa, with 17 votes, and Irvin Hamm, with 18 votes, won votes along with write-in Eugene Frazer, 7 votes, but not enough to unseat the incumbents.

In Grygla where all of the votes were write-ins, 111 votes of an estimated 138 registered voters showed up Tuesday to cast their vote. The city clerk said several write-in votes were cast but none were close to unseating incumbents. Ralph Klein was again voted in as Mayor with 73 votes; and Karl Sundberg, with 63 votes, and DelRay Ruud, with 53 votes, were returned by voters to the city council.

In Plummer, 133 votes were cast in what was described as a fair election turnout. No exact figures were available on each winning candidate. For Mayor, Russell Pahlen was elected; and James Schlefert, the only candidate to officially file, won, along with Anne Jaeger, an incumbent. James Kelley, city council member, did not file but did get some write-in votes.

In Middle River no one officially filed for open positions of Mayor and two city council seats, but all of the incumbents were re-elected. Mayor Sally Gentry had 116 votes; and Ed Johnson, with 98 votes, and Mary Hanson, with 74 votes, were re-elected to city council. According to the city clerk 120 votes were cast.

In Newfolden, incumbents were re-elected to represent the city as Mayor and three city council seats. Mayor Vern Gunderson took 154 votes; Councilman Dave Kragness took 124; Marlin Lee took 144; and Arnie Johnson took 146. A few write-in votes were cast but none received enough to unseat the incumbents.

Veterans Day Will Be Observed Here

Two local observances of Veterans Day on Tuesday, November 11, are being planned by Ecklund-Holmstrom Post 117 of the American Legion in Thief River Falls. One is intended for the public and the other for members of the post and its auxiliary.

Robert Reeve, a member of Post 117 and an immediate past commander of the Minnesota department of the American Legion, will be speaker for the public program which will be conducted at 9:55 a.m. Tuesday in the Lincoln high school auditorium. Lincoln students will attend the event and all others interested are encouraged to be in attendance.

The public program is co-sponsored with Post 2793 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Thief River Falls and will follow a brief parade of color guards from the American Legion club rooms to the high school. The parade is scheduled to begin at 9:45 a.m. and will follow Main avenue to First street and First street to Lincoln school.

District Commander Kirkeby of Shevlin is a member of the Bagley American Legion post and was elected to the top position in the Ninth District at the annual convention in Thief River Falls earlier this year. He will speak at the annual free Veterans Day dinner for members Tuesday evening at the American Legion club rooms.

Social hour will be from 6 to 7 p.m. and dinner will be served at 7 p.m., according to Floyd Fredrickson, commander of Post 117, who will serve as master of ceremonies for the dinner. All members of the post and auxiliary who have paid their 1987 membership dues will be admitted free of charge. Membership will be available at the door. The Legion color guard will advance and retire the colors and post chaplain Ed Haraldson will give the invocation and benediction. Entertainment will be provided.

Official state observance of Veterans Day will be at 9:45 a.m. Tuesday in the auditorium of the Minnesota veterans' home in Minneapolis and will be coordinated with the nationwide observance. Gov. Rudy Perpich has issued a proclamation declaring Veterans Day in Minnesota and President Ronald Reagan has declared the day nationwide.

Gov. Perpich's proclamation notes that "our freedom was won in the agony of conflict and has been preserved for 200 years through the willingness of gallant Americans — men and women — to risk their lives for the perpetuation of the American way of life" and that "there are 407,400 men and women in all walks of life today in Minnesota who have served our country with honor and valor in time of war."

New Program For Debt Restructure Is Now Underway

A new debt restructuring program for farmers, signed into law by Governor Rudy Perpich last March, is now ready for operation, state officials announced today.

The state farm bill passed early this year created the Rural Finance administration, which is authorized to sell bonds and purchase part of existing farm loans from agricultural lenders if the lender agrees to restructure the loan.

Restructuring would mean deferring the principal payments, reducing the interest rate and potentially cancelling a portion of the existing debt if land values do not recover.

To qualify, farmers must be able to demonstrate that they will have a positive cash flow once the debt restructuring occurs, and that they have a good chance for long-term financial success.

Final approval for operation of the plan was given today by the RFA board, chaired by state finance commissioner Jay Kiedrowski.

While the new program is another tool provided by the state to assist farmers who are heavily in debt, according to state officials.

"The plan provides another option for both farmers and agricultural lenders that can be used to avoid the pain of foreclosure," said Governor Rudy Perpich.

Perpich noted that the program is essentially voluntary, but said he hopes that farmers and lenders can work cooperatively to implement the plan as widely as possible.

The RFA board has negotiated an agreement with Far Credit Services of St. Paul, establishing terms under which it will restructure existing loans. Under this agreement, to be signed next week, restructuring assistance will last for eight years and offer interest rates as low as eight per cent.

The RFA is continuing to work with representatives of banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions which hold farm real estate debt.

Farmers interested in finding out more about the program can pick up information and application forms from county agricultural extension offices and offices of Farm Credit Services. Applications also may be obtained by writing or calling the Rural Finance Administration office 309 State Administration Building, 50 Sherburne Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155 (612-296-5943).

Northland Football Team Travels To Ely Saturday . . .

Pioneers Face Vermilion In Playoff Semifinals

Three of the four teams participating in the 1986 Minnesota Community College Conference state football playoffs are ranked in this week's NJCAA Region 13 top five coaches poll, with Vermilion, Rochester and North Hennepin going into the playoffs ranked 1-2-3, respectively. Northland is the only MCCC post-season qualifier not ranked.

But that's okay with Northland coach Rick Nelson. "The polls are fun," he said. "They're good to look at, but you still have to play the games."

Besides, noted Nelson, unranked Northland is still playing football, while No. 4 Willmar and No. 5 Normandale have already turned in their equipment.

We'd like to prove the polls wrong," he said.

MCCC semifinals Saturday at 1 p.m. will have Northwest Division champion Northland playing Northeast Division winner Vermilion at Ely, while Central Division titlist North Hennepin visits Southern Division winner Rochester.

Title game will be played Sunday, November 16, at the College of St. Thomas in St. Paul.

It's the first-ever playoff appearance for both Northland and North Hennepin, who are both definite underdogs Saturday after losing regular season decisions to their respectively playoff foes. Rochester beat North Hennepin 21-12 this fall and. Vermilion doubled Northland 40-20.

Northland jumped out to an early 14-0 lead over Vermilion in their October 4 meeting at Prowler Field and hung on to a 14-7 lead until late in the first half when a series of mistakes by the Pioneers produced a quick 28-14 deficit in a space of just five minutes.

That was the halftime score. Northland cut the margin to 28-20 right at the start of the second half, but gave up a third quarter score and another final-inflating touchdown near the end of the game.

"It was a very sloppy game," acknowledged Nelson, recalling nine Northland turnovers and eight Vermilion turnovers. Both teams, he said, are capable of playing much better football.

Vermilion won seven straight games before a less-than-inspired regular season-ending effort against Itasca last Thursday produced a 28-19 loss for the Ironmen, who had long ago clinched the Northeast Division title. Before losing to the Vikings, Vermilion collected wins over the Macalester junior varsity 29-12, Brainerd 8-0, University of Minnesota-Crookston 50-24, Northland 40-20, Fergus Falls 49-19, Hibbing 35-19 and Mesabi 62-0.

Northalnd posted a school-best 5-3 regular season record this fall — the Pioneers' first winning season in 11 years of football at the school. They opened with wins over the Moorhead State University junior varsity 14-13 and Mesabi 20-0 before losing three straight to Itasca 16-13, Vermilion 40-20 and Hibbing 29-6. Northland regrouped, however, and swept Northwest Division foes Fergus Falls 26-14, University of Minnesota-Crookston 23-20 and Brainerd 10-7 last week to share the division crown with the Spartans. The Pioneers gained the playoff berth, though, because of a better mark in the points won-lost column in the MCCC standings — where games within the division are worth two points and games against teams from the other division are counted as one-pointers.

Nelson admits Vermilion might have a little more offensive firepower than Northland, but figures the Pioneers' defense is capable of meeting the challenge.

A big part of that challenge will be to stop Kevin Johnson, a 5-8, 175-pounder from Cleveland, OH, who has rushed for 1,414 yards in eight games.

"He's a dart," says Nelson about the speedy Johnson, who carried the ball 34 times for 192 yards in the loss to Itasca. He's averaging 170 yards per game on the ground. Johnson has also scored 18 touchdowns this fall.

"We have to keep him (Johnson) at, or below the 100-yard mark," explained Nelson, who was also impressed by the play of Vermilion quarterback Garth Heikkinen, ranked among the leading passers in Region 13.

Defensively, end Dan Holte and linebacker Julian Robinson lead the Ironmen and rank high on the Region 13 tackle charts.

Northland doesn't have anyone close to matching Johnson's offensive figures, but they have two solid runningbacks in freshmen Steve Ristau of East Grand Forks and Deon Schmidt of Fargo North with 531 and 383 yards, respectively. Quarterback Scott Willoughby has emerged as a big-play producer, although his 54-for-154 passing figure is lower than what most coaches would like. He's passed for 928 yards and five touchdowns, but has also thrown 18 interceptions. Receivers Scott Groven of Goodridge and Dean Brandon of Thief River Falls have 26 and 19 catches, respectively. Ristau has scored seven touchdowns; Groven four.

"If we can operate like we did against Fergus Falls and Crookston, we'll be okay," mentioned Nelson, realizing the Pioneers' offense wasn't that impressive Thursday against Brainerd, even tough Northland clinched its playoff berth with its first-ever win over the Red Raiders. If Vermilion has a weakness, it might be in the defensive secondary, noted Nelson. "We feel we can throw the ball on them, but we'll take whatever they give us on offense."

Defensively, the Pioneers were superb against Brainerd, led by tackles Anthony McCullough and Jeff Johnson, and linebackers Steve Wiskow and Mike Stennes. A repeat performance will be needed this week against Vermillion, confirmed Nelson.

Enthusiastic practices and some good old-fashion school spirit are preparing the Pioneers for the weekend trip, noted Nelson. The team will leave Thief River Falls Friday at 4 p.m., stay in Eveleth that night, and drive to Ely the next morning.

PLACE-KICKER Ron Dass (22), a Northland Community College sophomore from Ely, will be returning home Saturday when the Pioneers meet Vermilion in a 1 p.m. Minnesota Community College Conference state playoff semifinal football game in Ely. Dass got off this 41-yard field goal attempt against Brainerd in the second quarter of Thursday's Northwest Division game in Thief River Falls. He missed this one, but connected on a 23-yarder with just nine seconds left in the first half for what proved to be the winning points in the Pioneers' 10-7 victory over the Red Raiders. Chad Ekeberg was the holder on the kick. Brainerd's John Tibberts (44) raced in from the side too late to get a hand on the ball. Darrin Johnson (33) of the Pioneers was blocked in the middle.

AL CHRISTOFFERSON is retiring from the Thief River Falls Sports Booster Club as its secretary-treasurer for 10 years. Christofferson was presented a plaque last week to commemorate the occasion. Presenting the plaque is Carol Johnson, president of the Sports Booster Club.

Prowlers Enter Section 8 Meet

Fourteen Thief River Falls girls will participate in the 1986 Section 8 high school swim meet Friday and Saturday at the Hyslop Sports Center pool on the University of North Dakota campus in Grand Forks.

Competition starts Friday with the diving prelims at 2 p.m. and the swimming prelims at 6. Swimming and diving finals will be held Saturday starting at 1 p.m.

Alexandria is the overwhelming favorite to win the Section 8 team title for the eighth straight year. Fergus Falls looks equally secure in the runner-up spot, but a third place finish that went to Thief River Falls a year ago appears to be up for grabs, according to Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney, between the Prowlers, Moorhead, Brainerd, Detroit Lakes and Bemidji.

"It should be a real interesting section meet," predicted Forney, "because there are so many girls close together in times."

Thief River Falls' chances of matching last year's strong third place finish were reduced, admitted Forney, when he placed special emphasis on the 200 medley and 400 freestyle relay races as he made out his sectional line-up.

Participants are limited to the number of events in which they can compete, and Forney took some sure point-producers in individual events to bolster the relays in hopes that those two units could challenge for state meet spots.

"We're giving up some team points for those two relays," acknowledged Forney. A third, fourth or fifth place in the team standings doesn't earn a team trophy, he explained, but a second place finish in an individual or relay race is worth a state meet trip, and third place will produce a medal.

Thief River Falls' 200 medley realy team, which includes eighth grader Jenny Ness, junior Christy Puetz, and seniors Brenda Russell and Marci Turenne will be seeded No. 2 going into the Section 8 meet with a 2:04.65 season-best, just ahead of a 2:05.50 recorded this fall by Fergus Falls. Alexandria is the top seed at 2:02.25.

The Prowlers' 4:02.96 is seeded third in the 400 freestyle relay, where Alexandria has a 3:58 and Moorhead has been clocked in four minutes flat. Puetz and Russell will swim on that relay, too, along with senior Laura Beito and junior Heidi Tofte.

Top six finishers in Friday's swimming prelims will make Saturday's championship finals, with the 7-12 prelim finishers competing in Saturday's consolation finals. Top two finishers in the championship finals earn state meet berths, along with the top five divers.

"Our two relays should do well, and a handful of girls could place in the top six," offered Forney.

Rest of the Thief River Falls Section 8 line-up, based upon meet-qualifying times during the course of the regular season, will include junior Pete Kuyath and eighth grader Dionne Ammerman in the 200 freestyle; Beito, Ness and seniors Michelle Turenne and Gayle Borchert in the 200 I.M.; Tofte and sophomore Karla Espe in the 50 freestyle; junior Jenny Nelson and freshman Colleen Belmont as divers; Marci Turenne, Michelle Turenne, Puetz and Espe in the 200 butterfly; Russell and Tofte in the 100 freestyle; Beito and Kuyath in the 500 freestyle; Marci Turenne and eighth grader Heidi Gunderson in the 100 backstroke; Ness and Borchert in the 100 breaststroke.

Outside of the relay teams, the Prowlers' best hopes of advancing girls into the championship finals appear to be Puetz in the 200 butterfly, Russell in the 100 freestyle, Beito in the 500 freestyle, Ness in the 100 breaststroke and Nelson in diving. Ness, though, missed the last two weeks of practice with a severe ear infection, and she'll have to make up for that lost time if she's going to be a Section 8 challenger.

"We're looking to pick up points in the odd strokes," explained Forney, who is also looking forward to having the meet at the fine UND facilities — a site switch from Bemidji State University, where the meet has been held for a number of years.

Pioneers vs. Ironmen

In this, the 11th year of football at Northland Community College, Vermilion remains the only team in the Minnesota Community College Northwest or Northeast Division groupings the Pioneers have failed to beat.

Brainerd was in that same category last week, but Northland edged the Red Raiders 10-7 to clinch a Northwest Division title tie and gain an MCCC state playoff berth against Vermilion, the Northeast Divison champion.

Vermilion ran its record to 11-0 against Northland earlier this year when the Ironmen stormed from behind for a 40-20 victory over the host Pioneers.

Saturday's 1 p.m. state semifinal playoff encounter will be played at 1 p.m. in Ely. You won't find a longer road trip in the MCCC.

It took Northland five years just to get on the scoreboard in its series with Vermilion, and it took six years before the Pioneers — then Northmen — scored a touchdown against the Ironmen.

Vermilion began the series with shutouts in 1976 (48-0), 1977 (28-0), 1978 (26-0) and 1979 (10-0). Northland finally scored in 1980, but still came out a 26-3 loser at Ely.

Closest the Pioneers came to beating the Ironmen was in 1981 when Vermilion escaped Thief River Falls with a 7-6 victory. It was a defensive struggle, highlighted by the play of Northland's Mark Stock, a 5-9, 180-pound sophomore from Mahnomen, who played nose guard and defensive tackle for the losers. His play helped limit Vermilion to just 81 yards net offense for the afternoon, but the Ironmen put together a 41-yard drive in 11 plays after a short Northland punt early in the second half and scored on a fourth-and-two plunge by Pat Little with 7:54 left in the quarter. Wes Hidon added what proved to be the winning point on the conversion kick.

Northland scored midway through the fourth quarter when quarterback Scott Wiebolt, a freshman from Thief River Falls, went into the end zone on a fourth-and-one call. But kicker Don Hudec, a freshman from Kelliher, missed the conversion attempt.

Vermillion began to win in more one-sided fashion again in 1982 (24-0), 1983 (35-7), 1984 (33-6) and 1986 (35-12) before overcoming an early 14-0 deficit this fall en route to the 20-point victory.

It's been a memorable season already for the Pioneers, who went 1-7 in the first two years of head coach Rick Nelson's reign before turning things around this fall. And with this year's semifinal matches pitting the Northwest vs. Northeast and Southern vs. Central divisional winners, the Pioneers have a realistic shot at a post-season victory. In the past, a Northwest Division title simply meant running into powerhouse teams like Normandale or Rochester in first round action, and a quick exit from post-season competition. The Pioneers know they can come close to matching the Ironmen talent-wise. It could be an interesting contest.

The other playoff match-up has another first-time participant in North Hennepin, where coach Don Roney, like Nelson, has turned a perennial loser into a winning program. The year before Roney became head coach at the Brooklyn Park school, the Norsemen had a 1-6-1 record with a 23-man roster. Roney was 3-5 in his first year with 27 players, but this year 55 started the season as North Hennepin went 6-2.

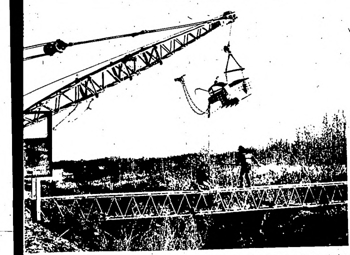
Miscellaneous

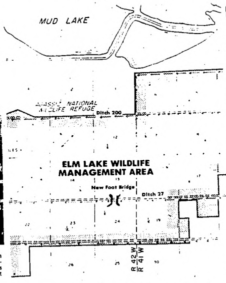
+ Thief River Falls' Michelle Puetz, a freshman at the University of North Dakota, made an immediate impact on the Sioux swim team Saturday when she won the 100-yard backstroke in 1:13.71 as the UND women opened their 1986-87 season against the Manta Swim Club of Winnipeg, losing 95-76. Puetz completed her high school swimming career last year with a bundle of Thief River Falls school records.

+ Kristy Forsberg-Aune of Thief River Falls is expected to do well Saturday for the University of North Dakota women's cross country team in the 1986 North Central Conference meet at North Dakota State University in Fargo. She has a shot at placing second, said UND coach Dick Clay, and qualifying for national competition. The favorite is Bev Weiman of NDSU. Lon Aune of Thief River Falls is an NCC contender as a member of the UND men's team.

+ Moorhead beat Bemidji for the third straight year in the Section 7AA high school football playoff championship game Friday, 14-7 in overtime. The Spuds beat the Lumberjacks 27-21 in 1984 and 7-6 in 1985 when Bemidji was the section's No. 1 seed. Moorhead was No. 1 this fall after beating Bemidji 24-20. Bemidji was seeded No. 3 behind Moorhead and Grand Rapids, but upset the Indians 31-7 in the semifinals. Bemidji lost the title game despite having a big statistical edge. The Lumberjacks ran 76 plays from scrimmage to Moorhead's 52. Bemidji rushed for 264 yards to the Spuds' 13, and Bemidji had a 264-63 edge in total yards. But Moorhead's Jamie Hagnell picked up a fourth quarter fumble and went 46 yards for a touchdown with eight minutes left in regulation time to tie it. Bemidji had a shot at winning at the end of regulation time when Ron Miller sprinted 70 yards before being pushed out of bounds at the Moorhead 10. But Gary Matthews' field goal attempt hit the cross bar.

+ Participation fees set at Roseau High School for the 1986-87 winter sports season include $208 for hockey, $93 for wrestling and $52 for boys and girls basketball. There's also a $34 participation fee charged for cheerleaders. In Thief River Falls, it's a $30 participation fee for football, hockey, volleyball, basketball and swimming; $15 for cross country, track, golf, tennis and cheerleaders; and $15 participation fee in baseball, where a $15 "donation" is also requested.





HUNTER'S BRIDGE. Minnesota deer hunter's association in Thief River Falls raised money for this foot bridge, which the Minnesota conservation corp constructed during the summer and the Minnesota department of natural resources put in place. According to Gordon Forester, area wildlife manager, the foot bridge is a welcome addition to the area because it increases safety. It is located on ditch 27 in the Elm Lake Wildlife management area.

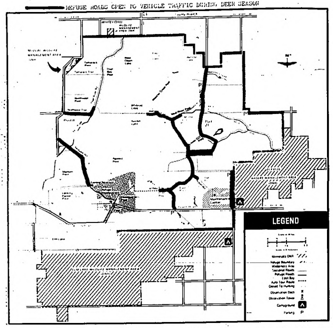
REFUGE ROADS OPEN TO VEHICLE TRAFFIC DURING DEER SEASON



AGASSIZ NATIONAL WILDLIFE Refuge will be open to Minnesota deer hunters from November 8-16. Except for two closed areas, the entire refuge will be open during the 1986 firearms deer hunting season. The closed areas, marked on the map, are around the refuge headquarters and the maintenance center. Only the roads shown on the map are open to travel by motorized vehicles. All other road, trail and dike use will be restricted to foot traffic.

Agassiz Refuge Open To Deer Hunting

The 1986 deer hunting season at the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge will be held November 8-16 in accordance with Minnesota Department of Natural Resources regulations, according to refuge officials.

Population is estimated at 2,500 deer within the 130 square miles of Area 203. Area 203 (Zone 2) consisting of Agassiz and the Elm Lake, Eckvoll, and Mudlac Wildlife Management Areas will be open to bucks and antlerless deer (by permit).

Antlerless permits have already been mailed to all who submitted a valid application. Within Area 203, 1,113 of the available 1,350 antlerless permits were issued. The remaining 237 permits were issued by lottery as bonus permits among those who received antlerless permits and indicated they wished to receive a bonus permit. This represents a significant increase from last year when 1,000 antlerless permits were available and 847 were applied for.

Except for two closed areas, the entire refuge will be open to deer hunting. These closed areas surround the refuge headquarters and the maintenance center and are posted with closed area signs. Both areas are also clearly marked on the refuge hunting leaflets available at headquarters.

Within Agassiz refuge preseason scouting will be allowed the day before season opens, Friday, November 7. Hunters are reminded that construction of, or hunting from, permanently constructed tree stands is illegal. Portable stands are legal and can be placed at any height, but cannot be left overnight to pre-empt a hunting spot.

Hunters may enter the refuge at 6 a.m., and must leave the refuge as soon as possible after sundown. Only the roads shown on the adjacent map are open to travel by motorized vehicles. All other road, trail and dike use will be restricted to foot traffic and non-motorized carrying devices for transporting deer. Non-motorized watercraft may be used on ditches and pools. The use of 3-wheelers, trail bikes and other off-road vehicles is prohibited throughout Area 203. Snowmobiles, however, are allowed on DNR lands, but not on the refuge.

Deer taken in Permit Area 203 must be registered at any check station before leaving Zone 2. There will be no check station at refuge headquarters this year, but all nearby towns have at least one check station.

Hunter safety is a special concern this year. Increased hunter numbers make accidents more probable and make it a must that hunters be sure of their target. The potential for hypothermia and heart attack also exists and hunter caution and awareness is advised. The staff at Agassiz wishes all a safe successful hunt.

You'll find lots of bargains in the Times' Classified Ads. Just phone 681-4450.

Memoriam
In loving memory of Thorman Dahl, our beloved husband, father and grandfather who passed away Nov. 4, 1985.

We know when you were laid to rest
For you it was the very best
In Heaven there is no suffering or pain
You couldn't take that again & again
Each time we think of you and your smile
Tears fill our eyes and we cry for awhile
Although our treasured memories, of you will always stay
We miss you more & more each day.

Sadly missed by your wife Shirley and children: Sherryl & Bob, Mike, Julie, Elizabeth and Kristina.

Minnesota To Measure Final '86 Crop Yields

This year's crop is down but carryover stocks are at a record level, according to Carroll Rock, director of the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. His office will be mailing out 35,000 questionnaires in early November to measure final state yields for small grains and row crops. The information furnished by farmers will also be used to set countryyields which are used by ASCS and Federal Crop Insurance for their programs.

A STEADY HAND on the brush was needed by George Hanestad as he worked as a volunteer Tuesday on interior painting at the Heritage Community center in Thief River Falls. Hanestad was one of several painting trim on the second coat while others were using rollers to apply a second coat of paint to walls of the building. It is estimated that the volunteer work on interior finishing under the direction of Roger Forsberg would save about $3,000 which could be used in other needed areas of the building.

Grant On Elderly Homesharing Is Received In Area

A grant to establish an elderly homesharing program to provide safe, appropriate and affordable housing for low and moderate income residents of northwestern Minnesota has been received by the Northwest Minnesota Multi-County Housing authority.

The grant will be used to develop and operate the program in Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties. The program is intended to make it possible for more elderly homeowners to remain in their homes by matching low to moderate income elderly homeowners with homeseekers who will contribute rent or services in exchange for sharing the home. The shared living is expected to improve quality of life at home for the homeowners and allow them to stay longer than they could without tenants.

Joining in operating the program will be Inter-County Community council of Oklee (phone 796-5144), Northwest Community Action of Badger (phone 528-3258) and Tri-Valley Opportunity Council at Crookston (phone 281-5832). Staff from these community action agencies will operate the program and anyone interested in participating may contact them through the numbers listed above.

Consumer Survey Shows Support For Farmers

A recent survey of American consumers indicates they are not only aware of the financial plight of many of the nation's farmers, but are willing to give them a helping hand through a one-year, one per cent national sales tax on groceries.

The survey, conducted in early December by Rockwood Research corporation, was commissioned by Communicating for Agriculture, Inc. (CA), a national, non-profit, nonpartisan rural association based in Fergus Falls.

Consumers from across the continental United States were chosen at random for the telephone survey, which was believed to show 95 per cent accuracy. Respondents were polled on their attitudes and awareness of the current farm crisis and asked for their reaction to a special one-year, one per cent tax on groceries.

Consumer awareness of trouble in the agriculture sector is high. Ninety-four per cent of those questioned said they had heard about farmers' troubles. The majority, 95 per cent, said they were "very" or "somewhat" concerned about the loss of nearly one-fourth of the nation's family farms. Only five per cent said they were not at all concerned.

Approximately 85 per cent of those who responded felt it was very or somewhat important that food consumed is raised on family vs. corporate farms. Although 13 per cent felt the quality of food raised on corporate farms would be better, only 30 per cent felt basic corporate farm food prices would be lower than food raised on family farms.

A Gallup poll conducted in late 1984 indicated that one-third of the consumers who participated in that survey over-estimated farmers' net income by almost 50 per cent. In the CA survey, however, 47 per cent believe a farmer's profit to be between zero and 10 cents for every dollar consumers spend on food. Said CA President Rollie Lake, "Consumers know farmers aren't making any money."

Lake said the CA survey underscores last year's CBS-New York Times poll that found tht 65 per cent of the American public feel it would be a bad idea to reduce government spending on programs to help farmers.

"Those who say consumers don't favor government programs for agriculture are speaking for themselves, not consumers," said Lake. "This survey reaffirms our belief that Americans support family farmers."

More than half of the respondents (56.5 per cent) spend between $50 and $75 per week on groceries. Asked if they would be willing to add an amount equal to one per cent of their weekly grocery bill (e.g., 50 cents for $50) to fund a special program to preserve America's family farms, 68 per cent replied, "yes;" 25 per cent said, "no," and seven per cent were undecided.

Asked their preference between a one-year, one per cent sales tax on grocery items and a rise in food prices, 60 per cent preferred the one per cent tax, while 26 per cent said they favored an increase in food prices.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Americans spent $363 billion on food, including imports, fishery products and food grown on farms in 1983. Per capita spending averaged $1,558. A one per cent sales tax would add $16 to the average yearly grocery bill, and raise nearly $4 billion in revenues.

Lake noted growing support among various agriculture groups for some sort of national food tax. "Other groups have proposed doing a study on this issue," he said. "Here it is."

Lake said CA also conducted a random survey of its membership, which includes farmers and rural businessmen. The results showed 77 per cent would favor a special one per cent tax on grocery bills.

"We also asked our members how they thought consumers would react to a one per cent tax," Lake said. In stark contrast to the consumer survey, CA members thought only 18 per cent of the consumer population would support such a tax to help family farmers.

CA members were also asked to estimate how much profit consumers thought farmers made on each dollar spent for food. Nearly half the CA members felt consumers would say a farmer's profit would be 25 cents on the dollar. By comparison, only 10 per cent of the consumer group thought farmers made that much profit.

"The disparity reveals a communication gap between city and country," Lake said. "There's more support for farmers across America than farmers realize. We have to quit selling ourselves short."

Lake said results of both surveys would be presented to key members of Congress, farm groups and other policy makers.

MN To Inventory State Livestock

Minnesota hog prices climbed to their highest levels ever this summer while cattle prices remained weaker, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Those prices hinge on supply and demand so ongoing information on inventory size needs to be tracked on a regular basis. The service is gearing up for a count on the state's hog inventories in late November and early December, and cattle in early January.

Carroll Rock, director of the service, says the upcoming survey will measure hog inventories, pig crops, and farrowing intentions for the next six months. "Hogs are a major livestock product in Minnesota," said Rock, "and we need to stay on top of inventory size so producers can lock in their production and marketing decisions."

The United States cattle inventory continues to shrink for the fourth consecutive year. Financial pressures and drought in some areas of the country are forcing increased slaughter. The service will get a new count on cattle inventories with an early-January survey.

All information collected from individual farms on both of these surveys are kept confidential; they're used only in combination with others to get a statewide total. Results from the hog survey will be available December 22nd while cattle inventory data will be available on February 4th.

Check Windbreaks Now, Before The Winter Sets In

Check windbreaks to see if it needs improvement or beefing up? The winds of winter will be blowing before long and then it may be too late. If trees or shrubs are needed for the windbreak, contact a local SWCD for assistance in planning improvwments or additions.

The farmstead windbreak serves a number of purposes. They provide habitat for birds, both game and nongame species, small wildlife such as squirrels, rabbits and even deer use windbreaks for cover and food. The windbreak can beautify the home or farm while providing protection from wind. A properly planned windbreak can reduce energy use for heating during our northern Minnesota winters. It can also reduce snow drifting into yards and driveways.

Take a look. If assistance is needed with ideas and alternatives for improving a windbreak contact the nearest soil conservation service.

Polaris Plans To Become Public Company Oct. 24

Polaris has announced that it expects to become a public company. On Friday, October 24, Polaris filed a Registration Statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission for a common stock public offering.

Drexel Burnham Lambert Incorporated, E. F. Hutton & Company, Inc. and PaineWebber Incorporated will handle the sale of the stock.

Polaris Industries, Inc. designs, engineers and manufactures snowmobiles, four-wheeled all-terrain vehicles ("ATVs") and related parts, and markets them, together with accessories and clothing through distributors and dealers in the United States, Canada and abroad.

The offering is expected to be completed in November. This offering is expected to have no impact on Polaris relationships with its valued customers, dealers, distributors or suppliers. Further, Polaris does not anticipate the offering to result in any change in the current management of the company, which will continue to own 60-65 per cent of the company.

The offering of Polaris stock can only occur after the regulatory requirements have been fulfilled and an offer to sell shares may be made only by means of a prospectus (a detailed legal document that describes the company and this sale of common stock).

AMY PADILLA has won the local, area and now the state Soil and water conservation district poster contest. This year's theme was "Land is for...." Farming, recreation, hunting, and urban development were all themes that Minnesota fifth and sixth grade students used to create posters and murals for the 1986 conservation poster contest. The Minnesota association of soil and water conservation districts sponsored the contest with the financial assistance of the Federal Land bank association, Production credit association, Bank for cooperatives and Farm credit services. More than 5,500 poster and murals were entered. There were three state poster contest winners.

Wheat Growers Ask Support Of Diversion

The Minnesota association of wheat growers have asked the Minnesota congressional delegation for help in obtaining a voluntary paid diversion program similar to the one the United States department of agriculture announced for fee grains. Feed grain producers are being offered an opportunity to set aside an additional 15 per cent of their base acres in exchange for a payment of $2 a bushel for corn, $1.90 for sorghum, $1.60 for barley and $.80 for oats.

In letters to members of the Minnesota congressional delegation, Minnesota wheat growers president, Gordon Sonstelie from Winger, indicated that the paid diversion program should have been expanded to include wheat.

"The USDA's projections for wheat carryover stocks at the end of the 1986-87 year is 1.786 billion bushels, which is in excess of normal carryover needs," Sonstelie said. In addition, Sonstelie indicated the USDA has reduced its projection of wheat exports by 75 million bushels, down to 1.05 billion bushels, and if these projections are reduced further, it would result in even larger carryover stocks and would continue to add price depressing pressure on the agricultural economy.

Sonstelie also pointed out that the 27½ per cent unpaid acreage reduction requirement for wheat farmers, in order to qualify for farm program benefits, is already above the 20 per cent unpaid set aside required for feed grain producers. He said that providing an optional paid diversion for feed grains but not for wheat is not fair.

"For the farm program to work effectively and for farm prices to rise, carryover stocks must be reduced to more acceptable levels," Sonstelie stated. "A paid diversion for wheat would reduce stocks, and place additional money into the agriculture economy, while saving government storage payments."

Warren Resident Becomes Red River Of North Director

Virginia Kruger of Warren has been appointed communications director of the Red River of the North Resource Management Area, according to Clair Larson, chairman of the board for the Pennington county Soil and Water conservation district.

The conservation coalition for the prevention of soil loss consists of the Soil Conservation service, Minnesota soil and water conservation board, 11 soil and water conservation districts and the extension services in a nine-county area of northwestern Minnesota. It was formerly known as the Red River of the North Target area.

Kruger grew up in Ottertail county and lives in Warren where she has taught home economics at Warren high school. She has been an active member of her community and several organizations. Her activities include: Minnesota Women for Agriculture, the state nutrition chairman for five years, and also some volunteer promotional work for the Minnesota Wheat Growers. Her husband Jerry and three children, Garth, 12, Maria, 10, and Meredith, 6, are actively engaged in farming. Kruger is a graduate of North Dakota State University.

Kruger said she looks forward to her job. She said the coalition changed its name to better define its purpose, which is to aid farmers become more aware of wind erosion within the resource management area and publicizing solutions that reduce effects of wind and keep soil in place.

UMC To Begin Seminars

John Borchert, regents professor of geography at the University of Minnesota, will address "The Changing Scene in Rural America" at 3:30 p.m. Friday, November 14. Borchert will kick-off the University of Minnesota at Crookston — UMC seminar series in the agriculture research center auditorium.

Following his address Borchert will answer questions from the audience. Those attending the session are invited to a reception in UMC's Brown dining room at 5 p.m. There is no charge for the seminar or the reception.

The public is also invited to a dinner with UMC faculty at 5:30 p.m. in Brown dining room where Borchert will address "Developing Multi-Disciplinary Units Within the University and Possible Implications of UMC." Cost for the dinner is $7.50, and reservations are required. To make dinner reservations, call UMC's media resources office at 218-281-6510, extension 397.

Borchert has been a member of the University of Minnesota faculty since 1949. His teaching and research have dealt with the geography of natural resources, land development, and settlement in the United States in general and the midwest in particular.

He is well-known for his research on climate and water resources of the Midwest and Great Plains and urban and industrial water supplies in the United States. He is also well-known for later publications on the urbanization of the upper Midwest, the evolution of American metropolitan centers and economics regions, and highway development and public land policies in Minnesota.

He has served the University of Minnesota as chairperson of the geography department, associate dean of the graduate school, a founder and the director for the Center for Urban and Regional Affairs (CURA) during its first eight years of development from 1968 to 1976. He conceived and led the 10-year research and development program which created the state's internationally-known land management information system.

Borchert earned his advanced degrees in geography at the University of Wisconsin at Madison and his A.B. degree at DePauw University.

Other seminar programs addressed by national experts include: "The Changing Family Structure" in December; "Environmental Issues in rural Minnesota" in January; "The Survival of Rural Churches" in February; "The Impact of global Issues on Rural America" in March, "Entrepreneurship and the Survival of Small Towns" in April, and "Economic Perspectives" in May.

All seminars will be free and open to the public.

The basic funding for the seminar series came from the Minnesota campaign, according to W. Daniel Svedarsky, associate professor of natural resources in the agriculture division and seminar coordinator. Because of Crookston's remote location, noted speakers and quality programs are often unavailable for the area citizens. These seminar programs are planned to create a forum of discussion for UMC faculty and staff and for the community.

Rain, Rain, Go Away!

"Rain, rain, go away, come again another day."

Question: When?

For most of us there is no good day for rain to come. It cancels family outings, stymies outside games, and generally upsets our schedules.

But rain depends upon perspective. For the farmer, with crops dying in the field, any day is a good day for rain. And in our better, saner moments we all know that without rain the cycle of nature cannot happen and life becomes deserts.

The other night I got caught in the rain. I went into a meeting, damp all over and completely wet in spots. I complained, but then a poem by William Stidger came to mind. He wrote: "I saw God wash the world last night, and hang it out to dry."

Now that's perspective! And even in my damp condition the rain that had drenched me seemed a bit less damaging.

And then I remembered the last part of Stidger's poem: "I wish that He would wash me as white as that old birch tree."

As the Psalmist put it: "Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." (Ps. 51:7)

Jeannie Nelson furnished the decorated cake which had been baked by Margaret Rupprecht. By 2:00 o'clock that afternoon the bus arrived at the American inn in Minot where the group were assigned rooms and left their luggage after which they all left for the state fair grounds where the Host Fest was being held. Among the groups presenting musical numbers were the Liljedahls from Sweden, Bjoro Haland and son from Norway, Chmielewskis, Myron Floren, and Mel Tillis with an excellent concert. There were many crafts on display as well as tables of Norwegian foods to satisfy anyone's appetite. Saturday highlights were performances by Johnny Cash and June Carter Cash and others and the Parade of Flags from the countries of Norway, Canada, Sweden, Iceland, Finland, Denmark and America. This ceremony is very emotional and has to be seen to be appreciated. For the first year Miss Universe, who is from Finland, was at the festival. The selection of Miss Universe is a popular event in the United States. It was reported that 16,000 people attended the Host Fest on Saturday. The group also enjoyed dancing to the music of the Liljedahls, Myron Floren, Chmielewskis, LeRoy Larson, and the Tibors band. Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

A Personal Thanks

The editor wants to express a personal and public thank-you to the rest of the staff for putting in extra duty the past few days while he was walking hillsides and draws in pursuit of game birds in the Big Sky Country of eastern Montana. Their cooperation and extra effort are greatly appreciated and the break from routine was extremely welcome.

Special thanks go to reporters Dave Hill and Sharon LaCoursiere and sports editor Mike Lundgren for pitching in on additional duties and new publisher John Mattson for also taking on additional tasks and permitting the time away from the office.

This was the first time the editor has had an opportunity to spend any time in Montana and found it to be a delightful experience. The people were friendly, the countryside is decidedly different from the flatlands of northwestern Minnesota and the game appeared to be quite plentiful, although the natives claimed bird numbers to be on a downswing.

Our hunting party found coveys of up to 50 sharptail grouse and 25 to 30 Hungarian partridge, but weather was cool and windy and most of the birds were skittish and prone to flush well out of range. Enough were approachable to make for some exciting shooting on occasion, and just seeing a covey of 40 to 50 sharptails burst out of the end of a draw was worth the trip. All of us agreed that seeing the birds, having the opportunity to hunt for them and experiencing some new country and meeting new people made actually getting the birds secondary.

It is easy to see why Montana adopted the Big Sky Country theme, since the rolling hills and lack of trees create a horizon that appears to stretch beyond forever. The terrain is constantly changing and the hunter's expectation that game in abundance can be expected just over the next rise adds to the anticipation and excitement of hunting there.

If time — and Dave and Sharon and John — permit, we would like to do it over again next year. But this time we will be more familiar with the territory and may be able to avoid some of our mistakes. Don't hunters always have that optimism?

Good Election Turnout

Pennington and Marshall county residents are hardy souls and didn't let a little thing like cold weather come between them and their voting privilege on Tuesday. The ballot count in both counties was good for a non-Presidential year election.

The turnout shows that several local races can stimulate voters to go to the polls, knowing that they can play a role in determining who will serve in elective offices in their area. Pennington county races for treasurer, sheriff and county recorder — as well as the District 564 school board election in much of Pennington county — sent voters to the polls here. Marshall county races for sheriff, recorder, auditor-treasurer and fifth district commissioner were incentives in that county.

A review of Times' election predictions and comparison with the actual results will be carried in Monday's edition of the Times. Election tables are included in today's issue. The Times congratulates the voters in this area for being good citizens and participating in the selection of officials in their local government.

Revising The Speed Limit

Following editorial is from the Sioux Falls Argus Leader:

Motorists on South Dakota's lonely interstates have felt for years that the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit is unrealistic. So, like drivers everywhere, many ignore it.

Violation of the 55 limit is so widespread that, by some accounts, 37 states would be in danger of losing federal highway money if noncompliance statistics were reported honestly.

Congress is starting to recognize flaws in the limit and may, finally, do something about it.

The Senate has approved a $52.3 billion highway bill that would increase the maximum speed on rural interstates to 65. The plan would allow state legislatures to raise the speed limit to 65 on interstate highways outside areas of 50,000 or more in population. The proposal is in danger in the House, though. A committee chairman is threatening to let it die.

"I don't know how anybody could vote for legislation that could result in so many deaths, in so many paralyzing injuries and other serious injuries on the nation's roads," Rep. Jim Howard, D-N.J., said.

That's a noble concern and one that we share, but fears don't hold up under scrutiny.

Congress approved the 55 limit in 1974 as a fuel-saving measure to cope with the oil crisis. With fuel savings minimal, advocates now tout the limit as a life-saving measure.

Indeed, traffic fatalities fell 15 per cent the first year of the limit. But, as reported recently by the Heritage Foundation in Washington, the link between speed and safety appears illusory.

The average speed on the nation's highways increased during the past 10 years, but the number of fatalities per miles continued to drop.

Part of the credit for the big drop in fatalities in 1974 must go to high gas prices, which discouraged recreational driving. A number of factors — not just the 55 limit — appear to have made our highways safer.

If Congress wants to save lives, there are better ways to do this than by keeping the speed limit unrealistically low on rural interstates.

For one, Congress should encourage states in their efforts to keep drunken drivers off the road. As many as one-half of all highway deaths are believed to be alcohol-related.

Meanwhile, states should continue efforts to increase public use of seat belts.

And Congress should give the green light to the Senate speed limit plan.

Farm Program Too Inclusive

Following comments are from "Farmland News", published by Farmland Industries in Kansas City, MO.:

The finance manager of an Iowa cooperative raises some pointed and sensitive questions about farm policy in an article appearing in the Sept. 22 issue of Newsweek magazine.

Writing under the headline "Welfare for Farmers?" on the magazine's prestigious "My Turn" page, Randy Geyerman of the Albert City Co-op argues for targeting aid to farmers in trouble rather than allowing all farmers to be eligible for price support programs.

Geyerman, a CPA who has worked for the co-op six years, has an MBA from the University of Pennsylvania.

"Not everyone who eats is eligible for food stamps; not every mother qualifies for aid to families with dependent children," Geyerman observes. "But if I own a farm, I can benefit from federal farm programs even if I'm worth $1 billion and net $100 million every year."

Geyerman contends the "vast majority" of farmers have manageable debt levels and that only 20 per cent according to USDA statistics, account for two-third of all farm debt.

"Targeting farm payments to 20 per cent of the farmers might make the other 80 per cent scream — and they will until somehow, somewhere, some courageous politician helps them understand that we can remove Uncle Sam from owning and controlling the commodity business. It is no coincidence that grain inventories are at their highest levels ever and that corn prices are the lowest they've been in 14 years."

Geyerman says it would cost about $75 billion to simply pay off the loans of the one farmer in five who is heavily in debt. That would be the thing to do, he adds, if the primary goal of the farm program is to keep farmers on the farms, their children in local schools, their groceries in local stores and their finances at viable, local banks.

As matters stand now, he adds, price-support programs have placed the government in a position to own or control virtually every bushel of grain produced.

"Uncle Sam is sitting on so much now that there is no room on the farms or in the elevators for this year's crop," he adds. "He will eventually own most of this year's harvest, too, and some of it will have to be stored on the ground."

He cited the Albert City Co-op as an example. "We used to buy 15 million bushels of corn and soybeans from local farmers each year," he said, "but we're buying less than half that now. Like everyone around us, our bins are full of grain that the government owns."

N.A.H.

Today's excerpt from the November 5, 1936 Times is an account of the name of our fair city written many years ago by W.C. Smiley, which appeared under a now-and-then printed column, "Red River Valley History," by Wm. V. Working. Enjoy!

Let no one point the finger of scorn at Thief River. It is an ancient name, hoary with the traditions of centuries, and was without doubt, the proper title of this stream before Columbus discovered the new world. The first white men who set foot on this region found the lake and river so called and learned the Indian tradition of the origin of the name, learned how a grim Sioux, murdered long before his tribe had been driven out by the Chippewas, had concealed himself in the vicinity of this river, and, for years, lived an outlaw's life of pillage and robbery, defying capture though surrounded by enemies.

About the year 1750, the Chippewas (Obibways) drove the Sioux (Dakotas) out of Northern Minnesota, although for years thereafter, bands of Sioux warriors continued to roam this country as far east as Red Lake and to give battle to their hereditary enemies. The Chippewas translated the name into their own language but retained the meaning.

During this time the agents of the Hudson Bay company penetrated into this region and in 1800, Alexander Henry, a fur trader, writes of "Lac aux Voleurs" and "River aux Voleurs"; that is in French, "Lake and River of Thieves."

Major S.H. Long, of the United States army, in 1823 headed an expedition which explored the Red River as far north as Winnipeg. On the map accompanying his report of this journey he notes: "Thief R.," probably the first time the name was set down in the English language. Mr. Long did not, himself, see the river.

This was left for an adventurous young man named Beltrami, Italian by birth, by choice, who deserted the party at about the location of the present town of Hallock, and struck across country, alone, to Thief River, which he descended in a canoe to the site of this city, Thief River Falls. Thence following up Red Lake River he crossed lower Red Lake, ascended Mud River to Mud Lake and portaged to a little lake which he believed to be the source of the Mississippi and which he named, in honor of his sweetheart in far-off France, "Lake Julia." Thence following the Turtle Lakes and River he paddled down to Cass Lake and from there followed the Mississippi back to Fort Snelling. Lake Julia still bears that name and this group of lakes is called the "Julien sources" of the Mississippi.

Beltrami, in his book "Pilgrimages in Europe and America," tells of this trip and mentions "Robber river (called Wamans Watpa, by the Sioux and Powisci Sibi by the Cypowais), so denominated because one of the Sioux, in his flight from the vengeance which had been denouced against him for murder, kept himself concealed and robbed on this spot for many years, escaping the observation of his persecutors and enemies, by whom he was completely surrounded." The modern Chippewa name is Kemota Kemotake o cape. Kemota meaning "steal," Kemotake "thief" and cape "river."

From time to time persons have arisen among us who have clamored for a change of this name. To some it seems entirely too suggestive of the wild and wooly west to be a proper title for an honest, law abiding community. However, so long as Chicago prospers and grows apace in spite of its name, which is just plain Chippewa for "skunk," we feel that old Thief River Falls can also, under its ancient title.

While the source is little different from the generally accepted one on the surface, a study of the circumstances in each case and the meaning of the word in the two cases reveals considerable difference. In fact, the Smiley version interprets the original Indian name as having an even stronger meaning than the unpopular term, "thief." From the standpoint of historical accuracy, we are inclined to give this version careful consideration, for that other story about the entire band of Sioux hiding along Thief River does not sound so probable. But we do not understand clearly the necessity of translating from the Sioux into the Chippewa. In the first place, we do not see that the former would so label one of their band, even though he were a renegade, and in the second place, we think the Chippewa would be likely to originate their own name in such a case. Here the Smiley sketch may be in error.

But it is gratifying to be able to sift the facts in the case, for some time the cource of the city's name may assume significant proportions. We do not know of any other probable sources, so it would appear that the solution lies between these two accounts.

The award is given to recognize efforts in community improvements during the past year. In recognizing Fosston, competition judges said, "Cohesiveness and communication are apparent in this community. The judges just couldn't find any suggestions for improvement. Enthusiasm and support for community improvement projects are obvious in this community. They are a model for others to follow. Fosston, you are the best!"

Soo Line Reports Quarter Loss Of $5.7 Million

Soo Line corporation had a net loss of $5.7 million or 60 cents per share in the third quarter of 1986 because of lower revenues and charges related to reductions in the size of the company's work force, Dennis M. Cavanaugh, chairman and chief executive officer announced today.

The quarter loss compares to a year-earlier third quarter loss of $3 million or 41 cents per share. Revenues for the corporation were $155 million for the quarter compared to $164 million in the third quarter of 1985.

Revenues were down five per cent in this year's quarter from 1985 as a result of a three per cent decline in carload traffic handled and continued downward pressure on rate levels. The decline occurred in spite of a 16 per cent increase in intermodal units handled during the quarter. Carloads of farm products and raw materials and chemicals, principally coal, were higher in this year's quarter. There were declines in other major commodity groups due to competitive and economic factors, as well as strikes in some areas.

A charge of $9 million was made to operating expense during the third quarter, covering costs for 190 employees who were separated during the period. Prior to the third quarter, all separation costs were related to the consolidation plan for the Milwaukee acquisition and were charged to a $71 million liability established at the time of the purchase in 1985. The separation portion of this liability was fully committed early in the third quarter and subsequent separation costs are now charged to operating expense.

Operating income, excluding the $9 million employee separation charge, would have been $6.9 million for the quarter. Of that total, transportation operations would have generated $4.4 million and real estate provided $2.5 million.

Average employment of the Soo during the quarter was 6,600 people, down 1,700 employees or 20 per cent from the third quarter of 1985. Employment level reductions, however, were offset in part by higher wage and fringe benefit rates. Operating expenses in this year's third quarter were further reduced by lower fuel prices.

Soo changed the way it accounts for ballast installations during the third quarter of this year on a prospective basis to a method more in line with the predominant industry practice. This resulted in a $1 million reduction in operating expenses and increased capital expenditures.

"Soo is continuing to review all phases of its operations to bring them closer in line with current business levels," Cavanaugh said. "Continued downsizing through employee separations had a major impact on the corporation's results in the third quarter as significant charges were made to operating expense for the first time."

The corporation recorded $6.8 million of income tax benefits during the third quarter and nine month periods of this year. Included in this total are $1.1 million of 1986 investment tax credits which will be eliminated under the new tax legislation.

For the first nine months of 1986, Soo Line had a net loss of $5.2 million or 54 cents per share on operating revenues of $482 million. These results include the impact from sale of Soo's Minneapolis headquarters in June. In 1985, Soo recorded a net loss of $5 million or 67 cents per share on revenues of $456 million for the same nine-month period, but including Milwaukee Road operations only since February 19.

A final settlement with CMC Real estate corporation was made during the third quarter on most major issues involving Soo's purchase of the Milwaukee Road. Soo received $5.1 million in cash as part of the settlement but also agreed to assume full responsibility for certain potential liabilities. The net result of the settlement will be reflected as an adjustment to the Milwaukee Road purchase price in the corporation's balance sheet. Also during the quarter, the Seventh circuit court of appeals rejected three appeals concerning how assets of the former Milwaukee Road were sold to the Soo Line. Further appeals are not expected.

Electric Heaters Not Recommended For Overnight Use

Government safety experts say half the deaths and one-third the injuries resulting from portable electric heater fires could be prevented if consumers stopped using the heaters overnight when all family members are asleep.

According to the United States consumer product safety commission, portable electric heaters are involved in 240,000 residential fires each year. Most of these were not serious fires, but over 3,000 were attended by the fire service and resulted in 95 deaths and 220 injuries annually.

CPSC safety experts offered the following suggestions for operating portable electric heaters safely:

— Do not use these heaters as a substitute for a central heating system. Portable electric air heaters are designed for temporary heating only;

— Operate the heater at least three feet away from combustible materials, including bedding, home furnishings and objects in the room;

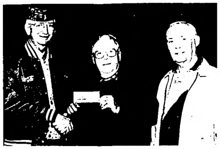
— Always follow warning or cautionary advice provided in labels on the heater, and follow manufacturer's operating instructions provided on or with the heater;

— Unless designed for specific uses, heaters should be used on the floor, never on cabinets, tables, furniture and the like. Never use heaters to dry wearing apparel or shoes. Do not place heaters where towels or other combustible materials could fall on the appliance and trigger a fire;

Heaters are not intended to be used in wet or moist locations, such as bathrooms. Never locate the heater where it may fall into water;

— Make sure the electric cord is strung out and not buried under carpeting or rugs. Do not place anything on top of the cord. Be sure the plug fits snugly in the receptacle. If the plug is loose, the potential for overheating is increased, and you should have a qualified repairman replace the plug or receptacle promptly.

— Avoid using an extension cord unless absolutely necessary. If you must use an extension cord, it must be marked number 14 or number 12 AWG; this tells the consumer the thickness or gauge of the wire in the cord. For example, a cord often sold at hardware stores as air conditioner extension cord will have these heavy gauge wires. Do not use a cord marked number 16 or number 18 AWG.



HERITAGE CENTER receives more donations in the form of a $10,000 check from Floyd Fredrickson, commander of the Thief River Falls American Legion post 117. Receving the welcome donation are Morris Howick, president of the Pennington county council on aging, and Jon Metusalem, chairman of Heritage Center building committee.

Because heaters draw considerable power, it is not unusual for the cord or plug to feel warm to the touch. However, if the cord or plug feels hot, unplug the unit and have a qualified appliance repairman check for problems. If the appliance is found to be operating properly, have the receptacle replaced. Continued operation of a heater with a hot cord or plug could lead to a fire.

— If the heater is used on a circuit protected by a ground-fault-circuit-interrupter (GFCI) and the heater trips the circuit, don't assume that the GFCI is malfunctioning. Since GFCIs are required to be installed at locations where leakage currents represent a severe shock hazard, you should discontinue using any heater which trips a GFCI and have the heater checked, even though it seems to be operating properly.

— Malfunctioning heaters should be examined and repaired by a qualified appliance service center. Consumers should never attempt to repair, adjust or replace components in the heater.

State Salutes Public Health Nurses Nov. 2-8

Public health nurses have played a "pioneering role" in finding innovative ways to protect and improve the health of Minnesota's people, according to a proclamation signed by Governor Rudy Perpich.

In the proclamation, Governor Perpich designates November 2-8 as Public health nursing week in the state.

The proclamation praises the state's public health nurses for their role in developing programs to improve the health of mothers and children, and provide health services to the ill and the disabled in their own homes. According to the proclamation, public health nurses have "consistently sought to provide public health programs and services to all the citizens of our state, including the poor, the weak and the vulnerable."

The observance of public health nursing week marks the hundredth anniversary of public health nursing in the United States, according to officials at the Minnesota department of health (MDH). The week's events will include a two-day conference November 6-7 in Bloomington, which will be attended by public health nurses from the state and local levels, schools nurses, nursing educators, and retired professionals from the field of public health nursing.

The conference is being held to celebrate the past successes of public health nursing and to help chart the future course of public health nursing in Minnesota, according to conference organizers.

The practice of public health nursing in Minnesota began in 1902, when Associated charities of Minneapolis became the first organization in the state to employ a visiting nurse to care for the sick, according to officials at MDH.

Since then, public health nursing has been credited with originating many of the state's most important public health programs and activities, including major efforts in the area of maternal and child health.

Public health nursing has also played a leading role in developing programs for care of the ill and the disabled in their own homes. Most recently, home health programs have been developed for children requiring very sophisticated, high technology care.

Home health programs and services have been widely praised as a less expensive — and more effective — alternative to institutional care.

Today, public health nurses work at both the state and local level, serving residents throughout Minnesota. Public health nurses also serve residents of the state through the schools, in the workplace, and through private voluntary organizations.

Minn. Red Meat Production Up Above Last Year

Minnesota's red meat production was up 28 per cent in September compared with a year ago. The U.S. red meat output was unchanged from 1985.

September beef kill was down six per cent in Minnesota and a decrease of 22 pounds per head of beef reduced total beef liveweight to 7 per cent less then the liveweight of a year ago.

Hog kill was up 65 per cent and total liveweight was 66 per cent higher than a year ago. Average weight per head increased one pound. Percentage comparison of hogs with a year ago is influenced by labor negotiations which interrupted processing in 1985.

Sheep and lamb counts were down 11 per cent while total liveweight was down eight per cent from September 1985. Average weight per head increased three pounds from last year.

Crops Ahead Of Five Year Average In MN So Far

Farmers realized a week of weather they've wanted for a long time, one to dry down crops and allow harvesting, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Crops with more than 90 per cent harvested and ahead of both last year and five-year average include: corn cut for silage, flax, potatoes, dry edible beans, and sugarbeets.

In addition to harvesting, plowing and other pre-winter field activities kept farmers busy. Fall fertilizer and chemicals are being applied. Wet spots in the southern half of the state still remain, causing harvest delays in these areas and some crops may be left unharvested. Hail damage in the middle and southern sections of the state have shown significantly lower yields for those crops affected. Topsoil moisture as of October 24, 1986 was rated two per cent short, 65 per cent adequate, and 33 per cent suplus. Day's suitable for fieldwork averaged 5.6 during the week.

Field corn harvested at 26 per cent compares with 23 per cent last year and 37 per cent for the five-year average. Moisture content of grain at 25 per cent is below last week's 27 per cent and compares with last year's 28 per cent and the five-year average of 26 per cent. Corn cut for silage at 95 per cent compares with 89 per cent last year and 94 per cent for the five-year average.

Soybeans combined at 84 per cent is up 35 points from last week and is double from last year's 42 per cent and well ahead of 58 per cent for the five-year average. Moisture content at 13 per cent is down from last week's 14 per cent and compares with 14 per cent for both last year and the five-year average.

Flax harvested at 91 per cent compares with 75 per cent a year ago and 88 per cent for the five-year average. Potatoes harvested at 99 per cent is virtually complete, compares with 95 per cent last year and 94 per cent for the five-year average. Dry edible beans harvested at 93 per cent compares with 86 per cent last year and 85 per cent for the five-year average. Sugarbeets harvested at 99 per cent is slightly above last year's 96 per cent but well ahead of the five-year average of 77 per cent. Sunflower harvest at 52 per cent compares with 27 per cent last year and 45 per cent for the five-year average. Small grain and hay stubble plowed or tilled totals 73 per cent versus 70 per cent last year and 80 per cent for the five-year average.

U.S. AND CANADIAN TRADE was discussed Thursday at a workshop sponsored by the small business development center, chamber of commerce and Northland community college, all of Thief River Falls. Frank Baeumler (left), education coordinator for the Minnesota Trade office in St. Paul, coordinated the session. Featured presenters were Larry G. Butcher (right), economic officer in the office of Canadian affairs for the U.S. state department and Lorraine J. Andras (second from right), manager of trade in the regional industrial expansion department of the Canadian government. Jan Hoff of the small business development center is second from left in the photo above.

$120 Billion Annual Business . . .

Canada-U.S. Trade Is Discussed On Thursday

Minnesota exports about $1 billion in goods to Canada annually, providing the base for about 25,000 jobs in the state. On a national basis about two million jobs in each country are dependent upon trade between the two nations.

These impressive statistics were presented at a meeting on Canadian and American trade attended by about 30 interested people Thursday at the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls. Similar sessions were held Wednesday in Moorhead and Thursday evening in Bemidji.

Presenting material and answering questions at the session were Larry G. Butcher, economic officer in the office of Canadian affairs for the U.S. state department in Washington, DC, and Lorraine Andras, manager of trade in the division of regional industrial expansion for the government of Canada. Andras has her office in Winnipeg, Man., Canada. Coordinating the meetings was Frank Baeumler, education coordinator for the Minnesota Trade office in St. Paul.

Sponsoring the session locally was the small business development center at the AVTI, chamber of commerce and Northland community college.

At issue for discussion Thursday was a hoped for agreement on bilateral trade which would result in virtual elimination of as many tariffs as possible between the two nations. At present tariffs on U.S. goods entering Canada average about nine or 10 per cent while tariffs on Canadian goods entering the United States average about four per cent.

The trade agreement was discussed in March of 1985 at the Quebec summit meeting (dubbed the Shamrock summit) between Canada's Prime Minister Mulrooney and United States President Ronald Reagan. The formal proposal was made by the Prime Minister in September of 1985, suggesting a

Plan No Criminal Charges In Abuse Situation At DAC

Pennington county plans no filing of criminal charges against Evan Armstrong, director of the Falls day activity center, as a result of client abuse charges, according to David Olin, Pennington county attorney.

Olin said he has had an opportunity to review reports from the Thief River Falls police department, Pennington county social service center and affidavits provided by legal advocacy for the developmentally disabled in Minnesota.

"In reviewing these reports and affidavits," the county attorney said in a prepared statement released last week, "I have come to the conclusion that there are no criminal charges involved in these allegations that could be proven.

"In order for a criminal charge to exist," he continued, "the standard of proof is guilt beyond a reasonable doubt and legal defenses such as self-defense would be available in a criminal prosecution. This being the case, I cannot see from the information that I have received that a charge could be proven beyond a reasonable doubt on any alleged abuse reports that I have received."

Armstrong has been barred from the center during times in which

Shooting Mishaps And Lost Hunters Reported

Two shooting mishaps which involved injuries and three reports of lost hunters in this area of Minnesota were noted during the past weekend when the first snow storm of the season combined with the opening of the deer hunting season to create hazardous situations.

Most serious accident involved Leonard Anderson, manager of Old Mill state park, who was shot in the lower right leg about 9 a.m. Saturday when members of his hunting party were unloading their guns prior to entering their vehicle after hunting east of Old Mill state park.

Marshall county sheriff's department reported that Anderson lost the lower right leg as a result of the accident and his condition is listed as stable at Northwestern medical center in Thief River Falls. The vehicle transporting him to the hospital went into the ditch west of Newfolden and an ambulance summoned from Thief River Falls transported him from west of Newfolden to the hospital here.

Another shooting accident was reported early this morning. Tedrick White, 29, St. Paul, reportedly had climbed into his tree stand on the east edge of Agassiz refuge and was pulling his rifle up with a rope when the weapon discharged, striking him in the hand. He was treated at Northwestern Medical center here and transferred to a Fargo hospital.

Scott Podvin, 27, Anoka, is hospitalized in Thief River Falls with frostbitten feet after being out in the woods overnight Saturday in the Thief Lake area. He had been missing for 14 hours when he found his way to a road Sunday morning and was taken to the hospital here.

Reuben Bakken, 65, East Grand Forks, was found about 2 p.m. Sunday in the Randen ridge area of Linsell township northwest of Grygla. He had been missing since 11 a.m. Saturday and was the subject of a search crew of 50 to 60 people who had begun to comb the area Sunday morning under the direction of the Minnesota department of natural resources. Search planes from the DNR were also in use when Bakken was found by another hunter who happened to meet him.

Marshall county sheriff's department reported that Bakken had apparently kept walking throughout the night and that he was in surprisingly good condition when he met the other hunter. He was treated and released from Northwest Medical center Sunday afternoon.

A 17-year-old hunter who had also been reported as missing in the Thief Lake are reportedly found his way out of the woods and back to his hunting party shortly after dark Saturday.

Temperatures plunged near the zero mark Saturday night and wind chill was listed at 20 to 30 degrees below zero.

Marshall county sheriff's department also reported two accidents which involved Thief River Falls area residents, one of which was storm related.

A Master bread truck driven by Arne Ryba of Newfolden and operating out of Thief River Falls went out of control on icy highway 75 about half a mile north of Warren Friday at 1:30 p.m. and overturned on its side in the ditch. There were no

TRF United Way Invites Requests For Allocations

Non-profit agencies which help individuals are receiving allocation questionnaires to request funding from the Thief River Falls United Way this week, according to Sharon Fugleberg, executive secretary.

Organizations which qualify and would like to request a fund allocation from the United Way may call 681-6633 or write to the Thief River Falls United Way, P.O. Box 276, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. The organization does not provide funds to individuals, Mrs. Fugleberg said.

The executive secretary also encouraged any campaign volunteers who have not turned in their collection packets to complete that task soon so that a budget for allocations can be set. The United Way board will meet Monday, November 17, at 7 p.m. at the occupational development center in Thief River Falls.

Hearing Nov. 20 In Thief River Falls On OTH-B Radar

Thief River Falls has been named as the site for an additional hearing conducted by the U.S. air force on the Central Over-the-Horizon Backscatter (OTH-B) radar system, according to Col. James A. Lee, director of the OTH radar systems directorate at Hanscom air force base in Massachusetts.

The hearing here at the Thief River Falls city auditorium has been scheduled for 7 p.m. on November 20. Other hearings have been set at the armory building in Hillsboro, ND, November 18 and the high school auditorium in Britton, SD, November 19, both at 7 p.m.

Holding of these three hearings follows an announcement by the air force that the comment period on the draft environmental impact statement has been extended to December 8.

"The public hearings are an opportunity for concerned citizens and government officials to participate in the air force's decision-making process," Col. Lee said. "Air force officials will explain the environmental impact analysis process for the proposed radar system and describe the major elements of the system, including the transmit site, receive site and operations center. The presentation will also address the possible environmental concerns and impacts caused by the installation of the radar system."

Following the air force's presentations, there will be a question and answer period for approximately 30 minutes. Immediately following the question and answer session will be a public comment period for interested individuals to present their comments. Time permitting, after hearing from all those who have requested to speak, the air force will again open the floor for added questions and comments.

Time limits imposed at the hearing will be five minutes for elected or other public officials as well as those representing a group or agency and three minutes for those citizens speaking for themselves.

Results of the public hearings and all written correspondence will be used to develop the final environmental impact statement which is expected to be published in January of 1987.

Copies of the draft environmental impact statement have been made

Hearing Tests Given To Elementary Students In TRF Schools

HEARING SCREENING was completed for 1,409 students in the Thief River Falls public schools during the past week. All pre-school and elementary students were included in the testing, along with students in the seventh and 10th grades. Of all students tested, it is estimated that about 10 per cent will "fail" the initial screening procedure and require re-testing in about two weeks. Of that 10 per cent group, an estimated three per cent will be referred for medical follow-up after the second screening. Janet Enger, regional audiology consultant, headed the screening team which included Carol Ihle, Julie Jossund, Joyce Kopari, Diedre Nordin, Kathy Olson and Janna Torgerson, speech and language clinicians for the Thief River Falls public schools. Testing consisted of pure-tone audiometry and tympanometry. In the photos above (left to right), Janet Enger uses the tympanometry testing on second grader Tinesha Porter, daughter of Vickie Brown; first grader Carrie Kildahl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Kildahl, raises her hand to indicate she has heard the instructions through her earphones; Janna Torgerson conducts an audiometry test on first grader Kristen Odegaard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Odegaard; and Julie Jossund checks the response of first grader Dacian Wolff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Wolff.

Society and Clubs

Rebecca Donarski-Brian Noreen United In Marriage July 12

Rebecca Lynn Donarski and Brian Lloyd Noreen were united in marriage July 12 at a 3 p.m. ceremony at Sacred Heart Catholic church with Rev. Henry Carriere officiating.

Music was provided by Nancy Eklund as pianist, David Carlson singing, and Tim Sandland on guitar. Organist was Debbie Higgins. Scripture reader was Karen Markstrom.

Parents of the couple are Luella Larson and Irvin Donarski of Roseau and Janice and Lloyd Noreen of Thief River Falls. The bride is the granddaughter of Edmund Kostrzewski of Strandquist, and the groom the grandson of Johana Krohn of Viking.

The bride was attired in a traditional white gown reminiscent of the Victorian era. The taffeta gown featured a shirred, lace-trimmed peplum and sheer English net yoke decorated in Schiffli lace applique with a wide ruffle of Wedgewood lace and accented with a satin ribbon bow at the deep V neckline. Twenty-five satin-covered buttons formed the back closing. A fitted bodice led to a lowered basque waistline accented with a satin bow. The full skirt was tucked to reveal lace ruffles, flowing to a semi-cathedral length train.

Her headpiece was composed of silk flowers and sprays of pearls, with a fingertip veil. To complete her ensemble, she wore fingerless gloves of Chantilly lace and carried a cascading bouquet of two dozen white roses, babies' breath; ivy and suede rose satin ribbons.

The groom was attired in white tails with matching vest and bow tie, and wore a boutonniere of a white rose with babies' breath.

Cindy LeTexier, best friend of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were step-sister of the bride, Lisa Thompson, sisters of the groom, Wendy Noreen and Laura Amiot, and friends of the bride, Michele Delmore and Raynelle Monsrud.

They wore gowns of pink ice taffeta, trimmed with Wedgewood lace, specially chosen to compliment the bridal gown. Ballgown, ruffled bodice was worn off-the-shoulder and the full skirt was tucked with satin bows to reveal Wedgewood lace tiers. They wore LaVonne-tinted babies' breath in their hair, and each carried a single LaVonne rose sheaf trimmed with babies' breath and flowing satin ribbon streamers.

Flowergirl was Nikki Kostrzewski, cousin of the bride. Her gown was identical to those of the bridal attendants. She carried a lace basket filled with white mini-carnations and rosebuds with babies' breath and greenery.

The bride's personal attendants wer Sherry Donarski, her sister-in-law, and Cindy Janzen, friend. Flower attendants were Beverly Rux and Nancy Noreen.

Serving as best man was the groom's cousin, Jim Noreen. Other attendants were Bruce, Billy and Brian Donarski, brothers of the bride; and Paul Brazier and Kenny Sylvester, friends of the groom. They wore silver shadow century tails, white shirts, and ice pink satin cummerbunds and bow ties. Their boutonnieres were a single LaVonne rose with babies' breath.

Adam Amiot, nephew of the groom, served as ring bearer. He wore tails identical to those of the groom's attendants with a sweetheart rose boutonniere.

Ushering the guests were Bryan Lundgren, Dave Glennen, Rocky Fevold and Jason Oslund. They wore silver tuxedos with ice pink accessories and boutonnieres of a LaVonne rose.

Mothers of the couple wore tea-length gowns of pink and dusty rose. They were presented with corsages of white mini-carnations, a large suede rose, ivy, and babies' breath. Fathers of the couple were attired in silver tuxedos with ice pink accessories and boutonnieres matching the corsages of the mothers.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. Hosts and hostesses were Neil and Lorraine Anderson and Duane and Mavis Krohn. Tammy Gjovik attended the guest book; Kim and Garnette Kuznia, programs; and Ryan Steenerson and Danny Swendra were in charge of carrying the gifts.

Punch was served by Michelle Hill and Sheila Kostrzewski. The wedding cake was cut and served by the godmother of the bride, Yvonne Kostrzewski, and Karen Markstrom, assisted by Nettie Kuznia and Dee Noreen. Frances Dahl and Lois Weiss poured.

The wedding dinner was served by the ladies guild of the Sacred Heart church, with Mary Hill, Kari Walton, Heidi Lommen, Nancy Estabrooks, Dawn Herling and Kelly Kveen as waitresses. Shon and Shane Naslund distributed thank-you scrolls.

The couple is at home in Roseau where the bride is employed at Marvin Windows and the groom at the Body Shop.

BEEF JERKY

Jerky is a lightweight form of protein, traditional for outdoorsmen.

Use either one pound of very lean round or flank steak. Remove all fat and place the meat in the freezer. When meat is semi-frozen, it is easily cut into three-eights or one-quarter inch strips (the thinner the slices, the faster the drying). Meat cut with the grain will be chewy, while cuts against the grain will be tender and break more easily when dried.

Marinate meat in sauce of:

4 tablespoons soy sauce
3 tablespoons worcestershire
1 tablespoon ketchup
¼ teaspoon pepper (more for hotter jerky)
⅓ teaspoon garlic powder
⅓ teaspoon onion salt
½ teaspoon salt
May add liquid smoke if desired.

Marinate the meat for one hour; then drain in colander. Place on trays to dry. For fastest drying, do not overlap on the trays. Turn the meat at least once during the drying period. Dry at 145 degrees Ferenheit for eight to 10 hours. It is ready when it bends like a green willow without breaking. Long-term storage should be in the refrigerator or freezer. May be dried in oven on low heat on a cookie sheet.

The INSIDE SCOOP

by GAYLE BORCHERT

Lincoln students will observe Veteran's Day with an all-school assembly on Tuesday, November 11. This is the first time in many years the students at Lincoln have had the opportunity to participate in a Veteran's Day ceremony. The American Legion color guard will present the colors.

It is appropriate that the American Legion, its auxiliary and the VFW participate in the school program because both organizations are strong supporters of youth. The Legion and auxiliary sponsor the boys' and girls' state programs on the high school level and in the elementary grades they send school patrol members to camp. These organizations help to preserve and teach a sense of Americanism to American youth.

Veteran's Day has its own history. World War I ended on November 11, 1918 and for a number of years afterward that date was observed as Armistice Day. After the Korean War, the name was changed to Veteran's Day in order to honor all of our veterans on the same day.

Totally unrelated to Veteran's Day, Tuesday will also be the last day to order senior sweatshirts. These will be hooded white sweatshirts featuring all of the senior class names on the front. The cost is $17.50.

The report from Miss Shaw is that the FHA convention was a success.

Clubs at Lincoln: The German club is another organization that is open to any student. Miss Neumann is the advisor. Some of the club's activities include helping sponsor students who travel to Germany and hosting German exchange students when they visit Thief River Falls in the spring. To raise money, the members sell German Advent calendars and sponsor dances. They also host a German banquet in the spring which features German cuisine.

Canada-U.S. Trade Discussed At Meeting On Thurs.

mutually beneficial, broadly based reduction in barriers to trade of goods and business services between the two friendly nations.

Trade talks which have been underway since shortly after the proposal was made are headed by Ambassador Peter Murphy of the United States and Ambassador Simon Reisman of the Canadian trade negotiations office. There are about 50 U.S. and 15 Canadian advisory committees which are providing input toward the agreement and about 10 people involved on each nation's negotiating team.

Butcher and Andrus pointed out that the United States and Canada are the largest trading partners in the world with about $120 billion annually — equal to about one-fifteenth of all world trade. Although there are some irritants, the two officials said, it is amazing — given the volume and diversity of products and services involved — that there are not more. Andras noted that part of the difficulty in reaching large scale trade agreement is the attention which has been paid to certain sensitive industries under prior regulations. Canada is protective against imports of such items as furniture, shoes, textiles and some agricultural products, for instance, while the United States is protective against steel, petro-chemicals and other chemicals, fish and some agricultural products.

Andras said that the business area in Canada is generally supportive of lowering trade barriers but is calling for a period of adjustment during which such changes may take place. That need is recognized, she said, and Butcher agreed that the trade environment cannot be changed overnight. A period of about 10 years is being considered with those items having higher tariffs being reduced over longer periods of time than those with lower tariffs.

The premise is that a trade agreement will not be an item by item effort to make changes, but to adopt a comprehensive package and then look at making what exceptions may seem necessary, Butcher said. The goal is that it will be as easv for Minnesota and Canadian firms to deal with one another as it is for businessmen to deal state-to-state in this country or province-to-province in Canada.

Butcher noted that the telecommunications area has export potention for several hundred million dollars a year, and hospital and medical equipment is another area which holds great promise. At the present time about 40 to 50 per cent of exports from Canada to the United States involve intra-company transfers and about a third of U.S. exports to Canada are intra-company related.

Butcher said he was impressed with new business ventures in this area of the country, including snowmobiles, off-road vehicles and the wood window industry. He said all are capable of new economic activity which could benefit from export and he was encouraged by being made aware that it exists here.

Questions addressed at the meeting in Thief River Falls included fuel products, border crossing inspection fees, various tariff rates and other items of interest.

"If Canada and the United States — the world's two greatest trading partners and best neighbors — can't reach an agreement on international trade," Lorraine Andras said, "what hope is there that others can?"

Attorney Plans No Criminal Charges In DAC Situation

clients are there and been deprived of supervisory actions regarding staff under state regulation which requires such action when client abuse is alleged. Charges of abuse of clients were made by employees of the center during a time span covering approximately the past two years. An audit of the day activity center was also ordered by the center's board of directors, and that audit was started prior to a compliance audit which was being planned by the state department of human services.

Pennington county commissioners have withdrawn their financial support of the day activity center in action taken at a special meeting and the department of human services has indicated that it could withdraw the license for the center to operate if its orders concerning the director do not meet compliance by the day activity center board. The board has complied with the order but objected to it, contending that the director is being penalized without access to due process in his own defense.

In his prepared statement, county attorney Olin adds the following:

"This addresses only criminal charges and I make no comments on any licensing status as set out by the Minnesota department of human services rules and regulations. My reason for not making a comment on licensing is that is a matter that must be resolved by the state of Minnesota, department of human services, and is based on different rules and regulations and on a lesser degree of proof as far as whether or not any abuse may have occurred.

"The criminal standard of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt is not the same one that is applied to a licensing rule or to any other rule," he said, "and thus I cannot comment on any other possible sanctions other than the criminal sanctions.

"At this moment, no comment can be made on the audit that is presently being done as I have no direct information as to what its results will show."

The audit is being conducted by Moser, Christianson Ltd., the same local accounting firm which handles the accounting for the day activity center on a regular basis.

COUNTING THE CASH is one of the more enjoyable tasks in the workings of a restaurant. Dawn Lambert was a cashier at "The Jack-O-Lantern" cafe that was open at Franklin Middle School last week. The cafe utilizes eighth grade students in the Exploring Careers class to make the food and run an actual restaurant for two days each year.

The Open & Closed Case Of 'The Jack-O-Lantern'

By Sharon LaCoursiere

"The Jack-O-Lantern" restaurant opened for business October 30 and closed the next day. But far from being a business disaster, the restaurant was a roaring success.

"The Jack-O-Lantern" was a business venture of the Exploring Careers classes at Franklin Middle School, with Jan Breiland as teacher and business manager. Three classes of second year home economics eighth grade students organized the restaurant; managed advertising and promotion; applied for job positions and became waitresses, cashiers, dishwashers, hosts and hostesses, food servers during restaurant operation; and did all the preparation of the food themselves.

Fifty-one students took part in the business enterprise this year, serving a total of 278 meals, including two meals each to participating students. Main course choices offered were barbecues with pickles and potato chips, spaghetti pie and a dinner roll, quiche Lorraine with crackers, or tuna-mac salad with a dinner roll. (Recipes for the spaghetti pie and chocolate almond pie are featured in today's Cook's Choice column.)

Also available were pumpkin or bran muffins, and beverages of coffee, milk, apple cider, or three different types of soda. Desserts consisted of French apple pie, pumpkin pie, pecan pie, chocolate almond pie, molasses cookies, pumpkin face cookies, ice cream or a chocolate sundae. All menu offerings were prepared ahead of time by the students during regular class time.

The home economics room at Franklin school became the mini-cafe between 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. for two days. Tables were festively decorated with pumpkins, gourds, and decorated placemats, all made by students. Patrons were seated by a hostess, and meticulously cared for by their own personal waitress. Following the meal, a conscientious cashier smilingly accepted payment. In the meantime, the kitchen area was bustling with activity, as aproned employees quickly filled plates and glasses for the waitresses and carefully washed the used dishes and utensils.

Mrs. Breiland said that the restaurant is in operation each year, and has been a part of the class for so many years that she can't remember just how many. The week after the restaurant operation, all students who have participated will evaluate the venture, offering tips on improvement for next year. Breiland said that this was the "best year yet" and she attributes the success in part to the accumulation of contributions from students of previous years.

Students will also be utilizing the tips they accumulated at the restaurant in a special adventure as a group. Last year they visited a local fast food restaurant, picking up tips for next year's restaurant and indulging in a treat themselves.

There will also be some hard, cold facts about the business world when profit and loss are figured this week. Students will examine the amount of money expended for the grocery supplies, as well as considering wages and other pertinent expenses.

The Franklin mini-restaurant may be an unforgettable learning experience for the students, but it is also a very enjoyable eating experience for those who are patrons. If you are ever lucky enough to be invited there, be sure to go, and be ready to indulge in some delicious, well-prepared goodies. And don't forget to leave a tip — the kids deserve it — and a tip o' the hat, too.

The air force had been invited by Jobs Incorporated of Thief River Falls to consider this area for its receive site in the Central OTH-B system and was presented with a number of reasons why the site should be located here. Since that time considerable opposition has surfaced in the townships which would be considered for receive site location, resulting in a number of public meetings and petitions in opposition to the project.

Shooting Mishaps And Lost Hunters Reported In Area

injuries but damage to the 1976 model truck was estimated at $1,500.

At 7:30 p.m. Sunday about four miles west of Warren on highway 1, a 1974 semi-trailer truck owned by Thief River Falls Trucking and driven by William Hoglo struck and killed a moose. The truck was traveling east when the moose came onto the roadway, was hit and dragged under the truck which remained on the road. Damage was estimated at $2,500 to the truck but there was no injury to the driver.

Residents of Thief River Falls and Pennington county were pretty careful this weekend according to the Law enforcement center in Thief River Falls.

In Thief River Falls four accidents were reported with damages totaling about $2,500. No serious injuries were reported. The law enforcement center credited the few accidents to careful driving.

In Pennington county only one apparent storm related accident was reported. Total damages in an accident that happened at the intersection of highway one and 59 reached about $3,800. No serious injuries were reported in that accident either. The sheriff's office also received a report of a car stalled near Holt with three people in it. The call was turned over to the state patrol. No injuries were reported.

Marshall County Soil Survey Is Near Schedule

Soil survey in Marshall and Beltrami counties took place about on schedule during the 1986 season, according to Ralph Rundell, soil conservation technician for the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district.

A "last acre" ceremony for the Beltrami county survey was conducted in September to celebrate completion of field mapping in that county. Final map preparation and manuscript writing will now be done.

In Marshall county, diversion of mapping to conservation reserve fields in the spring put the survey behind a little, but cooperative weather this fall allowed soil scientists to do some catch-up mapping and return the survey to schedule.

Rundell said the winter will be spent in map work, inking lines and writing soils descriptions. He expressed appreciation to landowners for their cooperation and invited persons with questions about the survey to contact SWCD offices in Warren or Grygla.

Dear Readers,

Veterans Day brings back poignant memories to all but the very young. Wars are fought to "end all wars", yet they continue. Mankind has gradually established the rule of law to resolve disputes that caused bloodshed between clans, tribes and states. Is it not possible to extend this rule of law among nations, so that man can finally honor God's commandment, "Thou shalt not kill?"

Respectfully,

Karen Heher Attends Optifast Network Program

Karen Heher, registered dietitian at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls recently attended the 1986 regional network meeting of the optifast program in Chicago.

Optifast is a unique weight loss program in Thief River Falls for the massively obese. This program is the first of its kind in North Dakota and Northwestern Minnesota. Optifast is a modified fasting program in which patients are placed on a strict fasting regimen to assure continuous weight loss in the range of two or five pounds a week. Essential nutrients are provided through the Optifast supplement, a nutritionally complete formula which has been proven medically safe.

While in Chicago, Heher attended lectures and workshops and gained information about other Optifast programs in the region. The meeting provided ideas which may be implemented into the Optifast program at Northwest Medical center. As meetings are available in the future we hope to be able to participate in order to continue to update our Optifast program to the best of our ability.

Individuals interested in more information on the Optifast program may call 681-4240, extension 357.

Wildlife Artist To Appear In Show At Pat's Potpourri

Thomas Parr Williamson, wildlife and nature artist from Baudette, will appear in a one man art show at Pat's Potpourri in Thief River Falls on Thursday, November 13.

Williamson recently received statewide recognition when his work was selected to appear on the 1987 Minnesota state park vehicle permits. The stamps, bearing Williamson's painting of the piping plover, went on sale on November 1st.

The first print of the piping plover stamp, framed and matted, will be on display at the show. This special edition will be presented to Governor Perpich later this month by Thomas Parr Williamson in St. Paul. Orders for the stamp print will be taken during the show.

Demonstrations of his unique pallet knife method of oil painting will be given throughout the show. He will also be available to answer questions on wildlife painting.

The show will open Pat's Potpourri as a year around gallery for Williamson's work for the Thief River area.

Williamson has lived in northern Minnesota since the early 1970s. He and his family live on the Rainy River east of Baudette. He has made a career of capturing the beauty of this special area in oil paintings, emphasizing the native wildlife and waterfowl.

He is active in Ducks Unlimited and has recently completed major works for local chapters. With the money raised from Williamson's paintings, the DU has purchased land in Canada for conservation.

Williamson is presently the artist of the month at Warroad public library.

State Lifelong Learning Week To Be Observed

By 1990 more than one out of every three students in higher education will be a part-time student 25 years or older, according to the commission on higher education and the adult learner. The American Society for Training and Development estimates that 75 per cent of all adult workers currently employed will need retraining by the year 2000.

Highlighting the educational resources which Minnesota offers for these adults is the theme of Minnesota Lifelong Learning Week, November 16-22. The week is sponsored by the Minnesota Association for Continuing Adult Education in cooperation with over 70 organizations in Minnesota which offer continuing education services for adults.

Lifelong learning opportunities are available throughout Minnesota's education system. Community education programs in public school districts and county extension offices across the state offer classes and other educational services in local communities. Continuing education and extension programs of the state's vocational technical schools, community colleges and four year colleges and universities provide classes, lectures, workshops, seminars and other special programs for adults.

Special programs to meet the varied educational needs and interests of adults are not limited to schools. Programs can also be found in churches, unions, health centers, corporate employee training programs, civic and community groups, arts organizations, professional associations, libraries and many other community organizations.

These organizations offer adults opportunities for personal, social and career growth through lifelong learning. Whether a person's interests are in job skills, community issues, art, business management, physical fitness, agriculture, math, religion, health, carpentry or literature, there's a place for adults to go among Minnesota's continuing education opportunities.

Election Prediction Review

So how did you do on your election predictions? Were there any surprises? Did your favorite candidate get put out to pasture? How about the close races? Were you surprised there were so many? Are you upset by the way the electorate shifts from one party or candidate to another from election to election.

If this sounds like a program introduction from your radio "Talk Net" psychiatrist, we apologize for the similarity. It is merely an introduction to a review of our election predictions and the actual results. We'll go down the line as our predictions were made.

We predicted county attorney Dave Olin would win reelection over John Novacek by "a comfortable margin". Olin did win, but a margin of only 103 votes with 5,571 votes cast for the office was definitely uncomfortable.

We picked Eugene Prestegaard to win reelection as county recorder and he did so handily with 3,730 votes to 1,798 for Ann Pluth-Olson. We expected Bob Wold to have a razor-thin margin over Jim Haugen for county sheriff, but Wold held a 718-vote spread which was far from razor-thin.

In the county treasurer's race, where Leo Nelson had led all candidates in the primary, we "went out on a limb" to pick Vickie Bjorgaard to win the election. Bjorgaard did win by a margin of 109 votes, having a margin of 255 votes in the city of Thief River Falls while losing in other precincts of the county by 146 votes.

We expected that incumbent judges would be reelected by virtue of their incumbency and that proved to be the case. James Wilson gave incumbent F.R. Weddel a good run in the 17-county district but lost 52,952 to 55,745. Judge Clinton Wyant swamped John Graham in the other Ninth District judge race.

On the state ballot we accepted a freebie with Wally Sparby's unopposed candidacy for House of Representatives. We said Sen. LeRoy Stumpf would be a shoo-in over Jim Butler "almost two to one". The finals gave Sen. Stumpf the edge almost three to one.

For Seventh District Representative in Congress, we said we thought Arlan Stangeland could "weather another storm and get just enough votes to win another squeaker". With a recount to be almost assured, unofficial returns with all 926 precincts reporting showed Stangeland with 94,100 votes to challenger Collin Peterson's 93,889 votes. Last election, riding the crest of the popular Ronald Reagan presidency, Stangeland whipped Peterson by 33,367 votes. Until something changes, Stangeland is the winner.

We picked the Perpich-Johnson gubernatorial ticket over the Ludeman-Schulstad duo and Perpich-Johnson won 787,307 to 605,334. We expected Joan Growe to swamp Don Koenig for secretary of state and she won 886,487 to 456,471. We predicted Arne Carlson (despite being a Republican incumbent) would be reelected state auditor and he won 696,791 to 562,696 over John Dooley. Our bet was that Mike McGrath would win by a small margin over John Drew for state treasurer and McGrath won 685,276 to 552,239. And we said Skip Humphrey would skip back into the state attorney general's office, which he did 959,482 to 392,201 over Lew Freeman.

For School District 564 board of education, we predicted that Paul Bortnem and Greg Pribula would be reelected and that Ron Martin would be elected from the remaining five challengers with Jay Borchert, Dennis Kiesow, Frank Womack and Jack Boyer following in that order.

Bortnem and Martin were elected by Pribula finished fourth behind third place winner Dennis Kiesow. Borchert, Womack and Boyer finished fifth, sixth and seventh.

Net result of the predictions and decisions by the voters was that we missed on one of our expectations of who would be elected while being correct on 16 guesses. How did you do?

Watermelon Wisdom

Fast approaching is the Thanksgiving season when special attention is paid to recognizing the blessings and benefits which we enjoy in our nation. We recently came across this essay by William Jennings Bryan which holds as much of a message today as it did many years ago when it was written:

"I was passing through Columbus, Ohio, some years ago," Bryan wrote, "and stopped to eat in the restaurant in the depot. My attention was called to a slice of watermelon, and I ordered it and ate it. I was so pleased with the melon that I asked the waiter to dry some of the seeds that I might take them home and plant them in my garden.

"That night a thought came into my mind — I would use that watermelon as an illustration. So, the next morning when I reached Chicago, I had enough seeds weighed to find out that it would take about 5,000 watermelon seeds to weigh a pound, and I estimated that the watermelon weighed about 40 pounds. Then I applied mathematics to the watermelon.

"A few weeks before someone, I know not who, had planted a little seed in the ground. Under the influence of sunshine and shower that little watermelon seed had taken off its coat and gone to work; it had gathered from somewhere 200,000 times its own weight, and forced that enormous weight through a tiny stem and built a watermelon.

"On the outside it has a covering of green, within that a rind of white and within that a core of red, and then it had scattered through the red, little seeds, each one capable of doing the same work over again. What architect drew the plan? Where did that little watermelon seed get its tremendous strength? Where did it find its flavoring extract and its coloring matter? How did it build a watermelon?

Until you can explain a watermelon do not be too sure that you can set limits to the power of the Almighty or tell just what He would do, or how He would do it. The most learned man in the world cannot explain a watermelon but the most ignorant man can eat a watermelon and enjoy it.

"God has given us things that we need, and He has given us the knowledge necessary to use those things, and the truth that He has revealed to us is infinitely more important for our welfare than it would be to understand the mysteries."

"Misinformation!?"

The recent "misinformation campaign" by the federal government prompted the following editorial entitled "The Government's Right to Lie" in the October 11 issue of Editor and Publisher:

"It wasn't the charge that the Reagan administration has employed disinformation and misinformation techniques and otherwise lied to the press and the public that caused the ruckus. It was the fact that some administration officials could find nothing wrong with the practice, although some of them, including the President, flatly denied it had taken place.

"It should be realized, we fear, that this probably has been common practice in Washington over the years and the press has been naive to believe otherwise. The public has a short memory and its reaction to such deception is usually mild acceptance of official claims that it was necessary for this or that national or international objective. The press has been upset on occasions, like this latest incident, but there doesn't seem to have been any cry of outrage from the public about being misled.

"(This practice) cannot be condoned. It must be condemned when discovered. If government officials seriously believe they have the right, or duty as they see it, to lie to press and public 'on occasion', how is anyone to know when they are telling the truth?"

Borrowed Nonsense

A little girl watched her aunt applying face cream and asked what she was doing. "Making myself beautiful," the aunt replied. The little girl continued to watch the process, and when the aunt began using tissue to remove the cream she asked, "Why are you giving up?"

Two caterpillars were crawling along a leaf when a butterfly flew by overhead. "Boy!" one of the caterpillars exclaimed to the other. "You'll never get me up in one of those things!"

PRAIRIE RAMBLING

by Gretchen Beito

— "River City"

How about a nick-name for our city? "River City" would be just right. That is what the announcer on KSRQ-FM calls us. He has something there — With not one, but two enchanting rivers wending their way through our neighborhoods, it seems that "River City" would be a choice casual name for us. Other cities have nick-names: Minneapolis is "City of Lakes." St. Cloud is "Granite City." Middle River is "Goose Capitol." I like the name "Thief River Falls," but I do not like "Thief," the nickname we hear a lot.

The prairie is one of those plainly visible things that is so big that one can scarcely take it in. It is the rivers that put edges on the otherwise limitless prairie here. The rivers define the prairie and dictate the path of growth of our town.

Our swift-flowing rivers have cut channels in the prairie that have developed sloping, sometimes steep banks anchored with beautiful trees and shrubs. These create outstanding sites for our parks and homes and farms. In a Minnesota canoeing guide, the Red Lake river is the only river of Northwestern Minnesota that is recommended for canoe trips. The manual promises that the canoeist will enjoy not only the verdant landscape all the way from Red Lake but also the views of Thief River Falls homes with their green lawns sloping down to the river.

If we want to be even more descriptive for a second name, "Where the Two Rivers Meet" would fit. When Dan Needham, a member of the Red Lake band of Chippewa Indians, comes to Thief River Falls with his family, he says they are "going to where the two rivers meet." That was the name of the village located where the Thief and Red Lake rivers meet, close to the site of today's Northland college. When Dan was a small child he lived in this village, called in Ojibwa "Ne-gid-dah-mi-ti-gway-yung."

Many people before us have enjoyed the loveliness of our waterways. Indians derived the name of Red Lake river from its source, Red Lake. In 1885, missionary Joseph A. Gilfillan wrote that "Red Lake is so called from the color of the lake reflecting the redness of sunset on a calm summer evening, when unruffled by wind and in a glassy state, at which times it is of a distinctly wine color." This Ojibwa name, "Mis-qua-gumi-wi sagai-igun" or red-water lake, tells us something of the appreciation of natural beauty and grandeur by Indians. It is good to know that they took the name from the hues of sunset.

Now, in November, the golden and russet grasses at the river water's edge bring a beauty of texture and color that enhance the fall landscape. Helen Hunt Jackson's words, "The sedges flaunt their harvest," comes often to mind.

Sometimes we do not appreciate the special landscape we have here. How about the vistas of water and trees glimpsed as we cross and recross our bridges?

"River City." "Where the Two Rivers Meet." Either would be fine for a nick-name.

Hearings For Low-Level Radioactive Waste Sites Set

Midwest interstate low-level radioactive waste commission has scheduled regional hearings on a draft plan for management and disposal of low-level radioactive waste. Low-level radioactive waste results from the use of radioactive materials in medicine, research, industrial production, consumer goods, and nuclear power plants. (Spent uranium fuel, a high-level radioactive waste, is not included.)

Public information meetings and formal hearings are scheduled for November 10 and 12 in St. Paul. Citizens are encouraged to share their views at the meetings or in written testimony by Dec. 1, 1986.

The Midwest commission was formed in response to federal legislation requiring that, by Jan. 1, 1993, the states provide for the safe management and disposal of low-level radioactive waste that is generated within their borders. The federal legislation also encouraged states to join together in interstate compacts to carry out this responsibility on a regional basis. The Midwest interstate low-level radioactive waste compact, composed of Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio and Wisconsin was formed for this purpose.

The compact, ratified by each state legislature, established the midwest commission. The commission is composed of one representative appointed by the Governor of each member state. A primary task of the midwest commission has been the development of a regional low-level radioactive waste management plan. The plan examines current and projected waste generation rates in the Midwest region, as well as the type, number, and distribution of needed regional management facilities.

In early 1987, the commission will identify four states as potential host states and, after a 90-day period, will designate one as the first state to host a regional low-level radioactive waste management facility. The actual site selection and facility design will be the responsibility of the host state. The commission has developed a benefits package to encourage a state or states to volunteer to host a facility.

Hearings on the draft regional low-level radioactive waste management plan are scheduled in each of the Midwest commission's member states during the period from November 10 to November 25, 1986. The purpose of the hearings is to receive public comments and questions that citizens from member states may have on the draft plan. A hearing transcript will be kept and all comments and questions will be addressed by the commission in a response document that will be issued in January, 1987.

Hearings in Minnesota have been scheduled for November 12, 1986. They will be held in room 5 of the state office building, 435 Park Street, St. Paul, MN 55155. Afternoon and evening sessions will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. Public information meetings on the low-level radioactive waste issue and plan will be held at the same location Nov. 10, at 2 and 7 p.m.

Anyone who wishes to obtain a summary of the draft plan, submit written comments, or get further information about the hearings should contact: John Holck, Minnesota Pollution Control Agency, 520 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155, telephone number 612-296-7743.

Lifelong Learning Week Planned At NCC Nov. 16-22

Northland community college is dedicated to providing quality education that meets the needs of the adult population, according to college staff. It offers classes on campus and also serves the surrounding areas by providing college credit courses in various off-campus sites such as Roseau, Warroad, Karlstad, Hallock, Stephen, Bagley, Bemidji, East Grand Forks, Fertile, Fosston, Mahnomen, Newfolden and Red Lake.

Minnesota lifelong learning week, November 16-22, gives Northland community college the opportunity to inform area adults of the learning opportunities available to them. Adults who choose to investigate further education will find that Northland community college has various programs to help meet their needs.

The Alliss grant is an excellent example of programs designed to meet the needs of the adult learner. The Alliss grant allows adults over 25 who do not hold a bachelors degree and have not taken a college class for seven years to enroll in one free college course. Books are also included in this award. A total of 2,581 Minnesota adults took advantage of this grant to sample a college class during the 1986 fall quarter. Additionally, adults qualify for the 6.5 million available through the Minnesota part-time grant program.

At Northland community college, more than 50 per cent of the students are over the age of 28. This testifies to the fact that area residents are utilizing the services available to them, according to the college.

Minnesota lifelong learning week is sponsored by the Minnesota association of continuing adult education (MACAE), the Minnesota extension service, the Minnesota community college system and Northland community college.

For more information on the educational opportunities available to you, call Geri Howe at 681-2181, ext. 27.

100 Years Young

Fertile — The city of Fertile is planning for its 100th birthday in 1987. Official start of the celebration will be July 3, 1987. Several activities are planned including an all-school reunion, city-wide games and contests, and a program featuring highlights of Fertile's 100 years.

Good Going, Guys

Greenbush — The quick action of the Greenbush fire department prevented a major loss November 3 when they responded to a call from the Keith Kilen farm near Greenbush at 11:15 a.m. when Mrs. Kilen noticed smoke pouring from the barn. When firemen arrived, they saw flames coming from the roof of the building, which is used for grain storage. The flames were quickly brought under control by the fire department. Cause of the fire and damage estimates were not available at the time the Greenbush Tribune went to press November 6.

More Fish Tales

Baudette — Big fish pictures in the Baudette Region included an eight-pound walleye caught by Merle Rolland of St. Hilaire; an eight-pound, six ounce walleye caught by Ron Jonsen, Stephen; and a 34-pound sturgeon caught by Marv Nelson, Williams.

Single Car Accidents

Warren — The Marshall County Sheriff's office reported several auto accidents between October 20 and November 3, all involving solitary vehicles. November 3 a parked vehicle owned by Vera Smith, 77, Alvarado, jumped into gear, backed out into the street, and made several complete turns before striking a flag pole and coming to rest on the curb. The accident happened on main street in Alvarado in front of the post office. The 1976 Chevrolet sustained $1,500 damages. November 1, a 1974 Plymouth driven by Bryan Keith Warmuth of Grygla rolled on county road 53 four miles north of Grygla, after the driver lost control on the gravel road. The vehicle was a total loss and the driver was taken to Northwest Medical center for injuries sustained. October 26, a vehicle driven by Jeffrey Chwialkowski of rural Argyle rolled when he lost control on county road 27, two and one-half miles north of Strandquist. The 1984 Ford sustained $8,000 in damages and the driver reported minor injuries. A vehicle operated by Gregory Graham of Newfolden went into the ditch 3 miles east and 1 mile north of Newfolden, sustaining $600 damage, with the driver reporting minor injuries.

Oklee Accident

Red Lake Falls — Driver and passenger were slightly injured in a one-car accident on township road 167F two miles northwest of Oklee October 30. The 1979 Chevrolet two-door was totalled after it left the roadway and struck a tree. The driver, Steven Randolph Pahlen, and passenger Chad Pahlen, both of Plummer, were slightly injured in the accident. The Red Lake County Sheriff's department says the accident may have been caused by a broken tie-rod or A-frame of the left front wheel.

Icy Road Fatality

Oslo — A 64-year-old Ardoch, ND, woman was killed November 4 when her car collided with another in the middle of an ice-coated Red River bridge at Oslo. Sarah Nice of Ardoch was travelling west on TH 1 over the bridge when her 1979 Chevrolet collided with a 1977 Cadillac driven by Lorraine Perkerwicz, 41, Manvel, ND. Perkerwicz was listed in satisfactory condition at United hospital in Grand Forks, ND.

Dangerous Business

Warroad — A Warroad man was critically injured when he was struck in the head by a tree while cutting timber for a deer stand south of Warroad. Rod Pomplun was taken by air ambulance to United hospital in Grand Forks, ND, where he was reported to be in critical condition on November 3, according to the Warroad Pioneer. The accident occurred at 9 a.m. November 2 in Clear River township.

And You Said Your Vote Didn't Matter!

Warren — The city of Warren is still without a new mayor after Tuesday's election. Both incumbent Glenn O. Halvorson and challenger Roy G. Engh received 509 votes in the election. If the canvassing board agrees with the vote tally, the new mayor will have to be decided by lot. The rest of the voting in Warren was also unusually close, with councilmen David Amundgaard and Rick Roley elected with 230 and 231 votes, respectively, defeating Roberta Stengl with 200 votes and Michael Kvamme with 213 votes. Councilman Donald Jones Jr. defeated Kenneth Poolman by 307 to 261 votes.

He Exercises His Right

Greenbush — Eddie Anderson voted last Tuesday and has voted in every general election since he was of legal voting age. His first vote was cast when Woodrow Wilson became president and he has seen 13 different presidents elected since then. Eddie is 95 years old and makes his home with his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Anderson in Hereim township. Yes, he does plan to vote for president again in two years.

You Can Have It

Warren — In an attempt to solve the dike problem in Oslo, a proposal was presented to the Marshall county board in which the county would take over the dikes with full authority to regulate them. Spokesmen from the townships of Big Woods, Oak Park, Fork and Eagle Point presented the idea at the November 4 meeting of the board, citing Minnesota Statute, Section 106A.011, Subdivision 1, which states, "When deemed necessary to control floodwaters therein, the board is authorized to raise, lower or establish the height of water in any lake, body of water or water course and cause to be constructed all necessary structures and improvements to maintain the same for flood control or other public purpose.". The board is taking the proposal under consideration.

Deep Ditch

Grygla — When the 1976 Oldsmobile belonging to Donald Larson, 60, of rural Thief River Falls, left the gravel roadway of county road 7, it ended up in a water-filled ditch about two miles west of the Agassiz Naional Wildlife refuge headquarters, Larson was thrown from the vehicle, but his wife, Joann, remained inside. She managed to crawl onto the top of the vehicle where she stood in water to her waist. The accident happened about 10 p.m. Halloween night, when the couple was returning home from visiting a daughter and son-in-law in Grygla. About two hours later, another son-in-law, Doyle Martin, after learning that the Larsons were missing, drove through the refuge to Grygla to look for them and was returning to his home two miles south of the Larson home when he came upon his mother-in-law by the side of the road. He took her to his home to recover and called the ambulance for Donald Larson, who was still at the accident site. Larson was reported in stable condition at Dakota hospital in Fargo after surgery to repair a broken leg. The vehicle was completely submerged in the ditch and was removed November 4 and deemed a total loss.

Rah-Rah-Rah

Karlstad — The Tri-County Athletic Booster club plans to reorganize at a meeting November 13. The club has experienced a lack of interest by members recently, and officers have been the only consistent members attending meetings and doing most of the work. The boosters were organized in 1982 to develop sportsmanship, promote interest, increase game attendance and raise money to maintain some sports activities to district had decided to cut from the budget due to lack of funds. Many of the club's goals have been met, said vice president Gary Cook, but the future looks bleak without support of parents and others who are interested in support of school sports.

Almost Wasn't

Red Lake Falls — The Halloween party that nearly wasn't because of lack of community and other group support was reported a "huge success" by the Red Lake Falls Gazette. "Hundreds" of trick or treaters of all ages attended the event at the community hall in Red Lake Falls Halloween night, sponsored by the Red Lake Falls Women of Today and volunteer helpers.

Bigger And Better

Clearbrook — Ernest Shelquist, who lives northeast of Clearbrook, became interested in scientific feeding of livestock in 1962. Since then, he has established a feeding program of his own by adding minerals and organic compounds to livestock feed to make up for depletion of the soil and the lack of minerals in home grown feed and hay. He has found his cattle grew faster and larger, needed less feed and hay, had heavier coats of hair and were more resistant to milk fever, pink eye, calf scours, foot rot and other diseases. Calves were healthy and strong and of average size at birth. He has been testing supplemental feed for 24 years now, with special attention to balanced rations during the growing state. The largest animal he has raised was a Charolais-Holstein steer which was so large it couldn't be loaded live into a standard cattle truck but had to be slaughtered. It dressed out to be 1,206 pounds, and was 13 and one-half feet in length and 6 feet, 4 inches high.

RLF District Court Cases

Red Lake Falls — Patricia Black of Thief River Falls was sentenced to five years with a stay of imposition and given conditional confinement for 120 days at the Northwest Regional Correctional center in Crookston and ordered to make restitution of $1,132.60, at district court held in Red Lake Falls November 3. Black was charged with felony theft of services stemming from an incident in which she refused to pay for services received from TM Products, Inc. of Red Lake Falls. In first court appearances, Orville Sorenson of Thief River Falls and Henry Sorenson of Carlos, MN, pled guilty to uttering forged instruments. Also in his first appearance, Gary Hofius of Plummer was charged with burglary in the third degree and arson in the second degree in connection with an incident occurring at a farm home owned by Leonard Fehr in Emardville township October 12. The court report said Hofius did willfully and intentionally start a fire which resulted in the destruction of the property after breaking into the residence.

Post-Halloween Decor

Warren — Ss. Peter and Paul Catholic church in Warren was spray painted with black, high gloss enamel the evening of November 1 between the hours of 7 and 8:15, at which time a parishioner came into the church and found obscenities sprayed on the north and east inside brick walls and flower pots strewn about the sanctuary.

Good Idea

Fertile — The Fertile Jaycees hosted an appreciation breakfast for the business people to thank them for their help throughout the year. Jaycee members and their wives served scrambled eggs, pancakes and sausages to merchants of the town who had been especially helpful to the organization last year.

Reminiscing

Warroad — A theatrical review of the past six years of Warroad summer theater will be presented Thanksgiving weekend to benefit the Warroad area community center. Ten of the most popular plays will be remembered and reviewed by some of the original actors and musicians. Performances will be November 29 at 7:30 p.m. and November 30 at 2:30 p.m. in the mini-theater of the new Warroad high school. There will be no reservations, with seating on a first-come, first-serve basis. Suggested donations are adult, $4; senior citizen and under the age of 12, $2; family, $10.

A WOMAN'S TOUCH was provided for at least part of the painting Tuesday at the Heritage Community center now being finished in Thief River Falls. Jean Nelson (left) and Judy Oen were two of a number of women who attached themselves to handles of paint rollers or brushes and tackled the task of interior painting. The volunteer effort at painting and varnishing is expected to cut finishing costs by about $3,000.

Pioneers Lose Playoff Decision To Vermilion

A fast start wasn't enough Saturday as Northland Community College scored quickly, but still wound up losing a 28-13 decision to host Vermilion in the opening round semifinals of the 1986 Minnesota Community College Conference state football playoffs at Ely.

Northland's Darrin Johnson broke off a 55-yard run from scrimmage on the game's first play, carrying the ball to the Vermilion 28-yard line and setting up a 1-yard touchdown run by Deon Schmidt. Ron Dass added the conversion kick for a quick 7-0 Northland lead.

The Pioneers, making their first-ever post season appearance, also scored the game's last touchdown on an 80-yard kickoff return by Anthony McCullough with 12 minutes remaining. But in between the two Northland touchdowns, Vermilion collected 28 points. The Ironmen trailed 7-0 at the end of the first quarter, but went ahead 14-7 at halftime and had a 20-7 third quarter lead.

"In the first half, even though we were down 14-7, I thought we outplayed them," said Northland coach Rick Nelson. But poor field position began to take its toll on the Pioneers, who were also hurt by some calls by the officials.

"The officiating was not that of playoff caliber," pointed out Nelson. "I don't think officiating cost us the ball game, but it certainly didn't help."

Statistically the game was even. Northland matched Vermilion's 13 firts downs and out-gained the Ironmen 287-277 in total yardage.

"The kids have nothing to hang their heads about," noted Nelson. "They played their hearts out. I felt our defense played well, but Vermilion is a good team."

Vermilion's Kevin Johnson was limited to 97 yards on 30 carries — the first time all year the Cleveland speedster has been held under 100 yards. Johnson led Northland with 70 yards on just seven carries. Dean Brandon caught eight passes for 83 yards for the Pioneers, who rushed for 161 yards and passed for 126 more (11-for-29 by quarterback Scott Willoughby). The Ironmen rushed for 199 yards and passed for 78 (6-for-15 by quarterback Garth Keikkenen): Mike Holte caught five passes for 70 yards for the winners.

Weather conditions were less-than-ideal, Nelson explained. The game was played in 15-to-20-degree temperatures, with 30-to-35-mile-per-hour winds and blowing snow taking their toll on both sides. But Nelson said, "I don't think the weather directly made any difference in the outcome of the game."

There was a bench-clearing altercation with two minutes remaining in the game when players from both sides were involved in mostly pushing and shoving matches, according to Nelson, but after several minutes worth of delays the game resumed — without any penalties assessed.

Northland ended its best football season in history with a 5-4 record, plus a Northwest Division title tie. Vermilion, the Northeast Division champion, will take an 8-1 record into the MCCC state title game Sunday at the College of St. Thomas, facing Rochester or North Hennepin.

UMC Collects 3-0 Volleyball Victory Against Northland

University of Minnesota-Crookston swept Northland Community College 3-0 Wednesday in a Northwest Division volleyball match at Crookston.

It was a season-ending outing for the Pioneers, but the Trojans' 1986 season will extend into the Minnesota Community College Conference state volleyball tournament Wednesday and Thursday at North Hennepin Community College in Brooklyn Park.

UMC beat Northland 15-5, 15-3, 15-13 to clinch a Northwest Division title tie with Fergus Falls. Both the Trojans and Spartans qualify for state tournament play.

Northland finished the year with a 1-5 Northwest Division record, and a 5-7 mark in all 3-out-of-5 game matches.

MN Deer Hunters Ass'n. To Collect Hides For Habitat

Thief River Falls area chapter of the Minnesota Deer Hunters association is again making a plea this year for donations of deer hides to its "Hides for Habitat" program.

Under the program, hides donated to the association will be pooled on a statewide basis and sold under a group contract which will earn a premium price for hides sold, according to local chapter officials. Funds earned by the sale will be redistributed to the chapters on the basis of hides they have contributed and be used in deer habitat programs.

According to the local chapter, hides are expected to bring about $2 each if sold through area hide and fur buyers. If donated to the Deer Hunters association, the hides will be sold for considerably more money and the donor will be given a tax deductible receipt for a $6 donation — the minimum price which the association expects to receive for a hide.

Last year donations of hides to the local chapter was low and only $71 was realized for the project. That amount was retained and will be added to this year's total for use in establishing deer food plots. Local chapter officials are hopeful all chapter members and others interested in the welfare of the deer herd in this area will join in contributing hides this year.

Persons having hides to donate during and immediately following the deer season are encouraged to contact Terry Maddy at 1119 Arnold av. N. (phone 681-6321) or Dana Klos at 1007 Dewey av. N. (phone 681-7592). Hides can br brought to either address or a telephone call can be used to make arrangements for hide pickup.

Prowlers Swim In Section Meet

Alexandria, as expected, won its eighth straight Section 8 girls high school swimming meet title Saturday at the Hyslop Sports Center pool at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks, but Brainerd surprised Fergus Falls for runner-up honors in the 10-team field.

The Cardinals finished the two-day competition with 314 points, followed by Brainerd with 208, Fergus Falls 166½, Moorhead 112½, Bemidji 97, Thief River Falls 92, Detroit Lakes 91, Melrose 43, Park Rapids 32 and Little Falls 27.

Thief River Falls swimmers turned in 17 career best and nine season best performances during the meet, but the Prowlers' solid performance still didn't net them a state meet berth. Top two finishers in each of the swimming events and the top five divers earned state meet spots.

Top Thief River Falls finishes were turned in by the relay teams, where both the 200 medley and 400 freestyle units placed third. Marci Turenne, Christy Puetz, Jenny Ness and Brenda Russell turned in a 2:01.39 in the medley relay finals, while Laura Beito, Russell, Heidi Tofte and Puetz turned in a 3:59.38 in the freestyle relay finals. (Gayle Borchert swam a leg on the medley relay in place of Ness in the prelims).

Two other Thief River Falls entries into Saturday's top six championship finals included Puetz in the 100 butterfly and Beito in the 500 freestyle. They both placed sixth. Puetz turned in a school record 1:06.68 in the prelims. Top six swimmers in Friday's prelims made it into Saturday's championship finals, while the 7-12 prelim places competed in Saturday's consolation finals.

COMMON GOLDENEYE ducks painted by wildlife artist Ron Van Gilder of Cedar have been selected as the winning design for Minnesota's 1987 Migratory Waterfowl Stamp. The stamp costs $5 and is required of all resident hunters ages 18 through 64 to take migratory waterfowl in Minnesota. Nonresident hunters, regardless of age, are also required to have the stamp. A contest is held annually by the Department of Natural Resources to select a design for the next year's stamp. Van Gilder's winning offering was chosen from among 139 entries. The DNR does not pay the artist for use of the design, but winning the contest frequently results in an increased public demand for the artist's work. Revenue from sale of the stamp is dedicated by state law toward maintenance, development and restoration of waterfowl habitat.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and seven other midwestern states will share a grant from the Miller Brewing Company to be used for projects that will benefit the nation's population of bald eagles.

Dr. Larry Shannon, DNR Director of Fish and Wildlife, said the Miller Brewing Company has made $50,000 available to benefit our national symbol. Of the total, $20,000 was awarded to a consortium of states including Minnesota, Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Missouri, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin.

Other states received grants ranging from $2,000 to $10,800 to study various factors affecting the eagle's habitat and environment and to inform the public through public service announcements. The grants were announced at a recent meeting of the International Association of Fish and Wildlife Agencies, held in Rhode Island.

Shannon, who was elected to the Executive Committee of the Association, said that another $40,000 in grants may become available through the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation and that Minnesota and the other midwestern states in the consortium would be eligible for $10,000 of the total.

"Both the Miller Brewing Company and National Fish and Wildlife Foundation deserve praise for their demonstrated concern for the future of our nation's noblest bird," said Shannon.

Anterless Permits

Department of Natural Resources has mailed out all antlerless permits to deer hunters who were successful in the computerized drawing.

Officials said all successful applicants should have received their permits by Friday, Oct. 24, and those who did not received a permit by that date can assume they were not selected in the drawing.

Department received 301,453 applications for antlerless permits and 128,825 were available for this year's hunt.

An earlier news release from the Department said the permits would not be mailed out until Oct. 25; however, it was found that the process could be accelerated and the permits were mailed sooner for the convenience of those who need to plan vacation schedules.

Tree City Candidates

Does your community qualify for a Tree City USA award?

Each year the National Arbor Day Foundation honors outstanding urban forestry programs with the Tree City USA designation.

"Last year, 32 Minnesota cities qualified for the designation," said Meg Hanisch, public affairs specialist for the Department of Natural Resources Division of Forestry.

The 1985 recipients of the award were Anoka, Apple Valley, Arden Hills, Austin, Brainerd, Coon Rapids, Cottage Grove, Duluth, Eden Prairie, Fergus Falls, Hopkins, Hutchinson, Kasson, Litchfield, Little Falls, Mankato, Maple Grove, Minneaplis, Mounds View, New Brighton, Oak Park Heights, Park Rapids, Plymouth, Preston, Robbinsdale, Rochester, St. Cloud, St. Louis Park, St. Paul, Sleepy Eye, Waseca and Winona.

Communities desiring to participate in the 1986 program must complete an application and send it to the DNR Division of Forestry no later than December 31, 1986. Each application is reviewed by the state forester and then forwarded to the National Arbor Day Foundation.

Winning communities will receive a Tree City USA flag, a walnut-mounted plaque and signs to place at the city entrances.

"To be officially recognized and designated as a 1986 Tree City USA, communities must meet four criteria," said Hanisch.

The community must have a legally constituted tree board, a community tree ordinance, an active and comprehensive community forestry program supported by a minimum of $1 per capita, and an Arbor Day proclamation and public tree planting ceremony.

"Many of the communities that have received this award in the past have surpassed these requirements and are exhibiting innovative urban uses of trees," Hanisch said.

"Many communities realize that trees are a valuable resource and that tree care and maintenance programs are important regardless of geographic location. Urban forestry programs get the public to contribute to tree management and can be run with limited tax expenditures," she continued. "A good urban forestry program is an investment in the economic, social and physical well-being of a community."

For further information or applications for the Tree City USA program, contact the DNR Divison of Forestry, 500 Lafayette Rd., St. Paul, MN 55155-4044 or call 800-652-9747.

Spring Turkey Hunt

Minnesota's tenth spring wild turkey hunt will begin on April 11, 1987, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

Turkey hunt applications should be available from county auditors, most license dealers and all area wildlife offices, according to Roger Holmes, DNR Wildlife Chief.

"Turkey hunt application instructions note two different application deadlines that could be confusing to turkey hunters," said Holmes. "persons who want to take part in this hunt will have until 4:30 p.m. Monday, December 15, to hand deliver the application to the Department of Natural Resources, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul. Mailed applications must be post marked by Saturday, December 13."

The 1985 Legislature authorized the DNR to collect $3 from every individual turkey hunt applicant. A cashier's check, money order or personal check in the amount of $3 payable to the Minnesota State Treasurer must be submitted with each application.

A total of 2,700 permits will be available for four southeastern Minnesota hunting zones.

Zone 4, including the Whitewater Wildlife Management Area, will remain closed again this year to protect the eastern strain of wild turkeys transplanted from Houston county in 1985. More transplants are planned for this winter.

Also, portions of Zone 5, north and west of Highway 63, will be closed this year for the first time to protect the transplants planned for those areas. The transplants are necessary to establish the eastern strain of wild turkeys. The Merriam strain, first established in Zone 4 and northern Zone 5 have not done well.

One of five separate hunting time periods may be selected: April 11-15, April 17-21, April 23-27, April 29-May 3, May 6-10; all dates are inclusive.

Anyone who is a legal resident and 16 years or older by April 11, 1987, may apply.

The computerized drawing will be conducted January 15 and only those selected in the drawing will be notified.

Outdoor News

According to many experts, plastic trash thrown into oceans may be as big a problem, if not bigger, than oil spills. International Wildlife magazine reports that non-biodegradable plastic waste is killing up to one million seabirds, 100,00 sea mammals, and countless fish each year. Part of the problem is the seals, turtles, fish, and birds become entangled, and then die, in discarded fishing nets and strapping bands.

It may pay to be low on the social ladder if you are an Alaskan Dall's sheep, reports National Wildlife magazine. Male Alaskan mountain sheep who expend their energy on breeding and belligerence to gain high social standing in the summer, are often left weakened and vulnerable for the bitter winter. This prompted one biologist to say, "It must pay to be a nerd in (Dall's) sheep society."

Fish, Wildlife Funds Will Be Distributed To States

William P. Horn, Interior Assistant Secretary for Fish and Wildlife and Parks, announced that $188 million will go to various states, commonwealths and territories to assist their fish and wildlife restoration programs.

"This is a record preliminary apportionment for the two bedrock federal aid conservation programs administered by the Fish and Wildlife Service," Horn said.

Funds come primarily from excise taxes on sporting equipment bought by hunters and anglers and are a result of two pieces of legislation, the Federal Aid in Sport Fish Restoration (Dingell-Johnson) Act and the Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration (Pittman-Robertson) Act.

Dingell-Johnson program will receive $110,400,000 — the highest preliminary apportionment for fish restoration on record. This money comes from an excise tax on fishing equipment such as rods, reels, creels, and artificial baits, lures and flies. The funding virtually tripled since 1984 when a share of motorboat fuel taxes and an added tax on certain types of previously untaxed fishing equipment, such as tackle boxes, were added under the Wallop-Breaux amendment. In addition, the import duties on pleasure boats and fishing equipment were deposited in the Wallop-Breaux Trust Fund.

As a result, state wildlife agencies received significant increases in money to spend on fish restoration projects last year. States retain authority to determine how to spend this extra money based on their needs and certain conditions in the amendment. Many states have allocated money to conduct fishery surveys in order to set priorities for further fish restoration projects. Others are emphasizing construction or improvement of boat ramps and associated facilities, including handicapped access facilities, enlarging or improving lakes to provide more recreational fishing and fish habitat, and developing aquatic education classes designed to reduce fishing- and boating-related accidents.

Money for state fish restoration programs is distributed under a formula based on the number of fishing license holders and the land and water area in each state. States receiving the largest share of funds this year are Alaska, California, Texas, Minnesota and Michigan.

Pittman-Robertson program will receive $77,600,000 for wildlife restoration projects. These funds are collected from manufacturers' excise taxes on sporting arms and ammunition, archery equipment, and handguns. Hunter education programs, authorized under the Pittman-Robertson Act, are funded by one-half of the excise tax on handguns and archery equipment.

Distribution of wildlife restoration funds to the states is determined by a formula based on the number of hunting license holders and the land area in each state. Hunter education funds are determined by the population of the state. States receiving the largest share of wildlife restoration funds this year are Alaska, California, Pennsylvania and Texas.

Preliminary apportionment of federal aid in wildlife restoration funds for fiscal year 1987:

One hundred per cent of Minnesota legislative candidates who responded to a recent survey support the Reinvest-In-Minnesota program (RIM) and its "dedicated fund."

The survey was conducted by the Fish and Wildlife Legislative Alliance (F.W.L.A.), the legislative arm of 15 statewide fishing and wildlife organizations.

Survey results revealed that 53 per cent of the candidates who responded favor the use of the state general fund to continue the efforts of RIM.

RIM is a $16.2 million effort passed by the 1986 legislature designed to retire marginal agricultural land from crop production and improve fish and wildlife habitat. The legislation was strongly supported by the Alliance, environmental and most farm organizations.

Twenty per cent of the candidates favored dedicating a portion of the Minnesota state sales tax either by adding an additional small percentage (¼ or ⅛ per cent) to the present six per cent or dedicating a portion of the current six per cent, according to Alliance President Steve Akre.

"The Alliance is pleased with the 100 per cent support for RIM displayed by the cnadidates responding," Akre said. "We continue to support dedication of a portion of the sales tax to RIM,'; he added, "but we will be glad to discuss combinations of options including bonding and general funds."

"Our main objective is to secure long range funding for RIM in the 1987 legislative session," Akre said.

The F.W.L.A. is requesting $600 million over a 10 to 15-year period, an amount Minnesota sportsmen believe is needed to restore and replenish Minnesota's habitat resources for hunting, fishing and trapping.

The following statewide associations belong to the Fish and Wildlife Legislative Alliance: Ducks Unlimited, Fish and Wildlife Employees Association, Minnesota Bowhunters, Inc., Minnesota Deerhunters Association, Minnesota Sportfishing Congress, Minnesota State Archery Association, Minnesota Waterfowl Association, Minnesota Wildlife Heritage Foundation, Muskies, Inc., Pheasants Forever, Safari Club International, Turn In Poachers, and the Minnesota Trappers Association. Hundreds of Minnesota sportsmen and women belong as individual members, and so do many local sportsmen's clubs and chapters.

Peace Cranes Sent To Soviet Union

Four thousand four hundred and forty-eight peace cranes — squares of paper folded in origami fashion into symbolic birds — are on their way to Russia as a result of activity by women of the Red River Valley synod of the Lutheran Church in America. Maxine McEwen of Thief River Falls is chairman of the synod's Lutheran Church Women's Christian action committee.

It wasn't only women of the synod who created the thousands of paper cranes, however; some were made by Sunday school or Bible school children, including classes which had joint enrollment from other churches. With each box of completed cranes went a letter addressed "To Our Friends" and a photo showing people working on the crane-making project.

Mrs. McEwen said the cranes — which are strung on monofilament line to facilitate handling and add to display — are international peace symbols. Intent of the project, of which the RRV synod activity is a part, is to make one peace crane for each of the 1.9 million children in Moscow, Russia. With the making of each crane is to go a prayer for peace, with the crane itself to be a visual symbol of that prayer.

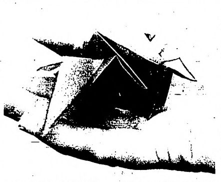
The project began in 1983 as an idea of Marilyn Lange, an advertising art director in New York City, to provide a simple way for ordinary citizens in America to show their interest in peace to ordinary citizens in Russia. More than 600 groups have participated in the project so far, working in 43 states, Puerto Rico and Canada. When Lange and 18 other Americans traveled to the Soviet Union, they brought with them 200,000 of the cranes in 29 green plastic trash bags. They presented the cranes to government, church groups and individual children.

"One of the most moving experiences was the church service in Riga, Latvia, where we placed cranes on the children's altar at the site of a former Nazi concentration camp and distributed cranes during worship service," Lange said. "...the pastor held up one of our orange peace cranes and said the Latvian word for 'American.' Afterward, the worshipers started crying and talking with us although we didn't understand a word."

An ancient Japanese tradition holds that a person will be granted a wish if he or she folds 1,000 paper cranes. Twelve-year-old Sadako Sasaki made 644 of the cranes before she died in 1955 in Hiroshima of "atom bomb sickness," 10 years after the bomb was dropped on her city. Her classmates erected a statue in her honor in Hiroshima peace park with an inscription reading, "This is our cry, this is our prayer; peace in the world."

Sadako's wish to live was not granted, but her story inspired Lange to initiate the peace crane project.

"Our contribution is small in relation to the total project," Mrs. McEwen said, "but the impact it has had within our synod's womens organization has been great and we hope it will have similar impact when the cranes we have made are received overseas. What better goal for all than peace throughout the world."



PEACE CRANES created under sponsorship of the Red River Valley synod Lutheran Church women have been boxed for shipment to the Soviet Union as part of a project aimed at sending 1.9 million of the folded paper symbols there — one for each child in the city of Moscow. The cranes were made from small squares of paper, folded to resemble a bird with spread wings (see example at left). Construction was accomplished by Sunday school and Bible school children as well as members of women's groups. When a quantity of birds was completed, individual cranes were strung on monofilament line to facilitate handling and add to display. Local volunteers working on the project include (left to right) Maxine McEwen, Joan Novak, Linda Spyhalski and Julie Bakke. Mrs. McEwen is chairman of the Red River Valley snyod's LCW Christian Action committee. The synod created 4,448 of the cranes for overseas shipment.

Hearing Scheduled On Accessibility For Handicapped

To collect additional information about problems people with disabilities have encountered with inaccessible buildings, a hearing has been scheduled for Thursday from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Historical Society building, 379 Cedar Street, St. Paul, according to Peter Lavalier of Thief River Falls, member of the Minnesota state council for the handicapped.

Lavalier, who serves as director of the occupational development center in Thief River Falls, said there are approximately 360,000 Minnesotans with physical disabilities and that many are denied housing, employment, access to public services and retailers or voting rights due to inaccessible buildings.

"Although many will not be able to attend the hearing, we can make good use of written testimony," Lavalier said. Comments should be received by December 1."

The council for the handicapped is a 21-member citizen panel appointed by Gov. Rudy Perpich and charged by law with advising government and the general public about disability matters.

CA International Exchange Seeks Young Visitors

The CA International Agricultural Exchange Network (CA-IAEN) is seeking young people who are interested in living and working overseas while learning about various farming and business methods as well as host families for foreign youth who will be participating in a similar exchange program into the United States.

CA-IAEN is a comprehensive combination of work-study programs with operations in the United States, Denmark, Sweden, Switzerland and Australia. The program is operated by Communicating for Agriculture (CA), a Fergus Falls-based national; non-partisan, non-profit rural organization with 40,000 members. Part of the costs for out-going participants is underwritten by the CA scholarship and education foundation.

The program has been endorsed by Minnesota Agriculture Commissioner Jim Nichols, who said "The CA-IAEN program is a fantastic opportunity for young people between the ages of 18 and 28 to live and work in a foreign country, and learn the culture of that country while living with a host family."

CA-IAEN offers six types of exchange programs: Agriculture, home management, agri-mix, agribusiness, cultural and horticulture work-study programs. These programs generally run from three to 13 months. Costs vary from about $1,400 for a 9-month stay in Europe to $2,500 for a similar program in Australia. The costs include air fare, insurance and transfer costs.

Trainees on work-study exchanges receive an allowance that covers all of their expenses during their time abroad.

"In 1985, we sent 25 young people overseas who gained valuable experiences through the program," CA-IAEN assistant administrator Craig Schmuck. "We call the CA-IAEN program "The Experience of a Lifetime, and the positive responses that we have received from participants certainly shows this to be true."

PERHAPS THE OWNER of this out of season machine has switched affections to a snowmobile or an enclosed automobile, but the cycle certainly appeared out of its element following the weekend storm. Last night temperatures plummeted to seven degrees below zero and continued cold is predicted until into the weekend. Strong winds forecast for last night and today have mercifully not materialized as the Times goes to press but temperatures continue to rise little above the zero mark.

TRF Liquor Store Burglary Reported, $4,000 Stolen

Pennington county law enforcement center received a report of a burglary 7:39 a.m. Monday by an employee of the liquor store in Thief River Falls.

An employee of the liquor store discovered a hole cut in the rear of the building apparently done with a saw and then discovered that a person or persons had burglarized the safe. An estimated $4,000 in cash and checks was missing. Damages to the building were estimated at $1,000.

The burglary is being investigated by the Thief River Falls police and Pennington county sheriff's office.

NCC To Stage Performance Of "The Foreigner"

Northland community college theatre director, Roger Vaughan, will produce Larry Shue's popular comedy, "The Foreigner" as Northland's fall quarter theatre production. "The Foreigner" is the winner of two Obie awards and two Outer Critics Circle awards: as Best New American play and Best Off-Broadway production. The show enjoyed a sold-out premiere in Milwaukee before moving on to a long run off-Broadway. The production opens Friday, November 14 at 8 p.m.; and runs Saturday, November 15 at 8 p.m. and Sunday, November 16 at 3 p.m. in the Northland community college theatre, Thief River Falls.

Based on what critic Clive Barnes of the New York Post describes as a "devilishly clever idea," the play demonstrates what can happen when a group of devious characters must deal with a stranger who (they think) knows no English. Edith Oliver, critic for The New Yorker said, "I laughed start to finish at one comic surprise after another, and Michael Feingold, of the Village Voice called the show "a constant invitation to relax and laugh at the foolishness of life."

The scene is a fishing lodge in rural Georgia often visited by "Froggy" LeSueur, a British demolition expert who occasionally runs training sessions at a nearby army base. This time "Froggy" has brought along a friend, a pathologically shy young man named Charlie who is overcome with fear at the thought of making conversation with strangers. So "Froggy," before departing, tells all assembled that Charlie is from an exotic foreign country and speaks no English. Once alone, the fun really begins, as Charlie overhears more than he should — the evil plans of a two-faced minister and his redneck associate, the fact that the minister's fiancee is pregnant, and many other damaging revelations made with the thought that Charlie doesn't understand a word of what is being said. The fact that he does understand fuels the non-stop hilarity of the play and leads to the hilarious climax.

Cast members, all from Thief River Falls, are: Dan Shern as Staff Sergeant "Froggy" LeSueur, the demolition expert; Rob Burkel as Charlie, Froggy's shy friend who ultimately becomes the foreigner of the play's title; Deb Hams as Betty, the proprietor of Meeks' Fishing Lodge resort, in Tilghman county, Georgia; Bruce Folkedahl as Rev. David Marshall Lee, the unscrupulous minister; Key Teeters Asp as Catherine Simms, the fiancee of the minister, and Ellard's sister; Al

Welfare Accounts Clerk Charged With Thefts

Two felony counts of theft by swindle over $2,500 were lodged in Pennington county court this morning against Jaylene Arlys Aune, 37, a former employee of the Pennington county social services department. Miss Aune made her first appearance on the charges and Judge Milton Kludt of Mahnomen appointed public defender Dennis Murphy as her attorney, set a district court appearance for Monday at 9 a.m. and released her on personal recognizance (no bond set).

Aune is charged with the crimes which carry maximum penalties of 10 years in prison or $20,000 fine, or both jail and fine, as a result of funds taken from the county social services department's social welfare fund.

She had been an account clerk for the department for six years and her resignation had been asked in August as a result of what department director Gary Erickson termed "sloppiness" in her job performance. Her last day of employment with the department was October 17.

An auditor from the office of Minnesota state auditor Arne Carlson is in Thief River Falls to audit accounts with which the defendant had been involved, but he could give no indication how long the audit may take. Pennington county sheriff Charles Richards and county attorney David Olin said that statements made by Miss Aune indicated theft of $14,000, but speculation is that the actual amount taken could be considerably higher.

Olin said that the two charges filed today involve only two months in the past year when evidence indicates theft of more than $2,500 took place in each month. The $2,500 amount is a minimum figure for classification of the degree of felony. Olin said that additional charges could be filed in the future and that amount of theft determined could have a bearing on sentencing if the defendant is convicted.

According to the charges, Miss Aune obtained $2,600 in June of 1986 and $2,550 in September of 1986 by writing checks on the social welfare account to the name of Elizabeth Anderson, a deceased person for whom she had formerly been appointed guardian, and cashing the checks for her own use. Included were three checks for $600 and one for $800 in June, and checks for [illegible] $300, $250, $450 and $500 in September.

Aune had been appointed guardian for Elizabeth Anderson in late 1983 and handled her funds through the social welfare fund in the social services office. Elizabeth Anderson died in September of 1985 and Aune reportedly continued to write checks in her name. She reportedly obtained signatures on the checks from supervisors by including them with bundles of routine checks and seeking signatures during times when the supervisors were busy with other matters. Sheriff Richards said she also "raised" checks by having checks signed for a small amount, then altering them after signature to a larger amount.

According to the sheriff's department, Aune had taken records from the social services department home with her, and when questioned about their removal by superiors in the department, indicated that she was working at home to catch up on work she didn't complete at the office. She was told to return the records and did return a portion of them two times after her last official day of work. The last return was made on October 30 when she told office workers she was returning all she had and that she was leaving for Minneapolis to look for work.

Fiscal supervisor Shirley Nelson looked through the materials and

Division I Court Hears Several Cases

Beginning on November 4 the district court, division I, district 9, in Pennington county has heard several cases. Among those cases receiving sentencing, verdicts or settlement, were two for aggravated criminal damage to property and a variety of others.

Minnesota vs. Cary Allan Leas on a criminal sexual conduct charge was dismissed due to lack of sufficient evidence and the defendant agreed to voluntarily follow through with treatment prepared by Dr. Donlin. The attorneys in the case were Dave Olin and Dennis Murphy.

In Michael A. Johnson vs. Thief River Falls Times a jury ruled that Robert Mattson did not wrongfully terminate Michael Johnson's employment contract with the Times; and that the Times did not defame Johnson by reporting to the Minnesota employment office that Johnson's employment was terminated by reason of misconduct.

Frances Knutson vs. Barbara Olson was settled out of court. The case involved a charge of wrongful death by the plaintiff for Sherman Knutson who died in a car accident. The attorneys in the case were Curtis Charlson and Steven Marquart.

Vivian McCrum vs. LeRoy Lehnhoff, which involved a contract dispute over a farmland lease, was settled. Attorneys in the case were Curtis Charlson and Robert Stroble.

Minnesota vs. Bruce D. Timchuk of Thief River Falls, for aggravated criminal damage to property, resulted in a plea of guilty. Sentencing was set for December 15. Dave Olin and Dennis Murphy were the attorneys in the case.

Minnesota vs. Andrew J. Homgren, Thief River Falls, for aggravated criminal damage to property was dismissed. Attorneys in the case were Dave Olin and James Beuning.

Minnesota vs. James Dean Nelson, Fosston, for driving a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol, a gross misdemeanor, resulted in one year in the county jail and a $1,000 fine plus costs, with an alcohol problem assessment ordered. After the assessment the court may suspend part of the sentence.

Minnesota vs. Howard L. Rux, for disorderly conduct and fifth degree assault, $100 and 10 days with $50 and jail stayed as long as Rux pays costs and has no other charges of disorderly conduct or similar violations for one year.

Co. Fair Annual Report Shows Loss Of $4,502

Pennington county fair association had total receipts of $87,257 during the past year but total expenditures of $91,759 to show a loss of $4,502, according to the annual financial report presented for review at the association's annual meeting last week in the Pennington county court house in Thief River Falls.

All officers of the organization were reelected at the meeting and included Bernard Huot, president; LaVerne Hamre and Donna Harder, vice presidents; Floyd Erickson, secretary; and Richard Anderson, treasurer.

Five directors were also reelected and include Beattie Mickelson, District 1, Norris Thune, District 2; Mrs. Lloyd (Jan) Noreen, District 3, Bill Ulrich, District 4, and Leon Iverson, District 5.

Iverson, Ulrich and Anderson were elected delegates to the annual convention of the Minnesota Association of County Fairs to be conducted January 17, 18 and 19 in the Twin Cities. Alternate delegates are Carmen Larson, Floyd Erickson and Bernard Huot. Next regular meeting of the fair association will be January 12, 1987, at the courthouse meeting room.

Dates for the 1987 county fair were set for July 15-19 and plans are to again feature a well-known entertainer to headline the fair's schedule of events. Although several entertainers have been mentioned in discussion, no decision has been made at this time as to which will be sought if available.

According to the financial report prepared by treasurer Richard Anderson, operations of the 1986 county fair produced revenue of $55,394 while other revenue totaled $31,862. The latter included $3,610 in state aid, $9,000 in county aid, $1,466 in rent other than during the fair, $826 in special projects (pull tab) funds and a $10,000 grant from the Hartz Foundation toward the livestock barn constructed on the fairgrounds.

Anderson noted that the city of Thief River Falls also provides a large amount of in kind services involving personnel and equipment for grounds and other needs. Also included in the revenue was a $5,000 loan which was taken out near the end of the year to allow the association to pay expenses incurred during 1986 operations.

Receipts included $32,692 in grandstand admission, $1,607 for auto parking, $4,045 in space rentals, $8,746 in carnival income, $539 in entry, stall and pen fees; $2,210 in advertising and premium books, $1,806 in sales tax collected, $3,031 in reimbursement for expenses and $716 in sale of supplies, primarily 75th anniversary items.

Early Childhood Family Education Has Free Quarter

In an effort to reach as many parents of pre-school children as possible, the Early Childhood Family education (ECFE) program in School District 564 is planning an open house November 18 and 19 from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., a "Daddy Night" for November 17 and free registration for the winter quarter which begins November 24 and continues through February 27.

Joyce Brandt, coordinator and instructor in the program, said a number of other activities are being utilized to make parents familiar with offerings of the program.

"We have been offering a noon hour class for working parents," Mrs. Brandt said, "and conducting a session at Calvary Lutheran church in St. Hilaire. Parenting information is being made available during the Women, Infants and Children (WIC) nutrition clinics and we are conducting monthly Daddy nights. A session is being planned for teenage mothers and we have video tapes on parenting available for checkout.

"All of these are in addition to our regular weekly sessions for those children—from birth to kindergarten and their parents." Mrs. Brandt added. "We are trying to emphasize the idea that early childhood family education is for all families of pre-schoolers. The Daddy night for children ages two and one-half to kindergarten and their fathers or special friends on November 17 is open to all and they may call 681-2700, extension 231 or 214 to pre-register. Winter quarter registration is also underway."

Early childhood family education program offers a lending library which consists of books, toys and parent education materials available to all young families who live in Thief River Falls school district and have participated in at least two program events.

"Purpose of the library is to provide parents with a wide variety of toys and materials to use with young children," Mrs. Brandt said. "Many parents use it as an alternative to purchasing toys while other parents want to try out a toy to determine a child's interest in it before making a purchase. Still others may borrow a toy or activity kit to assist their children in overcoming a developmental delay."

Tami Hanson & Dale Schneider Wed August 30 In Newfolden

The Bethlehem Lutheran church in Newfolden was the scene of the August 30 wedding of Tami Ann Hanson and Dale Alan Schneider. Rev. Terry Baxter of the Evangelical Free church in Hinckley was the officiant at the 3 p.m., double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Hanson, Newfolden, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schneider, Hinckley.

Bonnie Hanson, Bemidji, cousin of the bride, served as organist and pianist. As processional, she played "Ice Castles" and "You Took My Heart By Surprise." Steve and Bonnie Hanson sang "Never Be the Same Again" as the parents of the couple lit the side candles, and a duet of "Flesh of My Flesh" after the lighting of the unity candle.

The bride and groom joined in singing "He Has Chosen You For Me," with Debbie and Karla Hanson, sisters of the bride, joining in the chorus. Karla Hanson sang "We Three Are One" after the exchange of wedding vows and rings. Recessional was "The Wedding March."

The church was decorated with two large baskets of pink gladioli, babies' breath and greenery. The aisle was decorated with white candles enclosed in bow-trimmed lanterns. Sprays of babies' breath, white satin ribbon and greenery decorated the pews for the guests of honor. The altar was graced with a golden candelabra decorated with sprays of babies' breath, white ribbon and greenery.

Accompanied to the altar by her parents, the bride wore a traditional white gown of taffeta, Venise and Raschel lace. The front illusion net cameo yoke was highlighted with pearls, sequins and Schiffli embroidery. Full, melon sleeves were accented with Raschel lace, and the full skirt was trimmed with Raschel lace and accented with white bows, flowing to a full, cathedral-length train of Raschel-lace. Raschel lace formed a V waist at the back of the bodice, accented with a large, white ribbon and a white rose, with pearl button closing.

To complete her ensemble, the bride wore a matching headpiece of Venise lace with a blusher veil and flowing fingertip veil trimmed in pearls and sequins. Her bouquet was of pink roses, ivy, small blue and white blossoms, and babies' breath, bound with white satin ribbon.

Debbie Hanson, Newfolden, sister of the bride, served as her maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Karla Hanson, Newfolden, sister of the bride; Anna Tautant, Champlin, and Shanna Brodersen Flanagan, Gardar, ND, both friends of the bride; and KariJo Hanson, Newfolden, sister of the bride.

They were attired in baby blue gowns festooned with lace and bows. Lace adorned the sweetheart neckline, and satin bows trimmed the shoulders. The basque waistline had a self-sash accenting a full skirt that was trimmed with lace and satin bows. They wore headpieces of white netting, a pink rose with green leaves, pearls, babies' breath, and white or pink ribbon. They wore their gifts from the bride, pearl necklaces, and carried lace fans decorated with pink and blue blossoms, babies' breath and white, satin ribbon streamers.

Branda Hanson, Newfolden, sister of the bride, was the flower girl, strewing rose petals as she walked down the aisle. She wore a baby blue gown of sheer polyester over acetate taffeta featuring a jewel neckline and attached lace caplet. The empire waistline was trimmed with a satin bow, accenting a lace-trimmed, full skirt. She wore a floral headpiece of blue flowers with blue and white netting and blue and white satin ribbon streamers. Mixed flowers matching those of the bridesmaids were carried in a white basket with flowing ribbon streamers.

Lynne Hanson, Newfolden, sister of the bride, was the miniature bride. She wore a white gown similar to that of the flower girl, with long, sheer sleeves, and a headpiece of white flowers and netting with a flowing veil matching that of the bride. She carried a miniature bridal bouquet identical to that of the bride containing pink roses, ivy, blue and white blossoms and babies' breath with white ribbon streamers.

The groom was attired in white tails with a matching bow tie and cummerbund. His boutonniere was a pink rose centered in babies' breath. Mark Schneider, Hinckley, brother of the groom, was his best man.

Groomsmen were Scott Schneider, Felton, David Schneider, Moorhead, brothers of the groom; Brent Hanson, Newfolden, brother of the bride; and Jason Hoffsommer, Mahtomedi, cousin of the groom. Gentlemen of the wedding party wore silver grey tails with matching bow ties and cummerbunds. Their boutonnieres were pink baby carnations accented with small blue flowers and babies' breath.

Ushering the guests were J. Sowers, Fridley, cousin of the groom and Bob Bensen, Grand Rapids, and Bill Oakes, Pembina, ND, both friends of the couple. Ushers and fathers of the bride and groom wore silver grey tuxedos with matching cummerbunds and ties. Fathers were presented with boutonnieres of white roses and ushers wore pink carnations.

The mother of the bride wore a pink, floor-length gown with sheer overlay. The groom's mother was attired in a flowered blue, floor-length gown. They wore corsages of white roses, pink leaves, babies' breath and white ribbon.

Honored guests were grandparents of the bride, Mrs. Ann Lundgren, Warroad, and Mrs. Tena Hanson, Newfolden; and grandparents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Moffatt, Hinckley. Mrs. Edith Kofoed of Hinckley was also an honored guest.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. Host and hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Merle Bjornrud, Newfolden, uncle and aunt of the bride.

A pink and white, three-tiered wedding cake highlighted the serving table, topped with a miniature bride and groom in a gazebo, fashioned by the bride. Pink ribbons flowed from the top layer to the two, heart-shaped side cakes inscribed with the names of the bride and groom. The cake was decorated with pink roses and a blue flowing fountain.

Mrs. Mark Schneider, Hinckley, sister-in-law of the groom, and Mrs. John Hoffsommer, Mahtomedi, aunt of the groom, cut and served the wedding cake. Mrs. Floyd Hanson and Mrs. Earl Hanson, both aunts of the bride from Newfolden, poured. Punch was served by friends of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Lenny Sutherland, Brooklyn Park.

Presiding at the guest book was Debi Dow, Brooklyn Park, friend of the couple; gift carriers were Jason Hanson, Newfolden, and Matthew Hanson, Bemidji, cousins of the bride; candle lighters were J. Somers and Bob Bensen, friends of the couple; and flower hostess was Mrs. Charles Vigness, Thief River Falls, cousin of the bride. Michelle Carlson and Lonnda Carlson of Argyle and Bobbi-Jo Hoeper, Stephen, all friends of the bride, and Lisa Hoffsommer, Mahtomedi, cousin of the groom, served as waitresses.

Following the opening of the gifts, those present were served root beer floats and cookies, a favorite of the groom. Prior to the wedding rehearsal, a groom's supper was held at the Newfolden city park.

Following a short wedding trip to Minneapolis, the couple is at home in Thief River Falls where the groom is employed at Arctco, Inc. The bride is a 1984 graduate of Marshall County Central high school and a 1986 graduate of Oak Hills Bible college in Bemidji. "THE FOREIGNER" will be presented this weekend at Northland community college theatre in Thief River Falls. The show is a "devilishly clever idea," demonstrating what can happen when a group of devious characters must deal with a stranger who (they think) cannot speak English. Shown are (left) Al Sorum, who plays Owen Musser, a redneck county property inspector, and Rob Burkel as Charlie, the shy friend who ultimately becomes "The Foreigner."

State Patrol To Begin Tougher Belt Enforcement

Beginning this month the Minnesota state patrol will be stopping motorists whose sole violation is failure to have seat belts buckled.

According to Col. Roger Ledding, state patrol chief, since August 1 (the law's effective date) troopers have been issuing warning tickets only when a motorist was stopped in connection with another traffic offense.

"We will now treat a seat belt violation as a primary offense. If a trooper observes an individual operating a motor vehicle without a seat belt, the motorist will be issued a warning ticket with an advisory about the law," Ledding said.

The law requires drivers, front seat passengers and back-seat passengers under age 11 to use seat belts. Infractions are not recorded on a person's driving record.

The Patrol's new policy comes at a time when seat belt usage in Minnesota is reported higher, according to an observational roadside survey done in August. The findings showed that 33 per cent statewide were wearing seat belts as opposed to 20 per cent before the law went into effect. The metropolitan percentage was 43 compared to 30 earlier. In non metro areas the latest belt wearing percentage is 26 compared to 15 earlier. Another survey will be conducted this month.

This summer he was a participant in the Billy Graham conference on itinerant evangelists in Amsterdam which included people from 174 nations. Lincoln Class Of '57 Plans Reunion

A meeting of the 1957 graduating class of Lincoln high school will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Elks club. Plans for the 30-year reunion to be held next summer will be discussed. All members of the class living in the area are encouraged to attend; your ideas and help are needed.

Library Features Mask-Making

The Thief River Falls public library will hold a special program November 19 from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. as part of Children's Book Week celebrations. Artist Nancy Ricci will present a 45-minute program on mask making.

Ms. Ricci uses a unique method to make her masks, beginning by applying plaster bandages directly to the face to make a perfect mold, and then building the face with clay, paper mache, tissue, paint and other materials. She learned this method at a workshop two years ago and has used it not only to create masks but to create a three dimensional effect in larger pieces of art.

The program will begin with a volunteer having their face covered with the mask. Ms. Ricci warns, "You must be very careful in making masks this way. Don't just try it for fun. Always have someone who has training do it." She will also show participants how to decorate masks themselves. "Mask decorating can be done to a lot of different masks, so this part is fun to learn and do on your own," she states.

Everyone is welcome to attend the program, which is geared toward middle to upper elementary age children. The program is a Northwest Regional library system touring children's program, which will be presented in the following towns November 20, 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. at Godel Memorial in Warren, and 7 to 8 p.m. at the Red Lake Falls library, November 22 from 9 to 10 a.m. at the Warroad library, 11 a.m. to 12 noon at the Roseau library, 1 to 2 p.m. at the Greenbush library, and 3 to 4 p.m. at the Hallock library.

Noon Lions Host Zone II Meeting

District 5M-11 governor of Lions International, Dan Chase of Lengby, was guest speaker and heard club reports at a Zone II meeting hosted by the Thief River Falls noon Lions club Thursday at the Best Western inn of Thief River Falls. Zone II chairman Swin Johnson of Roseau presided at the evening dinner meeting.

Chase discussed membership and introduction of new members, urging all clubs to have their new members attend the mid-winter convention in Moorhead for group introduction at a special ceremony. After listening to reports by Lions and Lioness clubs, he congratulated the clubs on their many activities and wished them continued success.

Zone II Chairman Johnson pointed out that Lions International is the largest service organization in the world and that its mixture of social and service projects give members a feeling of belonging as they provide service to mankind.

Welcome was given by Dr. Charles Samuelson, president of the host club. George Pittman, president of the Goodridge Lions club which was originally chartered by the Thief River Falls club, noted that it will observe its 25th anniversary with a special meeting December 6. Area Lions clubs are being invited.

Grygla Lions announced their district Christmas party December 27 and Thief River Falls Lions noted that the governor would make his official visit to Thief River Falls December 3. A. J. Kramer of the Roseau club, public relations chairman, urged each club to keep a scrapbook of activities and to let others know what the clubs are doing. Hearing program of the Lions organization was outlined by George Marx, Crookston, Zone III chairman and candidate for district governor.

Fred Dallmann of the Thief River Falls noon Lions club and deputy district governor for Area I, spoke on the importance of maintaining membership and attempting to increase it by keeping the spirit of Lionism alive and well in the area. He also gave the introduction for Gov. Chase.

TRF Schools To Observe National Education Week

Education leaders will meet with concerned citizens during American Education Week, November 16-22, to take a concentrated look at the public schools of Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls' schools join schools throughout the nation at this time of year when parents visit their children's schools to participate in what has been an annual nationwide observance since 1921. The theme this year is "School and Community United For Excellence."

Highlights of this year's program in Thief River Falls, according to Jim Fremstad, Education Association president, Thief River Falls, include special awards, schools open daily for visitation, and reminders around the community.

American education week was begun in 1921 by the National Education Association and the American Legion, organizations that sought to encourage local support and active citizen participation for the improvement of education. The observance this year seeks increased awareness in our community of the need to work as partners in shaping our children's — and our society's — future through quality education.

AEW is sponsored nationally by the National Education Association, National Congress of parents and teachers, National school boards association, the American Legion, the United States department of education.

Pat Johnson is chair of the Thief River Falls sponsoring committee. Members of the committee are Frank Hamerlinck, assistant superintendent; Jane Mackenroth, community education director; and Jane Oberg, Edith Etter, Bill Hahn, all local teachers.

Two New Officer Positions Approved For Postal Service

Board of Governors of the United States postal service, meeting in San Francisco, CA, November 4, approved expanding the number of assistant postmasters general from 16 to 18. The board's authorization, requested by Postmaster General Preston R. Tisch, will allow the establishment of new departments for philatelic affairs and for training and development.

Assistant postmasters general manage executive departments at postal service headquarters and, along with other senior managers, serve as officers of the postal service.

The two new executive positions were needed, Tisch said, to allow for refinements in the postal service's human resources group and its marketing and communications group.

The new training and development department recognizes the role of training and education "in allowing postal employees to reach their full potential for their own good and that of the whole enterprise," Tisch said.

The establishment of a separate department for philatelic affairs will allow sharper management focus on both the postal service's stamps program and its overall marketing efforts. Tisch termed both as "particularly important in this period of development of a comprehensive marketing program in the postal service."

The additional executive positions expand the officer corps of the postal service, a quasi-corporation and independent agency of the federal executive branch, to include: the postmaster general, deputy postmaster general and associate postmaster general; senior assistant postmasters general for finance and planning, operations support, human resources, marketing and communications, facilities and supply, and management information and research technology; the chief postal inspector, the general counsel and five regional postmasters general; assistant postmasters general for planning, rates and classification, controller, government relations, delivery services, mail processing, engineering and technical support, employee relations, labor relations, training and development, marketing, philatelic affairs, communications, international postal affairs, facilities, procurement and supply, technology resources, and information resource management; and the treasurer, deputy general counsel, consumer advocate and judicial officer.

IRS Opens New Distribution Center

The Internal Revenue Service in Minnesota said today that people will now be able to order tax forms and publications directly from the IRS's new central area distribution center.

The center, located in Bloomington, IL, will provide tax forms and publications to the public, in addition to storing and shipping the agency's internal use forms and documents, according to C.D. Switzer, director of the IRS in Minnesota.

The Bloomington center will service people in Minnesota plus taxpayers in 17 other states, comprising about 40 per cent of the United States population. The center is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and can be reached by calling 1-800-424-FORM, Switzer said.

A person calling the center will deal directly with an IRS representative. In the past, people ordering forms and publications oftentimes had to leave a recorded message on a device known as a code-a-phone. The representative can now assist a caller by identifying the correct form and publication to use based on the person's particular needs.

The benefits of the new center include government cost for form storage and staffing. A computerized system processes an order and has it ready to be shipped within 48 hours from the time it is received.

Book Fair Planned At Northrop

Northrop elementary school will have a book fair November 17, 18 and 19 during school hours, 11:15 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. and 2:50 to 3:30 p.m. The book fair will also be held during conferences November 20 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Railroad Retirees On Tier I May Pay More Income Tax

Retirees receiving tier I railroad retirement benefits may have to pay more federal income tax for 1986. Under the old rules, all tier I payments were treated the same as social security retirement payments when figuring whether any of the benefits were taxable. Under the new rules, the amount of tier I benefits which can be treated the same as social security will be the amount that would have been received if the retiree was getting social security instead of railroad retirement.

As an example, Mr. Smith is retired and received $10,000 in railroad retirement benefits in 1986. If Mr. Smith had been covered by social security rather than railroad retirement, he would have received $7,000 in benefits. On Mr. Smith's federal tax return for 1986, $7,000 of his retirement payments will be treated the same as social security. However $3,000 must be treated as a separate pension and will fall under the rules for tier II railroad retirement payments.

Information about the taxation of retirement benefits is available from the Internal Revenue Service. Order free Publication 915, Tax Information on social security benefits and tier I railroad retirement benefits. Information on tier II benefits is available in free Publication 575, Pension and Annuity Income.

FCS To Sponsor Tax Law Reform Class For Farmers

Farm Credit Services (FCS) of Grand Forks is conducting a tax law reform class especially for area farmers.

FCS farm tax specialists, Ardell Hermanson and Marilynn Ogden, will teach the class Wednesday, November 12, beginning at 9 a.m. in the community room of the First American bank of Warren. There is no charge for the class.

Ogden and Hermanson, who are Certified Public Accountants, will discuss what the Tax Reform Act of 1986 will do to and for farming operations. They will explain what options are left in 1986 to deal with the new tax law and how farmers can minimize their taxable income in 1987, 1988 and 1989, when additional changes in the tax code take affect. The class is expected to last about two hours.

Specifically, the farm tax accountants will disucss tax law changes in capital asset depreciation; investment tax credit; income averaging; personal deductions for contributions, medical expenses and interest costs; treatment of PIK certificate income; and income tax brackets. Each participant in the class will receive tax booklets for home study of the tax changes.

"Our aim is to teach farmers how the new federal tax overhaul affects key aspects of agricultural ownership and production," said Bill Haug, director of financially-related services for FCS of Grand Forks.

"Because agriculture is our only business, our CPA's specialize in farm tax planning and preparation. They are up to date on the latest tax information for farm operations," Haug said.

To register for the class, call the Warren FCS branch office at 218-745-5144. The class is open to farmers on a first-come basis since registration is limited.

FCS Officer Will Address Conference

Judith M. Goff, legislative affairs officer for Farm Credit Services (FCS), St. Paul, will address the fourth annual "Harvest of Knowledge" Agri-Women's conference on Thursday, November 20 at the Westward Ho motel in Grand Forks.

Goff will speak at 9:30 and 10:45 a.m. on the topic "Competitive Interest Rates for Farm Credit Services and Commercial Lenders." She is among a dozen speakers who will address the conference sponsored by North Dakota Agri-Women, Minnesota Women for Agriculture, and Grand Forks, ND, radio station KNOX. The conference will offer informational workshops and seminars on a variety of topics of interest to farm women, including marketing, stress management, pesticide safety, and promoting agriculture.

Twelve county farm women of the year will be honored at a banquet at 6 p.m. One of the women will be named Red River Valley farm woman of the year.

The seventh FCS district of St. Paul includes North Dakota, Minnesota, Michigan, and Wisconsin. Goff often calls herself a lobbyist for FCS and its member-borrowers in the four states. "My responsibilities include working with the district board of directors and management to develop a grassroots network to influence the creation and maintenance of government policy which is favorable to the owners and users of the Farm Credit System," Goff said. She is secretary-treasurer of the St. Paul District Farm Credit Council.

Before joining FCS in 1982, Goff was director of member and public affairs for the National council of farmer cooperatives, Washington, D.C. Before that, she was public affairs coordinator for Dairymen, Inc., Louisville, Kentucky.

Goff is a member of Women in government relations, located in Washington, D.C., and the Minnesota governmental relations council, both professional organizations, and she is a board member of the Minnesota Agri-Growth council. Goff received a bachelor's degree in politics from Hollins college, VA.

FCS is the Federal Land bank, the Production credit association, and the bank for cooperatives. FCS provides credit and related services to farmers, agricultural businesses, and cooperatives. FCS is part of the nationwide Farm credit system, which is privately funded and cooperatively owned and directed by its member-borrowers. The seventh district is the largest of the 12 farm credit districts in terms of member-borrowers and loan volume outstanding.

FCS of Grand Forks, which is sponsoring Goff's visit to North Dakota, has 16 branch offices throughout the association's 20-county territory in northeastern North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota.

Council Discusses Salt Application On City Streets

City council members in Thief River Falls met for a short period Monday night and discussed the application of salt and sand on city streets and the effective date for enforcement of calendar parking.

In light of last weekends snow storm, Police Chief Kenneth Froschheiser, requested that the city council consider authorizing calendar parking immediately instead of waiting until November 15 as stated in a city ordinance.

The council agreed that it was not necessary to begin enforcement immediately. Changing the date would mean an amendment to the ordinance. Holding back on enforcement immediately and instead, giving out warnings would give the public time to get used to calendar parking regulations.

Mayor Bob Carlson wanted to know the wishes of the council in regards to salt and sand application on city streets. The Mayor said he had already noticed a great deal of salt being used on the streets.

Alderman Milan Borsheim and Don Liden said Street Superintendent Norm Blackstad had already talked to them and it was their opinion that the city street department should use restraint. They both said that city streets looked good while streets maintained by the state looked sloppy from the use of too much salt.

A number of regular and special bills were authorized for payment. Those bills included: Agassiz construction, $155,135; Northern Paving — 1986 street project, $12,636.34; Stewart and Walker, Inc., $1,137.39; Johnson construction, $1,310.53; GAB business services for a personal injury claim, $4,800; water loss survey, $4,550; and Pennington county council on aging for insurance on the Heritage community center, $2,116.

Before the meeting adjourned until November 13 at 4 p.m. to discuss the budget, the council took note that Thief River Falls Area Hockey Association had applied to conduct a charitable gambling operation at the Best Western. They were also in receipt of a letter from the Skating club which offered $1,000 to be specifically used for the purchase of a new Zamboni resurfacer.

Annual Report Of Co. Fair Board Shows $4,502 Loss

current expenses, the association would have completed the year with a negative fund balance of $765. Fund balance at the start of the year had been $3,736.

Total receipts this year of $85,757 compared with $92,104 in 1985. A major difference was the income of $10,094 a year ago from pull tab operations for which the fair association was later declared ineligible. Income from pull tabs in 1986 was only $826. Difference between the two years would have been substantially worse if the Hartz Foundation grant of $10,000 and the $5,000 operating loan were not included as receipts.

As of September 30 this year, end of the fiscal year, the association had total debt of $16,562 which included $9,562 in a mortgage loan at Norwest bank, $5,000 in the operating loan at Norwest bank and $2,000 due to Matt Armstrong Shows which is that company's deposit against failure to meet contract agreements.

Anderson noted that insurance costs increased substantially this year, primarily due to a hike in liability insurance premiums. Insurance cost the association $3,462 this year. Total expenditures for 1986 were down about $7,700 from a year ago.

A review of grandstand activities showed that all events had a profit except the John Conley and Sylvia show which lost $3,845 and the tractor pull which lost $197. Grandstand jam, demolition derby and three-wheeler races showed profits.

Premium payments of $10,178 were down slightly from the previous year when the 75th anniversary fair was held. Break-down of premium areas, number of exhibitors, number of exhibits and premiums paid includes the following for 1986:

Dairy cattle, 16 exhibitors, 55 exhibits, $857 in premiums; beef cattle, 18, 81 and $1,167; horses, 36, 81 and $757; sheep, 13, 179 and $1,416; goats, 13, 79 and $582; swine, 5, 18 and $123; poultry, 30, 61 and $511; rabbits, 18, 36 and $73; dogs, 11, 22 and $4,950, tractor driving, 8, 8 and $62; agriculture, 76, 306 and $501; found that a number of needed records were still missing. Concerned about the loss of the records, she went to the Aune mobile home in Basswood Trailer park where she found two trash bags outside the trailer, both of which contained social services department records. She reported her findings by phone to director Erickson, who was out of town at a conference, and then to Sheriff Richards.

Included were more than 100 checks which had been torn in two to four pieces, ledger sheets and other materials. Additional records were found in the mobile home later after Aune had been summoned back to Thief River Falls by Sheriff Richards. Shirley Nelson and Erickson pieced and taped together the torn checks.

The investigation is continuing and any further action is pending completion of the audit which was started about a week ago. Indications are that the audit will cover the past three years.

CHIEF'S CORNER

Once again it is time to think about snow plowing and calendar parking. On November 15th calendar parking becomes effective in the city. The Police Department will take an active enforcement of calendar parking as we have in the past years.

Calendar parking prohibits parking on certain streets on particular days as follows:

No parking on avenues (north-south streets) from 6 a.m. - 9 a.m. Mondays - Wednesdays - Fridays.

No parking on streets (east-west streets) from 6 a.m. - 9 a.m. Tuesdays - Thursdays - Saturdays.

The police department will enforce the ordinance by issuing tickets to those vehicles parked in violation when the street department is not plowing (motor-grader) snow. The first ticket will be a warning and all subsequent tickets will be a fine of $3. On the days that the street department cleans snow with the snow plow (motor-grader type), vehicles that are parked in violation will be towed and a tow fee of $20 will be imposed.

We appreciate the cooperation that the police department and street department have received from the public in the past, and request the same this year. If you are unsure of when and where you can park your vehicle, please call the law enforcement center and our dispatchers will advise you. If you have guests in your home from out-of-town, please advise them of the ordinance. Clean streets provide a much safer traveling condition for all motorists. With the cooperation of all, our street department can clean our streets in a very efficient manner and provide us all with a much safer city to drive in.

Thank you, and if you have any questions about this article, please call us at 681-6161.

To The Editor and Whom It May Concern:

I really hope that some of you are concerned about what has happened at our Falls Day Activity center.

When I was informed by the law that my child had been "allegedly" abused, I had mixed emotions: First, hate for the person who would do this to my son; next, rage over the act; and finally guilt that I had not investigated this or rather suspected this before.

My son's behavior had changed so radically — perhaps over a year's span. He was (and is) a loving child but he did become increasingly hard to handle and I had a problem getting him to go to the center.

After I learned of the "alleged" abuse, I realized why he had changed. These children are special and need special punishment. They do not understand hitting, slapping or physical abuse. They want to hit back. It is much better to take something away from them as punishment and more love makes them better children.

I had guilt because I had not kept up on matters at the center. I was never notified of meetings. I did not know the board members. My husband and myself were active in our former A.R.C. organization. I was secretary at one time and he was on the board.

I was one of the mothers who helped form our first "Center". We met in church and had all volunteer help at the outset. We had few funds (some donations) but lots of love and help from mothers and concerned citizens.

What has happened to all of our dreams that we had for a well run center. I think things have gotten out of hand and somewhere there has been a wrong turn and our priorities have gotten all mixed up.

These children will never break any scholastic records and perhaps never mature academically but we can give them love, happiness and a secure life. Let us all pray and see that this is what will happen in the future at our "Falls Day Activity Center."

MCCL Director Disappointed In Judges' Decision

Reacting to news that a U.S. District Judge had struck down Minnesota's parental notification law, MCCL director Jackie Schwietz said the organization was "profoundly disappointed" and would urge the state to appeal the decision to the Eighth Circuit.

The law struck by Judge Donald Alsop was passed by the Minnesota Legislature by large majorities in 1981 with MCCL support, Schwietz said. As originally passed the law required that parents be notified before an abortion is performed on dependent minors. Included in the legislature was a provision that if the strict parental notification requirement were ever overturned, an alternative would go into effect, allowing girls who didn't want their parents notified to get court permission to have the notification waived. The law was immediately challenged by state abortionists, and consequently the court by-pass provision did go into effect.

Mrs. Schwietz noted that even in its weakened form, the parental notification law has had an effect on adolescence pregnancy. "From 1980 to 1983 abortions to teens aged 15 to 17 decreased 40 per cent, births decreased 23.4 per cent and pregnancies 32 per cent," Schwietz stated. "We believe that the increased communication about abortion in families since the law went into effect has been a factor in these remarkable statistics," she said. "It should be noted that during this same period the number of teens aged 15 to 19 decreased only 13.5 per cent," Schwietz said, "thus, this law was clearly beneficial."

Schwietz further observed that the Alsop decision "says a terrible thing to parents. I have teenage daughters for whom I have had to sign permission slips for school trips, ear piercing, and my husband and I both had to sign for surgeries they have had," Schwietz said. "Now a federal judge says that parents, who are responsible for their health care, cannot even be notified when their child seeks an abortion that can have serious and long lasting consequences. How can parents help and support their daughters if they aren't even notified?" Schwietz asked.

In response to Judge Alsop's characterization in his opinion of parts of the law as "irresponsible" and unduly burdensome, Schwietz pointed out that girls using the judicial bypass were allowed 24-hour access to the courts, that they could participate in court proceedings on their own behalf, that fees were waived, and expedited confidential appeals were available. Rather than the judicial bypass being burdensome, Schwietz said it was "preferential in every way. Any irresponsibility or unreasonableness in this case is on the part of the court. It is irresponsible and unreasonable to shut parents out of their daughters' lives at such a critical time."

The U.S. Supreme Court has addressed this same issue in five separate cases and has ruled that parental notification statutes similar to Minnesota's are constitutional. In upholding Utah's parental notification law (H.L. vs. Matheson), the Court said: "the medical, emotional, and psychological consequences of an abortion are serious and can be lasting; this is particularly so when the patient is immature....It is cardinal with us that the custody, care and nurture of the child reside first in the parents, whose primary function and freedom include preparation for obligations the state can neither supply nor hinder...encouraging an unmarried pregnant minor to seek the advice of her parents in making the decision of whether to carry her child to term promotes a significant state interest in supporting the important role of the parent...'mere requirement of parental notice' does not violate the constitutional rights of an immature, dependent minor."

"Minnesota's law protected parents, their minor daughters, and unborn children," Schwietz concluded.

Volleyball Awards Presented

Special award winners at the varsity, junior varsity and C team levels, plus athletic letter winners, were recognized Tuesday during the annual Thief River Falls high school volleyball banquet.

Varsity award winners were senior Vikki Weigand, most valuable; junior Jodi Anderson, most improved; junior Susie Ulrich, hardest worker; and three co-winners of the coaches' award seniors Bobbi Thompson, Shalla Ottesen and Weigand.

Juniors Stephanie Benson and Bekah Bortnem were named 1987 Thief River Falls volleyball co-captains, succeeding Ottesen, Thompson and Weigand in that category.

Junior varsity awards went to sophomore Karen Kvick, most valuable; sophomore Kari Torkelson, coaches' award and hardest worker; and freshman Cheri Bjorgaard, most improved.

Fourteen athletic letter winners included seniors Ottesen, Thompson and Weigand; juniors Benson, Bortnem, Jill Olson, Siri Spong, Anderson and Ulrich; sophomores Kvick, Torkelson and Bjorgaard; plus student managers Tricia Budke, a junior, and Marcy McCloskey, a sophomore.

Thief River Falls finished the 1986 season with a 17-5 record — the Prowlers' best-ever record. They reached the North Sub-Region 8AA finals before losing to Moorhead 3-0. The Spuds went on to win the Region 8AA title and will compete in the Class AA state volleyball tournament this week.

"We're satisfied with the season," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson, "but we'd like a little different ending. The kids worked hard for that 17-5 record. Their attitude was great. They got along well as a team on and off the court."

Graduation losses of Weigand, the team's top hitter, and Thompson, a player who lifted the team with her all-out hustle, will be felt, admitted Anderson, but plenty of experience will return in 1987 to make the Prowlers a top North Sub-Region 8AA contender again. There's also 26 eighth graders who have indicated they plan to continue with volleyball at the high school level, promising Anderson a large group of 70-to-80 players in grades 9-12 in the sport next fall.

"It's great to see those kind of numbers," she said. "The skill level has gotten better each year. We just have to develop consistency. We have to be mentally prepared to play each match."

CO-CAPTAINS OF the 1987 Lincoln High School volleyball team will be Stephanie Benson (left) and Bekah Bortnem. Their names were announced at the Prowlers' annual post-season team banquet Tuesday.

TRF Cross Country Award Winners . . .

Anderson, Mueller Top Runners

Shayne Anderson, a junior, and Lynn Mueller, a freshman, were named MVP award winners Monday at the annual Thief River Falls boys and girls cross country banquet.

Mueller was also named the most improved runner for the girls, an award that went to sophomore Jeremy Sisler for the boys.

Hardest worker award was shared by three girls — juniors Cindy Kruta and Peggy Cruz, along with freshman Rhonda Rothschadl — while senior Ryanell Johnson won the award for the boys.

Freshman Luke Soine and sixth grader Sarah Holmstrom were named the top junior high runners.

Athletic letters were presented to 11 boys and five girls at the banquet.

Boys who lettered this fall included seniors Jim Breiland, Brent Larson, Brian Stark and Johnson; juniors Scott Grove, Shoan Nelson and Anderson; sophomore Sisler; freshmen Mike Howe and Soine; plus eighth grader Bryan Cloutier.

Girls who lettered included juniors Christy Puetz, Cruz and Kruta; along with freshmen Mueller and Rothschadl.

Puetz, a member of the Thief River Falls swim team this fall, wound up with a cross country letter, too, when she joined the Prowlers to fill out a full five-member team for the Region 8AA meet. That enabled Region 8AA to send two complete teams to the state meet, where Bemidji placed third and Alexandria was fourth. If the shorthanded Prowlers would not have added Puetz as a fifth runner, Region 8AA would have sent just its champion — Alexandria — to the state meet.

And the addition of Puetz lifted Thief River Falls to fifth place in the 12-team Region 8AA standings.

"The girls ran great," pointed out Thief River Falls cross country coach Lynn Dyer. "They ran incomplete all year, then to place fifth in the region, where two teams placed third and fourth at the state level, was quite an accomplishment. They did a nice job."

Thief River Falls boys had enough runners, but they struggled to an 11th place season-ending Region 8AA finish.

"I had hoped for a little better performance from the boys at the region," acknowledged Dyer. "I think we're better than 11th out of 12 teams."

Lack of numbers really hurt the Prowlers this fall. From a peak of 54 runners three-four years ago, Dyer watched that figure drop to just 25 this fall.

"We're going to have to increase the numbers if the program is going to survive," he warned.

Part of the pitch to attract participants to the sport of cross country running was a change in the Prowlers' practice routine this fall, explained Dyer. "We tried to do fun things, but still accomplish good work-outs," he said. "I think the word got around that it's not all work and sweat."

Part of the change was the advent of the Super Team competition. The squad was divided into three teams, who competed for points in volleyball, relay races, basketball, floor hockey and soccer. Earning trophies and special recognition for winning the Super Team points competition at the Prowlers' post-season banquet was a team captained by Anderson that also included Nelson, Soine, Howe, Kruta, Rothschadl, sixth grader Kevin Johnson, eighth grader Jamie Thompton and freshman Dave Stengrim.

There are just four seniors (all boys) on this year's list of graduation losses, but a year ago the Prowlers had only two seniors out for cross country, yet lost 10 runners for various reasons who didn't report for the sport this fall.

"We've got to get more kids out," said Dyer, "and the kids themselves will have no recruit. They're the best recruiters we have."

GIRLS COLLECTING special awards during the Thief River Falls cross country banquet Monday were, left to right, Lynn Mueller, MVP and most improved; Cindy Kruta, Peggy Cruz and Rhonda Rothschadl, who shared the hardest worker award. Not present at the time of the picture Tuesday morning at the high school athletic director's office was sixth grader Sarah Holmstrom, named the top junior high runner.

SPECIAL RECOGNITION was given to the winning group of the Super Team competition during Monday's Thief River Falls cross country banquet. To break up the cross country practice routine, Thief River Falls coach Lynn Dyer conducted the Super Team competition throughout the season when three squads fought for points in volleyball, relay races, basketball, floor hockey and soccer. The winning group included, front row left to right, Shoan Nelson, Kevin Johnson, Cindy Kruta and Rhonda Rothschadl; back row left to right, Dave Stengrim, Mike Howe, team captain Shayne Anderson and Luke Soine. Not present at the time of the picture this morning (Wednesday) was Jamie Thompton.

Argyle, Warroad Win Playoffs

Northwestern Minnesota representatives Argyle and Warroad are still alive in the 1986 Minnesota state high school football playoffs following storm-postponed quarterfinal round wins earlier this week.

Argyle defeated Norman County West 26-12 in a Monday nine-man game at Argyle, while Warroad beat Biwabik 23-14 in a Tuesday Class C game at Warroad.

Semifinals will be played this weekend. The Eagles (12-0) will visit Verndale (12-0) Saturday at 2 p.m., while the Warriors (12-0) will drive to Minneota (11-1) Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Championship finalists meet in Prep Bowl V Saturday, November 29, at the Metrodome in Minneapolis.

When the 15th annual state playdowns began last Friday, eight of the 40 schools that qualified had never previously appeared in a state playoff game, reports Larry Larson of the Minnesota State High School League. As semifinal action takes place with one game on Thursday, five on Friday, and four on Saturday this week, only three of those first-timers — Byron, in B, Grand Meadow in C and Warroad in C, survived quarterfinal tests.

The 1986 football season is certain of having new state champions as none of last year's winners qualified for state this year. However, one Prep Bowl entrants survived last week — Apple Valley, the 1985 Class AA runner-up.

State playoffs began with 20 undefeated squads, the most ever. Beginning this week 11 of those contingents are still sporting perfect marks. They include Stewartville and St. Peter, who meet this week in Class A. Others are Granite Falls, Watertown-Mayer, and Esko, all from Class B; Grand Meadow, Warroad of CLass C; and Alden-Conger, Silver Lake, Verndale and Argyle in nine-man play.

Class AA

It will be No. 1 against No. 2 and No. 6 meeting No. 7 this week in semifinal action at Parade Stadium in Minneapolis on Thursday and Friday nights, November 13 and 14, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

According to Final Associated Press Ratings, that means top-rated Apple Valley (11-1) will oppose second ranked Stillwater (11-1) Thursday, while sixth ranked Osseo (10-2) will face No. 7 Alexandria (10-1) on Friday.

Both Apple Valley and Stillwater nearly succumbed in quarterfinal play last week. Apple Valley squeeked past Wayzata, 21-20, and Stillwater edged St. Thomas Academy, 35-34. The last time Apple Valley met Stillwater was in last year's quarterfinal round when Apple Valley prevailed 27-20 at Rosemount Stadium. Apple Valley is considered a slight favorite to reach the title game once again this season. Both teams have one loss, Apple Valley lost to Osseo, 14-6, in the third game of the season, while Stillwater was handed a 21-14 setback by unranked South St. Paul late in the regular season.

Meanwhile, the other two combatants, Osseo and Alexandria, will be looking for their first ever appearance in a Class AA state championship game. Unlike Apple Valley and Stillwater, who have appeared in seven championship games between them, Osseo and Alexandria have been in but one. Alexandria was the Class A champion in 1974.

Last week, Osseo eliminated Moorhead, 27-3, behind an awesome running attack, and a solid Alexandria defense helped the Cardinals to a 13-7 triumph over Minneapolis Roosevelt, Class AA's previously only unbeaten team.

Osseo has lost twice this season — to Bloomington Jefferson (21-0), and Park Center (17-14) in the final two games of the regular season. Alexandria is riding a 10-game winning streak, having lost only to Bemidji, 9-7, in its season opener. Although Osseo is considered a slight favorite, Alexandria is considered the AA darkhorse, thanks mainly to a defense that has allowed a 7.9 points per game average.

Class A

Unbeatens St. Peter (12-0) and Stewartville (12-0) will meet Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in Stewartville in one semifinal game, and always strong Cambridge (11-1), whose only loss was 3-2 to Hastings of Class AA, will host Fergus Falls (9-3), also on Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

St. Peter is the lone school among the four to claim a previous state title. The Saints did so in both 1976 and 1981. Cambridge reached the title game in Class AA in 1980, and played for top honors in Class B in 1977. Fergus Falls, although once entered in the playoffs in 1977, never reached the championship game.

This week's favorites — Cambridge and St. Peter — were ranked second and third, respectively, in the final

DNR Evaluates Blizzard's Effect On N.W. Minnesota Deer Herd

Deer hunting season for Zone 4A hunters in the Red River Valley area of northwestern Minnesota will not be extended for this coming weekend, despite the past weekend's blizzard in that area, according to Department of Natural Resources officials.

"If an insufficient number of deer are taken during the 4B season this next weekend then a special post-season hunt will be considered for early December," said Tom Isley, assistant wildlife chief. "Hunters with valid antlerless permits for permit areas [illegible] and 420 should keep their license and permits in the event such a post-season hunt is [illegible]

Department officials stress that a post-season hunt is extremely unlikely and would be unprecedented. "It would be scheduled only if the deer herd is not reduced sufficiently during the second half of the Zone 4 — the area west of Highway 59 — season to minimize crop depredation and deer starvation," said Isley.

If a special season is held, it will be restricted to anterless permit holders with unused tags for the open areas.

No decision will be made until November 21, following an evaluation of deer hunter success during the Zone 4B season.

TRF Football Team Adds New Opponent

Mike Lundgren
Sports Editor

It turns out there will be a DL on the 1987 Thief River Falls football schedule, but it'll be Devils Lake, ND, not traditional rival Detroit Lakes, MN.

Detroit Lakes, it was reported earlier, was forced to drop Thief River Falls from its high school football schedule because of a change in the Lakers' Mid-State Conference make-up. Hibbing was quickly picked up as the Prowlers' opponent for Week 2 next fall in place of Detroit Lakes.

Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm also indicated earlier that Valley City, ND, was not going to continue playing the Prowlers after the two met for the first time this fall, but Grafton, another new addition to the 1986 schedule, was interested in playing Thief River Falls again in 1987.

However, those situations have reversed, with Valley City renewing the series with Thief River Falls next year, but Grafton bowing out.

Thief River Falls will continue to play Grand Forks Red River, Bemidji, Crookston, Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks. With Valley City, the 1985 North Dakota North Star Conference champion, and Devils Lake, the 1986 North Star Conference winner, plus the likes of Red River, Bemidji, Crookston, Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks, the Prowlers have themselves a challenging 1987 schedule. All those teams are winners. Hibbing is struggling, finishing without a win again this fall, but a school that size is likely to give the Prowlers all they can handle.

Devils Lake won ten straight games this fall before losing to Fargo South 30-7 Tuesday in the North Dakota Class A state football playoff semifinals.

Miscellaneous

+ Thief River Falls' Kristy Forsberg-Aune, a senior on the University of North Dakota women's cross country team, placed fifth in the North Central Conference and Regional meets Saturday at Fargo to earn her second straight berth in the NCAA Division II national meet Nov. 22 in Riverside, CA. Kristy had a 19:38 clocking in the 5,000-meter race in Saturday's blizzard to pace the UND women. Her husband, Lon Aune, a junior on the UND men's team, placed 15th in the meet with a 16:40 effort over 5,000 meters. He was the second UND runner across the finish line. Top two women's teams, plus the top three individuals (other than those on the top two teams) earned NCAA positions. Top three men's teams, plus the top two individuals (other than those on the top three teams) collected national berths. UND men placed fifth and the UND women placed eighth.

FIVE C TEAM award winners were named Tuesday at the Thief River Falls volleyball banquet. The group included, left to right, Leigh Solheim, MVP; Nicole Dimich, coaches' award; Christy Holthusen, who shared the most improved award; Stacie Hansen, who shared the most improved award; and Liesl Steidl, hardest worker.

Win-E-Mac, Moorhead Win 8A, 8AA

Win-E-Mac won Region 8A honors and Moorhead captured the Region 8AA title Monday in storm-postponed high school volleyball tournament action.

Region 8A semifinals and finals were played at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Afternoon semifinals found District 30A champion Win-E-Mac beat District 29A winner Cass Lake 15-7, 15-7, 15-5, while District 31A titlist East Grand Forks stopped District 32A representative Tri-County 15-2, 15-1, 15-6.

Win-E-Mac handled East Grand Forks 15-4, 15-8, 15-2 in the title match that night, while Cass Lake defeated Tri-County 16-14, 6-15, 15-10, 15-5 in the third place match.

North Sub-Region 8AA champion Moorhead swept South Sub-Region 8AA winner Rocori 15-11, 15-13, 16-14 at Fergus Falls a neutral site, for the Region 8AA title and a state tournament berth.

State tournament matches start Friday.

When the 13th annual Minnesota State High School League state volleyball tournament opens Friday at Met Center in Bloomington, defending state champions Apple Valley in Class AA and Greenway of Coleraine in Class A will not be among the 16 teams entered, points out Larry Larson of the MSHSL office.

Both schools had teams eliminated in the region tournaments last Saturday. Apple Valley lost to favored Lakeville, while Greenway was upset by Moose Lake-Willow River, who lost in the finals to state entrant Eveleth-Gilbert.

Not all of the 16 region tournaments were able to complete play last week as inclement weather in three regions forced postponement of tournaments. Snow caused Regions 6A and 8A and Region 8AA to reschedule semifinal and championship matches for Monday, November 10.

Thirteen regions, however, did crown champions last week and are set for play beginning at 9:30 a.m. on Friday. All state tournament matches will be played as two games out of three to 15 points, except for the AA and A championship matches that will be played as three games out of five to 15 points.

Those teams that have qualified will give the tournament quite a new look from a year ago. At least seven of the entries are first-timers, and only five schools to date are repeaters from last year's field.

First-time entrants in Class AA include Roseville Area, Hopkins and Totino Grace (Fridley). In Class A, Eveleth-Gilbert, Cosmos, Tracy-Milroy, and Win-E-Mac, a new school, this year named for McIntosh-Winger and Erskine high schools who merged, was entered last year without Erskine.

Repeat entries this year include from Class AA Marshall, Hibbing, Columbia Heights, and Moorhead. In Class A St. Michael-Albertville, McIntosh-Winger (part of Win-E-Mac) and Clarissa are repeaters.

There are no undefeated teams in the tournament. Tournament favorites appear to be Columbia Heights and Clarissa.

The 1986 state tournament pairings are as follows:

CLASS AA

Upper Bracket — 9:30 a.m. — Region 3AA Roseville Area (18-1) vs. Region 8AA Moorhead (16-3); 10:45 a.m. — Region 2AA Marshall (18-1) vs. Region 1AA Lakeville (17-2).

Lower Bracket — Noon — Region 4AA Columbia Heights (17-1) vs. Region 7AA Hibbing (17-3); 1:15 p.m. — Region 6AA Hopkins (16-3) vs. Region 5AA Totino Grace (16-3).

CLASS A

Upper Bracket — 9:30 a.m. — Region 2A Luverne (18-3) vs. Region 8A Win-E-Mac (21-1); 10:45 a.m. — Region 7A Eveleth-Gilbert (16-3) vs. Region 3A Tracy-Milroy (18-3).

Lower Bracket — Noon — Region 6A Clarissa (19-1) vs. Region 4A Cosmos (18-3); 1:15 p.m. — Region 1A Kenyon (19-1) vs. Region 5A St. Michael-Albertville (20-1).

The two-day tournament will continue with semifinal matches at 7:30 and 8:45 p.m. in a continuance of matches being held on two courts simultaneously in the Met Center. Saturday's action will be devoted to the consolation championship and third place matches at 8:30 and 9:45 a.m., respectively, with championship matches to follow in Class A at 11 a.m. and in Class AA at 1 p.m.

Youth Hockey

Tiny Mites

Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA) Tiny Mites program will begin its 1986-87 season Monday, November 17, at the Old Arena.

Practice sessions will include 5-6-year-olds from 3:45 to 4:30 p.m.; 7-year-olds from 4:30 to 5:15 p.m.; and 8-year-olds from 5:15 to 6.

Tiny Mites coaching staff will include Art Cloutier and Tony Loeffler, 5-6-year-olds; Emery Wicklander and Clark Hendrickson, 7-year-olds; Cal Offerdahl and Bill Stock, 8-year-olds.

Squirts

Squirt In-House teams for 9-10-year-olds will be formed Tuesday, November 18, and players will be informed of their teams on Thursday, November 20.

Coaches in the 1986-87 Squirts program include Mike Lundgren, Coke; Wayne Smith and Kent LeMoine, Pepsi; Glenn Chiodo and Gary Laidley, TG Sporting Goods; Larry Lee and Keith Hoverstad, Pizza Hut; Kevin Duffy, Hardees-Bridgeman.

Monday Instructions

Beginning November 17, a skating technique session will be offered to TRFAHA Squirts, Pee-Wees and Bantams by Tom Goddard.

It's mandatory that all Squirts, Pee-Wees and Bantams attend the sessions, in addition to their regular practice times. The sessions will be offered in the Old Arena.

Squirts with last names starting with the letters A-K will be on the ice from 6:15 to 6:45 p.m.; Squirts with last names starting with the letters L-Z will be on the ice from 6:45 to 7:15 p.m.; Pee-Wees will be on the ice from 7:30 to 8:15 p.m.; and Bantams will be on the ice from 8:30 to 9:15 p.m.

It'll be a five-week program, devoted to the teaching of proper skating techniques. After five weeks, TRFAHA officials will evaluate the program to see if it will continue for the rest of the 1986-87 season.

District 16 Jamboree

Thief River Falls will host the first Minnesota Amateur Hockey Association (MAHA) District 16 Pee-Wees and Bantams preseason hockey jamboree Saturday, November 22.

MAHA District 16 teams will participate in the event, with the exception of Warroad. Pee-Wees will play in the Old Arena and Bantams will play in the Sports Arena.

Purpose of the Jamboree is two-fold, according to TRFAHA officials: 1) to give the coaches an opportunity to see as many players as possible in game situations, helping in the team selection process; 2) to see how the rest of the District 16 teams stack up.

Crookston, East Grand Forks, Roseau, Bemidji and Thief River Falls will participate in the event, featuring 35-minute scrimmage sessions against each of the other District 16 members.

Play starts at 10 a.m. for the Pee-Wees and at 8:15 a.m. for the Bantams, continuing non-stop throughout the day.

Miscellaneous

+ Parent meetings will be held as soon as the teams are formed, probably right after Thanksgiving.

+ TRFAHA is still looking for a Pee-Wee B coach. Anyone interested in coaching a team of 10-11-year olds should contact youth hockey program director Ron Novak at 681-3959.

Deer Season

Minnesota firearms deer season opened one-half hour before sunrise on Saturday, Nov. 8, and deer hunters were expecting excellent hunting in most of the state, according to the Department of Natural Resources officials.

A significant change from last year was the reduced number of antlerless permits in the forested areas where the deer herd is down.

"Before the permit system was introduced to our hunting season, it would have been necessary to alter the season length, close a portion of the season, or change starting dates," said DNR Commissioner Joseph Alexander. "The antlerless permit system works well because the harvest can be controlled by altering the quota without changing zones or season lengths."

Just how much decrease will there be in the harvest? The 40 per cent reduction in antlerless permits in the forested area will reduce the overall total harvest by several thousand. The past three years (1983-1985) have been record harvests of 139,086; 138,941; and 146,203 consecutively. This year's harvest will be somewhat lower.

Hunter success rate in 1985 was 33.3 per cent for firearms and 11.4 per cent for archers. Overall success rates this year will probably be down somewhat from 1985.

A new regulation allows any member of a hunting group to take an antlerless deer for another member of the party who has an unused tag valid for an anterless deer.

Minnesota is now in the second year of a three-year bonus deer experiment authorized by the legislature. The bonus deer season was designed to reduce deer populations in areas where the regular antlerless permit system did not allow for the necessary harvest.

Bonus licenses are available in most undersubscribed antlerless permit areas — where there are fewer applications than permits available. In these areas there are too few hunters to adequately reduce the herd. Bonus licenses are also available for special hunts conducted in state parks and other refuges.

What's different about this year's bonus hunt? In 1985 there were about 8,000 fewer applicants in undersubscribed areas than the number of permits available. This year the difference is about 3,000. Subsequently, the DNR will issue fewer bonus licenses in 1986 in undersubscribed areas.

Argyle, Warroad Win In Playoffs

Associated Press ratings. In gaining this week's semi's, Cambridge blanked Cloquet 41-0 and St. Peter downed previously unbeaten and top ranked Orono 14-8. Both teams won on the road. So did Stewartville, who eliminated Mahtomedi 8-6. Fergus Falls won over visiting Rocori 7-6. Unbeaten Stewartville, who was ranked fifth in the final ratings, averaged 34 points per game during the regular season. Unranked Fergus Falls lost two of its three games to Class AA schools — Alexandria (27-6) and Anoka (22-6). The other loss was to Crookston (13-0).

Class B

Top ranked Watertown-Mayer (12-0) and fourth ranked Granite Falls (12-0) are in opposite brackets and favored this week to gain berths in Prep Bowl V.

Watertown-Mayer is expected to get its sternest test of the season at undefeated Eski (11-0) who has surprised the experts in reaching the final four. The Eskimos are not ranked in the final Top 10 poll and last week blanked second rated Breckenridge 27-0 in Eski. This week's meeting with Watertown-Mayer is set for Friday night at 7:30 p.m. in Esko.

Always strong Granite Falls will play host to first-time entrant Byron (10-2) on Friday night, 7:30 p.m., in Granite Falls. Granite Falls, who won Prep Bowl III Class B honors in 1984, also claimed a state championship in 1977. The only other champion among the semifinalists is Esko, who won a Class C championship in 1975.

Other quarterfinal results in this class last week found Byron defeating Sibley East (Arlington-Green Isle-Henderson) 19-12 in overtime; Granite Falls outscored previously unbeaten Waterville-Elysian 28-14; and Watertown-Mayer blanked visiting Swanville-Grey Eagle, 14-0.

Class C

Second ranked Minneota (11-1), fifth rated Sherburn-Dunnell (11-1) and seventh ranked Grand Meadow (12-0) were winners in quarterfinal play last week. The other quarterfinal game between two unbeatens — fourth rated Warroad (11-0) and eighth ranked Biwabik (10-0) was postponed because of snow and was played Tuesday.

Semifinal pairings this week will find Sherburn-Dunnell playing at Grand Meadow Friday at 7:30 p.m., Warroad will travel to Minneota.

Minneota shut out top-rated and previously unbeaten Bertha-Hewitt 6-0 in Bertha in one of last week's contests. In the other two, Sherburn-Dunnell whitewashed visiting Medford 20-0, and Grand Meadow impressed with a 34-12 victory over Janesville in Waseca.

None of the remaining four schools have ever played in a state football championship game. In fact, two of them, Grand Meadow and Warroad, are making first ever state playoff appearances.

The favorites — Minneota and Sherburn-Dunnell, both with one loss each, were to Granite Falls, 31-12, and Sherburn-Dunnell lost to Madelia 27-26 in overtime.

Nine-Man

It will be the top four-rated teams in the final poll meeting for the right to play in the Metrodome in Minneapolis on Saturday, November 29.

Argyle was rated second in the final poll and Norman County West sixth heading into Monday's game.

Last week top ranked Silver Lake (12-0), and third ranked Alden-Conger (12-0), and fourth rated Verndale (12-0) all won quarterfinal contests.

Silver Lake defeated Beardsley-Valley in Beardsley 15-8; Alden-Conger downed host Ruthton 12-0; and visiting Verndale won over Tower-Soudan 17-12.

This week's semifinal games are scheduled for Saturday. Silver Lake will trek to Alden for a 1:30 p.m. outing and Argyle will head south for a 2 p.m. kickoff in Verndale. Both games are rated tossups.

North Stars' 20-year All-Star team, chosen by a panel of long-time observers of the team, it was announced this week. Players from seasons ranging from 1967-68 (the club's first year) to the present who were named to the team's honor squad will be introduced prior to Saturday's NHL game against the New York Islanders at Met Center in Bloomington. The 20-year All-Stars include goaltender Cesare Maniago, who played nine years with the team from 1967 through 1976; defenseman Ted Harris, four years from 1970 through 1974; defenseman Craig Hartsburg, seven years from 1979 to the present; left wing J.P. Parise, nine years from 1967 through 1975, and 1978-79; right wing Bill Goldsworth, 10 years from 1967 through 1977; and Broten at center. He's played six years with the North Stars, beginning in 1980. Broten, currently sidelined by an injury, became the first United States-born player to score 100 points in an NHL season last year, when his 76 assists were the most ever recorded by a North Star. He has played in two NHL all-star games.

In Memoriam
In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Palmer Johnson, who departed this life Nov. 17, 1982.

The gates of heaven opened that day when so suddenly you were called away
How we cherish the memories

Card of Thanks
A very sincere thank you to the many friends, relatives and neighbors who helped in any way: whether bringing over food or just being with us in our time of sorrow and loss of our loved one, wife, mother, daughter, sister, daughter-in-law and sister-in-law, Yvonne Marie Altendorf.

Also to the TRF police department and North Star ambulance service for their prompt assistance at the scene and also to the hospital and Dr. Kirby and anyone who assisted him.

A special thank you to Father Bourassa, Father Super and Father Fellon of Oklee, who were always there to comfort and also for the funeral mass which they concelebrated with us. Thanks also to the organist and choir.

Also thanks to Larry Belmont for his assistance in conducting a very beautiful funeral for our loved one. I would also like to thank pastor Erickson for his assistance Friday morning with Jessica while I was at the hospital with Yvonne and to anyone else whom we may have neglected to mention.

Delivery Detour

Erskine — Daniel Ness managed to be present in the delivery room at Riverside hospital in Crookston when his wife, Denise, delivered their second child, but it wasn't easy. Daniel had been deer hunting at his favorite spot near Union lake Saturday when a gust of wind snapped a large poplar tree where he was standing. The tree struck him below his arms, knocking him out. When he regained consciousness, he summoned help by shooting his rifle in a succession of shots, bringing in his brother, Todd, to his aid. The two drove nearly 20 miles, after getting stuck in the fresh snow, to the Fosston clinic, where Dr. Paul Havens performed preliminary treatment and decided to send Ness on to United hospital in Grand Forks by ambulance for a CT scan. When the ambulance reached the outskirts of Crookston, visibility was so hampered with blowing snow that the ambulance took him to Riverview hospital in Crookston instead. He was immediately taken into surgery, which lasted two hours. Denise went into labor at 10 a.m. Sunday morning, with Daniel still recuperating from surgery. When Heidi Marie Ness was born at 2:07 p.m. that day, Daniel was present in the delivery room in a wheelchair. Dr. Jim Hively said he can expect to be hospitalized at least another week, with his torn spleen removed, and a bruised kidney and five broken ribs. He will recuperate at home several more weeks before returning to work at Pete's Auto Body in Erskine. Denise and Heidi will be home in a few days to enjoy her three-month maternity leave from her job as a nurses' aide at Pioneer Memorial care center in Erskine.

Local Man Creates New Board Game . . .

New "Combination" Game Clicks Into Local Market

by David Hill
Times Reporter

"Combination," a new family game on the market this season, is the inspiration of a local man, his wife and two partners. John and Julie LeDuc of Thief River Falls are pleased to see a game they have been playing in their families for many years finally hit the market.

While it hasn't quite hit the market with the force that perhaps a game from a major game manufacturer might, it is on the market. Small starts aren't a bad place to begin. "You can't make any baskets if you don't shoot the ball," said a pleased John LeDuc.

Presently the game is being sold in Minot, ND, where it was manufactured by Midwest Marketing, and locally at Ace Hardware store, Pamida and Coast to Coast. LeDuc said Midwest Marketing is constantly working with other stores also. In North Dakota it can be found at White Drug and Osco stores in Minot.

"No one can anticipate the work put into such a project," LeDuc said. But LeDuc believes the final result, though expensive and a time consuming project, was a very high quality game.

"Combination" pits two to six players against each other in a game that requires mathematical skills. No need to worry, however, because it only tests how fast you can add numbers together. It also isn't important to know that the game is based on the binary numbering system or to even know what that means.

Each player has a safecracker card with a series of numbers with which to win the game, but the player must acquire combination cards that complete the series of numbers on his safecracker card. A player wins combination cards by solving combinations on his way around the board.

A throw of the dice moves a player's token clockwise around the board. At each stop around the board, instructions tell the player to spin one to three dials labeled one's, ten's and hundred's. The player must then solve the combination given by the dials on his playing card and ring the bell before the other players solve the combination. The first person to ring the bell and answer the combination correctly receives a combination card, or other surprises.

The game has been played by LeDuc, his brothers and family for many years, but it was Christmas two years ago when the family came up with the idea to put the game before the public. This Christmas the family will play the professional looking game, which is now copyrighted and has a trademark.

John LeDuc, his brother Chad LeDuc of International Falls and his sister's husband Collin Buchanan of Wyoming, formed C-JAC corporation. They came up with a prototype of the game and presented it to Midwest Marketing of North Dakota who manufactures and markets the game.

John LeDuc, who is an electronic technician for Digi-Key Co. in Thief River Falls, believes the game is a game the whole family can enjoy. "It is intense, exciting, and educational for the educator and parent alike. The game holds lots of suspense to the end. Anyone can win whether they are good at addition or not."

LeDuc said the age level for this game is from 10 years to adult, but it can easily be modified for younger children by a parent.

"COMBINATION," a new board game, created by John and Julie LeDuc of Thief River Falls and other family members, is now being marketed in Thief River Falls by John LeDuc.

TRF Library Gets Funds For Books

Northwest Regional Library system is pleased to announce it recently raised the amount of money necessary to match a grant offered the library system by Minnesota Library Foundation Mardag outreach grant program. The library system raised $1,923.01 through individual solicitation, solicitation of community service clubs, solicitation of area community education programs, book fair proceeds and revenue raised from a book sale.

This money coupled with the $1,500 grant from the Minnesota library foundation will be used to establish an adult high interest-low vocabulary level book collection which will be housed in the Thief River Falls public library, but which will serve the entire Northwest Regional library system. These books will be of value not only to the general library public, but also to those adults in our area who are just learning to read and wish to check out books of interest to them which are at their reading level.

Individual contributions totaled $789; book fair receipts were $72.46; book sale income accounted for $101.55; Roseau community education contributed $100; and organizational contributions totaled $860.00. Organizations contributing to this literacy project were the St. Hilaire Lions, TRF Noon Lions, Golden K (kiwanis) club, Moonlighters Lioness club, and the National Society of Catholic Foresters.

"We are grateful for the generosity of all these individuals and organizations," states Northwest Regional library assistant director Heidi Hoks. "Because of them, the ability to check out a library book and actually read it will be given to many adults who were unable to do so before. They have given a gift that will keep on giving for years to come." Mrs. Hoks also noted that this money will establish a core collection of adult high-low books and that additional contributions are still welcome.

MN Wheat Growers Plan 11th Annual Convention

Minnesota association of wheat growers have announced the program for their 11th annual meeting and convention scheduled for December 1-2, at the Regency Inn and conference center in Moorhead.

According to MAWG president, Gordon Sonstelie of Winger, the two-day meeting will focus on reducing input costs; marketing to make the most from generic certificates; and a panel discussion with participants from major export competitor countries. The MAWG's business session, including the discussion and development of resolutions for the coming year will also be included on the program.

"The first day of the convention will include a cost-of-production workshop titled Surviving the 80s — Restoring Profitability to Production Agriculture," said Sonstelie. "Speakers have been especially selected to address the major components of production costs to describe various ways that producers can lower their costs to maximize their profit per acre."

Program participants in the cost-of-production workshop include William Marshall, president of Pioneer, microbial genetics division; Larry Smith, superintendent of the Northwest Experiment Station at the University of Minnesota in Crookston; Virgil Smail, director of the national association of wheat growers foundation; Michael Boehlje, head of the department of agriculture and applied economics at the University of Minnesota; Joseph Giles, associate professor with the department of soil science at the University of Minnesota; Beverly Durgan, extension agronomist with the University of Minnesota; and Howard Bissonnette, extension plant pathologist with the University of Minnesota.

"The production workshop will review various areas of wheat production management, ranging from finance and fertilization, to chemicals and seed selection," explains Sonstelie. "In addition, the program has been carefully designed to allow time for question-and-answer interchange between the audience and the speakers.

"Tuesday's program will include a marketing seminar entitled 'Making the Most from Those Generic Certificates,'" Sonstelie continued, "as well as a panel discussion, 'Meeting the Competition,' with participants from the EEC, Canada, Australia and Argentina."

"Special evening programs have also been planned," said Sonstelie, "to provide time for fellowship and sharing — to visit with old friends and to meet new ones." The evening programs include a pasta night featuring pasta foods on Monday, along with musical entertainment. On Tuesday evening, the closing banquet will feature guest speaker, Jim Merrill, president of Lutheran Social Services of North Dakota, presenting his "Multiple Honeymoon Plan for Minnesota Wheat Growers," along with musical selections performed by the F-M ambassadors' barbershop chorus.

According to Sonstelie, all Minnesota wheat growers, both members and non-members, are encouraged to attend the two-day meeting. Registration for the convention is only $20 and will be available at the door. In addition, special rates at the Regency Inn at $27 per single and $29 per double, are available for those planning to attend.

Glenmore Recovery Center Names Sarver As Director

Glenmore recovery center of Crookston, an alcohol and drug abuse center, has recently named J. Michael Sarver its new program director.

Sarver retired from the U.S. Air Force, after 20 years, where he worked as a marriage, family and drug abuse counselor at the outpatient mental health clinic at the Grand Forks air force base. His educational background includes a bachelor's degree in psychology and a master's degree in guidance counseling.

Sarver was born and raised in Possum Kingdom, Kentucky. His wife, Mavis, is from Valley City, ND and they have one son, J.C. Sarver, 13.

Sarver began his duties as program director of Glenmore recovery center on October 1, 1986. He also continues to teach college courses at the air base in Grand Forks.

Land O'Lakes And Cenex Announce Joint Venture

Cenex and Land 'Lakes boards of directors have endorsed a proposal for the consolidation of the two cooperatives' agricultural supply operations. Each cooperative would retain its individual marketplace identity and the plan will now be sent to the cooperatives' shareholders for final consideration, with the results of that vote expected to be announced in early December.

The two regional cooperatives' board chairmen stressed that the proposal would enable the two cooperatives to maximize operating strengths and improve production and distribution efficiency.

"This agreement heralds a new spirit of cooperation among cooperatives," said Claire Sandness, chairman of the Land O'Lakes board. "It's an ideal way for farmer-owned organizations to streamline operations and become more efficient."

Cenex board chairman Ed Melby added that, "The provisions of the agreement allow each of the cooperatives to focus their energies in areas where they have developed particular expertise and market strength."

Under the plan, Land O'Lakes will concentrate its ag supply activities in the feed and seed areas — operating its current feed and seed divisions in addition to leasing and managing Cenex's feed and seed assets.

Cenex will specialize in petroleum and energy products — expanding its present base by leasing Land O'Lakes petroleum assets and managing the cooperatives' combined petroleum operations.

Land O'Lakes and Cenex will form a joint venture to manage the two cooperatives' fertilizer and ag chemical divisions.

It's estimated that yearly operating savings of $10 million will result from these actions.

Land O'Lakes, headquartered in Arden Hills, and Cenex, headquartered in Inver Grove Heights, currently operate separate ag service divisions which supply individual farmers and local community-based co-ops with feed, seed, fertilizer, ag chemicals, petroleum products and other agricultural products and services.

Aviation Program At AVTI Gets An Approval From FAA

Dr. Orley Gunderson, director, Thief River Falls Area Vocational Technical Institute, Thief River Falls, Minnesota, announced that the Federal Aviation Administration and the University Aviation Association have approved the AVTI's program in aviation maintenance technology. The aviation maintenance technology program was designed as a two-year associate of applied science degree and has been accredited by the FAA.

In the program, students will attend both Thief River Falls AVTI and Northland community college in Thief River Falls. The new aviation program has been developed integrating a special technician curriculum at Thief River Falls AVTI with basic academic studies at Northland community college. Graduates of the two year aviation maintenance program will then transfer to the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks and complete the last two years of the airway science curriculum on that campus.

Thief River Falls AVTI has long been recognized for its leadership in the science of aviation. Students attend the AVTI from all over the country, and graduates have been placed in both major airline facilities as well as smaller growth companies. In a forest of giant Sequoias one tiny sapling struggles for life. Little trees cannot survive where the sun does not penetrate.

Nor can little souls flourish if big souls do not allow God's light to reach them.

In the replanting of the Faith every generation has a sacred mission to transmit its spiritual heritage to the next. In homes and churches of our community that mission is right now being fulfilled.

Whether you're a youngster or adult, a parent or grandparent, you have your own special part in God's replanting of the Faith. And no one can take your part!

LEAFING THROUGH YOUR LIBRARY

by Deanna Swanson
Branch Librarian

Library magazines can become a habit to read and it can be difficult in deciding which one is worth our time to read. They are really my weakness simply because I can pick up a magazine and find something of interest and the read it in a short period of time. They usually list articles on the cover to catch your eye and there is a table of contents which adds to your curiosity. At the Thief River Falls Library you will find a large variety of magazines from which to choose. We have magazines on our state such as Minnesota Business, Minnesota Horticulturist, Minnesota Hisotry, and Minnesota Sports, just to mention a few. There are other magazines for people who are interested in sports, fashion and beauty, crafts and hobbies, current events, science, government, and agriculture. We also have a few children's magazines, such as Ranger Rick, Young and Alive, and National Geographic World.

I want to mention a few magazines that I believe you would enjoy brousing through: You might be surprised by what you may find! As I glanced at the display of magazines at the Thief River Falls library, I had to look at the Farm Woman Magazine. It is a rather small magazine, but it has so much packed into each monthly issue. We have a writer from our own area, Treasure Omdahl of Warren, who features articles on U.S. News for Farm Women. Treasure informs us on a lot of important information about farm issues and other farm interests. For example, this month, Treasure mentioned Ag Day '87. She gave some fantastic suggestions and ideas on what some other farm women have done in the past years to get areas familiar with farm products and other related products.

U.S. News is one of several current event magazines that is becoming very popular in our library. It covers U.S. news, world report, business, your money, and horizons. It is fun to pick up this magazine and be able to read about recent news which includes political news.

Another magazine I feel is excellent to read is the Parent Magazine. I read this magazine when my children were small and it really had an impact on raising our children. It contains so many high quality articles for parents to read. I just couldn't resist picking up November's Parent Magazine. It contained an article on books suggesting which ones would be excellent for the entire year for all age groups. This was really great to see!

We also have something special for someone who would enjoy large print magazines. The Reader's Digest has become very popular and I think more people should be aware that we have it in our library. We also have it in regular print.

One of our magazines that we have a difficult time keeping on the shelf is the Seventeen magazine. It focuses on the interest of young teenagers. It can be checked out on a one week basis, as can be our other magazines (current copies, however, must remain in the library).

I have noticed this fall there are a lot of students, both high school and college students, using magazines for their classes. We encourage them to make use of the large selection we have. They utilize the Reader's Guide to find the subject matter they are seeking. We have magazines from the past five years which are shelved for the convenience of our patrons. Our policy is to let our patrons check out magazines for one week. Patrons return them after this time, allowing others to also enjoy these magazines. We appreciate the efforts of our patrons in returning these materials. After all, our materials belong to everyone in Pennington County, and consideration for fellow county residents is greatly appreciated.

Each year in November since 1919 a week has been set aside to celebrate National children's book week. During this time special emphasis is placed on promoting the interest of young people in reading good books.

Children's book week is celebrated nationally in a variety of exciting ways at public and school libraries, in the classroom, through book fairs, on television and radio programs and in print.

According to the World Book Encyclopedia, close to eight million pieces of printed materials including more than 60,000 posters are issued annually to promote the celebration.

Another interesting fact from the same source is that in 1919 only 500 new children's books were published while about 55 years later more than 2,330 were published.

The children's book council reports that since the book week observance began it has contributed greatly to the improvement of books for children.

This year children's book week in November 17 to 22. On November 18 the bookmobile branch library will start carrying a copy of "Learning '86" which features an article on "Read Aloud" to treasure for all grades for the benefit of patrons wishing to request any of the selections listed.

Plans also include drawing two title cards at random from the children's book circulation checked out on November 18, 19, 20, 25, 26 and 28. Twelve young patrons who have checked out the book titles drawn will each receive a little 16 page paperback book illustrated in color.

Bookmobile staff will notify the winners by postcard. The lucky patrons will receive their books on the bookmobile two weeks after notification.

Osteoporosis Is Not Prevented By Calcium Increase

Osteoporosis is a disease that makes the bones of older women brittle and susceptible to fractures. Recently, ads for calcium supplements seem to be everywhere, from television to radio and magazines and each new supplement is billed as a way of preventing osteoporosis. However, research shows those ads may be misleading, reports the Minnesota Medical association.

The rush to gobble up calcium stems from a 1984 report by the National Institutes of Health which found increases in calcium may prevent the thinning of bone mass in women due to osteoporosis. The study led to the popular belief that calcium can prevent osteoporosis; that led to skyrocketing sales of calcium suppelments and a horde of products on the market that are calcium enriched such as "Tums," the antiacid medication, "Tab," the diet cola plus a host of gums and mints.

But, researchers at the Mayo clinic in Rochester, Minnesota have recently found there is no evidence that increased calcium, either through pills or through dairy products can stop osteoporosis.

However, research does show more calcium in the diet, in the teens and twenties, could help women withstand the natural onset of osteoporosis even though it will not stop its progress.

What about older women? For women 35 to 45 years of age, physicians recommend eating a healthy diet with a daily intake of 1,000 milligrams of calcium a day. This can be done by eating foods rich in calcium, unless a person has an allergy to milk.

Physicians say increasing your calcium intake by popping calcium pills could do more harm than good. High calcium doses, as a result of pills, increase the possibility of painful kidney stones, constipation and can interfere with the body's natural absorption of medications.

Studies show osteoporosis can be held at bay by increasing bone mass. Physicians recommend that all women, young and old, should increase their physical activity by exercising. Weight bearing activities such as running or walking are best.

Physicians also suggest eliminating smoking and moderating alcohol, coffee and salt consumption. Those substances can interfere with the body's calcium absorption process.

Remember, eating large doses of calcium supplements will not cure osteoporosis, but eating a healthy diet that includes dairy products and exercising regularly can help ease the eventual onslaught of the "brittle bone disease."

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

How The Founders Viewed Guns

Don Kates, a criminologist, civil rights lawyer and former law professor residing in San Francisco, CA, wrote the following comments for "The New Federalist Papers", published by Public Research, Syndicated:

Earlier this month, gas station owner Donald Bennett was found innocent of violating a handgun ban in Oak Park, Illinois. Bennett had been put on trial for possessing a handgun and firing it at two armed robbers. The local prosecutor's office claimed that this was illegal since Oak Park bans both the ownership and discharge of handguns within its limits.

Bennett's recent trial is just the latest installment in a running battle over the legitimacy of gun control in this country. At the heart of this battle is a controversy over the meaning of the U.S. Constitution — in particular, over the meaning of the Second Amendment, which declares that "A well-regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms shall not be infringed." Opponents of gun control claim that the Amendment guarantees each person the right to own firearms. Proponents of gun control counterclaim that it does nothing of the sort; it merely protects a state's right to arm its own militia.

These proponents of gun control tend to be liberals. On other issues, they are the people out fighting for the rights of the poor and the disadvantaged. Because of this, I sympathize with them. In the 1960s, I did civil rights work in the South; I worked for William Kunstler (co-defense lawyer for the Chicago Seven); I drafted civil rights legislation for the House Judiciary Committee. The first ten years of my legal career were spent with the War on Poverty.

All this might suggest that I too support the state's rights view of the Second Amendment; but I don't. This view simply cannot survive the contrary evidence. It is a product of the twentieth century; it was totally unknown to the Founding Fathers or legal commentators for a century after their time. What the Founders meant by the Amendment is clear from the written interpretation before them when the Bill of Rights was enacted in 1789. It confirmed "the people of the United States who are peaceable citizens" in the right to keep "their own arms," "their private arms."

This is also made clear by the Second Amendment's actual wording. Its term "militia" refers to the system prevailing from the early 1600s in the colonies (where there was no army) under which every household had to have a gun. This obligation the Amendment incorporated as a "right of the people to keep and bear arms," following Sir William Blackstone, who classified the right to arms as one of the "absolute rights of individuals" in English common law. Note that the Second Amendment specifically calls this a right "of the people," the phrase used to describe individual rights throughout the Bill of Rights. For the Second Amendment to be a right "of the states" would mean that when James Madison drafted the First Amendment he used "right of the people" to mean right of the people, but 16 words later in the Second Amendment he used it to mean right of the states — and then 46 words later in the Fourth Amendment he switched meanings again so that the phrase meant right of the people once more. This is impossible.

However uncomfortable it may make us, the fact is that, whatever their disagreements on other things, the Founding Fathers were all as ardently in favor of guns as the most fanatic gun lobbyist. "One loves to possess arms," wrote Thomas Jefferson, the greatest intellectual of his day, to fellow firearms enthusiast George Washington. Washington believed that "a free people ought to be armed." Likewise Patrick Henry (then an Anti-Federalist) thought that "the great object" was "that every man be armed," that "everyone who is able may have a gun."

Most important for present purposes is James Madison, author of the Bill of Rights. He denounced kings and tyrants for being "afraid to trust the people with arms" and exulted in "the advantage of being armed, which the Americans possess over the people of almost every other nation . . ."

Numerous Founders referred to the right to arms as a basic "human right" and in the same breath with other basic freedoms such as freedom of religion and freedom of speech. They thought not on the violent uses of guns (except in the last extremity), but on two non-violent themes: that the people's possession of arms would deter criminals and tyrants (Thomas Paine: "Arms like laws discourage and keep the invader and plunderer in awe and preserve order in the world"); and that the independent ability to defend one's family is vital to the character of a free citizen (Jefferson: to possess arms "gives boldness, enterprise and independence to the mind").

None of this, of course, precludes banning handguns — preferably all guns — to criminals (the right protects only the "peaceable"), or to children and the mentally unsound (both ineligible for militia service). Nor does it forbid the exclusion from civilian use of mortars, cannon or other weapons of mass destruction (the common law right excluded weapons that were so dangerous that use even in self-defense threatened one's neighbors). Indeed, if we adopt the Founders' view, a broad range of gun control proposals are constitutional so long as the responsible adult's right to a handgun for family defense is fully preserved — just as permits and other restrictions on public meetings and speeches are legal so long as there is no unreasonable delay or interference with the basic right of free expression.

But this also means that not only the law but its administration must be fair and reasonable. The practice whereby only one permit to carry a gun was issued in the entire city of San Francisco (to Mayor Feinstein) is outrageous. So is the fact that it takes New York City six months to process an ordinary citizen's application for a handgun for home defense. No less odious is the double standard that makes gun-carry permits simply unavailable to ordinary citizens in New York while being available to such celebrities as the publisher of the New York Times, various Rockefellers, and William Buckley. These practices violate not just the Second Amendment but the constitutional guarantees of equal protection and due process of the law as well.

Promising Start

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

Recent kick-off of the Reinvest in Minnesota program bodes well for farmers, business that depend on tourism dollars and Minnesotans who enjoy watching the state's diverse wildlife.

Farmers can stop attempting to farm land that's never really been fit for that purpose. Both hunters and those who hever shoot — but who enjoy watching Minnesota's wild creatures — can appreciate what idling 20,000 agricultural acres to create new wildlife habitat will mean. And that's just in the first year of the program.

The program appears to serve equally well the goals of reducing agricultural production at a time when surpluses are piled high and supporting greater numbers of deer, game birds and other wildlife.

While program participants agree to quit farming the land covered by RIM leases, they retain the right to open their land to hunters or restrict hunting as they see fit.

The Legislature allocated $9.4 million for this year's RIM program. State Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Nichols said Tuesday in Bemidji he hopes for a $20 million per year RIM allocation from the Legislature for the next 10 years.

The Legislature should review the success of the program on a regular basis before allocating funds. But RIM appears to be off to a promising start.

Turning Back The Times

1916 - 70 YEARS AGO

— The outcome of the presidential race between Wilson and Hughes hinged, as the Times went to press, on the vote in California and Minnesota. Pennington county supported Wilson by a small margin. — With an ample supply of water available to supply power, the Hanson and Barzen flour mill is running night and day at this time. — The Auditorium was packed for an election night party sponsored by the Times. Returns were received by telegraph.

1926 - 60 YEARS AGO

— The Fairmont Daily Sentinel recently revealed that "Paunee Bill," the blind necktie salesman, was a fake. Sections of the country, including Thief River Falls, were flooded with mail bags full of envelopes containing three neckties and a piteous letter asking for "donations to a blind man who was trying to make an honest living by selling neckties to sympathetic men." Paunee Bill was exposed to be a St. Louis, MO, knitting mill, backed with large capital and a good financial rating. — Dedication of Trinity church has been postponed again, as contractors have been unable to finish the new building. The final gatherings in the old building will consist of English services one Sunday, and Norwegian services on the final Sunday. — Severn Brandon, manager of the Winton-Nichols lumber yard of Thief River Falls, is hospitalized in the Swedenburg hospital suffering from a fractured right leg as a result of a gunshot wound received at the hands of Emery Smith, who gives his address as Fargo, ND. Smith is rumored to be a rum runner who has operated throughout the territory and is sought by federal officers.

1936 - 50 YEARS AGO

— President F.D. Roosevelt was reelected for a second term, carrying all states but Maine and Vermont. — Elmer A. Benson defeated Martin A. Nelson in the governorship election. — J.P. Curtis, since 1900 proprietor of a drug store in Thief River Falls, announced that he is closing his store and will retire. — Police Chief A.B. Stenberg reported no acts of vandalism on Halloween night. — The local Gambles store will occupy the former Lyceum Theatre building on LaBree avenue.

1946 - 40 YEARS AGO

— A total of $20,560 was realized from the sale of 48 beef cattle at a 4-H livestock auction. — Donald Knutson of the Smiley 4-H club sold his 800-pound Angus baby beef to Jung's Bakery for $990. — The Thief River Falls OPA office, after operating since 1942, was closed. — Oscar A. Nelson was elected register of deeds, defeating Fred Lorentson, incumbent, by a margin of 15 votes. — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson of Oklee celebrated their golden wedding day.

1956 - 30 YEARS AGO

— President Eisenhower was swept into office in his bid for second term, carrying 41 states. — Betty Rude of Smiley 4-H club will receive a $25 U.S. savings bond from the Russell-Miller Milling company of Minneapolis.

1966 - 20 YEARS AGO

— Harold LeVander upset many polls and predictions with a fairly decisive gubernatorial victory over incumbent Karl Rolvaag in Tuesday's election. Congressman Odin Langen, Senator Donald Sinclair and Representative Andrew Skaar were local election winners. — Scott Floyd Hesse, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hesse of rural Thief River Falls, was killed when struck by a bullet from a high power rifle while deer hunting. — New owners of Len's Tire Service in Thief River Falls are Jack Goulet and James Bjorgaard.

1976 - 10 YEARS AGO

— Northland community college's new forensic team will participate in its first speech contest Friday and Saturday at South Dakota state university. Members participating are Steve Easton, Tim Lutz and Sheila Vettleson. Other members of the team are Jodenn Pearson, Gary Heaton and Christine Lindgren. — Elaine Charlson, Lincoln high school senior, was chosen to participate in the 1977 Washington Workshop Congressional seminar at Washington, D.C. — Statistics on snowmobile ownership, use and regulations from Arctic Enterprises of Thief River Falls was one of the things placed in a Minnesota time capsule that will be opened as part of the nation's Tri-centennial celebration July 4, 2076. — A national magazine featured an article on the new, non-shattering type of wild rice that is being grown on more than 13,000 acres of man-made paddies in Minnesota. The new type of rice can be harvested with combines, unlike the old variety that had to be harvested by hand.

Tidbits From The Times

Excerpts of the November 12, 1936 Times, rewritten by Sharon LaCoursiere.

— The Times was filled with pictures of 1937 automobiles in anticipation of the big auto show to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. A new 1937 model Nash LaFayette would cost you $595, as would a new Terraplane; a Dodge, $640; Oldsmobile or Hudson, $695; and Chryslers were selling for $715.

— Interesting facts about 1936 autos were published in the Times. Automobiles ranked first among this country's exports of manufactured products in 1935, with motor vehicles sold to practically all countries, including Tibet. Only 591 vehicles were imported into this country in 1935. Ninety-five per cent of all new cars sold for less than $750 wholesale. Four and one-half million automobiles were produced in the United States in 1936. One out of every seven gainfully employed persons in the country is employed in the manufacture, sale or service of automobiles.

— Another interesting tidbit tucked away in today's Times relates that three small local boys, each about 10 years of age, unearthed a gruesome plaything last Thursday in the form of a man's amputated left hand, which they later told Police Chief A.B. Stenberg they had found enclosed in a glass jar near a local hospital. According to the boys' story, they startled more than one householder by depositing the hand on doorsteps and then ringing doorbells to summon homeowners. They also placed the hand temporarily inside of a parked car. Local police turned the grisly find over to Coroner A.M. Smith after being told that local hospitals knew nothing of such an amputation being performed here recently. (Quite a post-Halloween tale, don't you think?)

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

How The Founders Viewed Guns

Don Kates, a criminologist, civil rights lawyer and former law professor residing in San Francisco, CA, wrote the following comments for "The New Federalist Papers", published by Public Research, Syndicated:

Earlier this month, gas station owner Donald Bennett was found innocent of violating a handgun ban in Oak Park, Illinois. Bennett had been put on trial for possessing a handgun and firing it at two armed robbers. The local prosecutor's office claimed that this was illegal since Oak Park bans both the ownership and discharge of handguns within its limits.

Bennett's recent trial is just the latest installment in a running battle over the legitimacy of gun control in this country. At the heart of this battle is a controversy over the meaning of the U.S. Constitution — in particular, over the meaning of the Second Amendment, which declares that "A well-regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms shall not be infringed." Opponents of gun control claim that the Amendment guarantees each person the right to own firearms. Proponents of gun control counterclaim that it does nothing of the sort; it merely protects a state's right to arm its own militia.

These proponents of gun control tend to be liberals. On other issues, they are the people out fighting for the rights of the poor and the disadvantaged. Because of this, I sympathize with them. In the 1960s, I did civil rights work in the South; I worked for William Kunstler (co-defense lawyer for the Chicago Seven); I drafted civil rights legislation for the House Judiciary Committee. The first ten years of my legal career were spent with the War on Poverty.

All this might suggest that I too support the state's rights view of the Second Amendment; but I don't. This view simply cannot survive the contrary evidence. It is a product of the twentieth century; it was totally unknown to the Founding Fathers or legal commentators for a century after their time. What the Founders meant by the Amendment is clear from the written interpretation before them when the Bill of Rights was enacted in 1789. It confirmed "the people of the United States who are peaceable citizens" in the right to keep "their own arms," "their private arms."

This is also made clear by the Second Amendment's actual wording. Its term "militia" refers to the system prevailing from the early 1600s in the colonies (where there was no army) under which every household had to have a gun. This obligation the Amendment incorporated as a "right of the people to keep and bear arms," following Sir William Blackstone, who classified the right to arms as one of the "absolute rights of individuals" in English common law. Note that the Second Amendment specifically calls this a right "of the people," the phrase used to describe individual rights throughout the Bill of Rights. For the Second Amendment to be a right "of the states" would mean that when James Madison drafted the First Amendment he used "right of the people" to mean right of the people, but 16 words later in the Second Amendment he used it to mean right of the states — and then 46 words later in the Fourth Amendment he switched meanings again so that the phrase meant right of the people once more. This is impossible.

However uncomfortable it may make us, the fact is that, whatever their disagreements on other things, the Founding Fathers were all as ardently in favor of guns as the most fanatic gun lobbyist. "One loves to possess arms," wrote Thomas Jefferson, the greatest intellectual of his day, to fellow firearms enthusiast George Washington. Washington believed that "a free people ought to be armed." Likewise Patrick Henry (then an Anti-Federalist) thought that "the great object" was "that every man be armed," that "everyone who is able may have a gun."

Most important for present purposes is James Madison, author of the Bill of Rights. He denounced kings and tyrants for being "afraid to trust the people with arms" and exulted in "the advantage of being armed, which the Americans possess over the people of almost every other nation . . ."

Numerous Founders referred to the right to arms as a basic "human right" and in the same breath with other basic freedoms such as freedom of religion and freedom of speech. They thought not on the violent uses of guns (except in the last extremity), but on two non-violent themes: that the people's possession of arms would deter criminals and tyrants (Thomas Paine: "Arms like laws discourage and keep the invader and plunderer in awe and preserve order in the world"); and that the independent ability to defend one's family is vital to the character of a free citizen (Jefferson: to possess arms "gives boldness, enterprise and independence to the mind").

None of this, of course, precludes banning handguns — preferably all guns — to criminals (the right protects only the "peaceable"), or to children and the mentally unsound (both ineligible for militia service). Nor does it forbid the exclusion from civilian use of mortars, cannon or other weapons of mass destruction (the common law right excluded weapons that were so dangerous that use even in self-defense threatened one's neighbors). Indeed, if we adopt the Founders' view, a broad range of gun control proposals are constitutional so long as the responsible adult's right to a handgun for family defense is fully preserved — just as permits and other restrictions on public meetings and speeches are legal so long as there is no unreasonable delay or interference with the basic right of free expression.

But this also means that not only the law but its administration must be fair and reasonable. The practice whereby only one permit to carry a gun was issued in the entire city of San Francisco (to Mayor Feinstein) is outrageous. So is the fact that it takes New York City six months to process an ordinary citizen's application for a handgun for home defense. No less odious is the double standard that makes gun-carry permits simply unavailable to ordinary citizens in New York while being available to such celebrities as the publisher of the New York Times, various Rockefellers, and William Buckley. These practices violate not just the Second Amendment but the constitutional guarantees of equal protection and due process of the law as well.

Promising Start

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

Recent kick-off of the Reinvest in Minnesota program bodes well for farmers, business that depend on tourism dollars and Minnesotans who enjoy watching the state's diverse wildlife.

Farmers can stop attempting to farm land that's never really been fit for that purpose. Both hunters and those who never shoot — but who enjoy watching Minnesota's wild creatures — can appreciate what idling 20,000 agricultural acres to create new wildlife habitat will mean. And that's just in the first year of the program.

The program appears to serve equally well the goals of reducing agricultural production at a time when surpluses are piled high and supporting greater numbers of deer, game birds and other wildlife.

While program participants agree to quit farming the land covered by RIM leases, they retain the right to open their land to hunters or restrict hunting as they see fit.

The Legislature allocated $9.4 million for this year's RIM program. State Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Nichols said Tuesday in Bemidji he hopes for a $20 million per year RIM allocation from the Legislature for the next 10 years.

The Legislature should review the success of the program on a regular basis before allocating funds. But RIM appears to be off to a promising start.

Turning Back The Times

1916 - 70 YEARS AGO

— The outcome of the presidential race between Wilson and Hughes hinged, as the Times went to press, on the vote in California and Minnesota. Pennington county supported Wilson by a small margin. — With an ample supply of water available to supply power, the Hanson and Barzen flour mill is running night and day at this time. — The Auditorium was packed for an election night party sponsored by the Times. Returns were received by telegraph.

1926 - 60 YEARS AGO

— The Fairmont Daily Sentinel recently revealed that "Paunce Bill," the blind necktie salesman, was a fake. Sections of the country, including Thief River Falls, were flooded with mail bags full of envelopes containing three neckties and a piteous letter asking for "donations to a blind man who was trying to make an honest living by selling neckties to sympathetic men." Paunee Bill was exposed to be a St. Louis, MO, knitting mill, backed with large capital and a good financial rating. — Dedication of Trinity church has been postponed again, as contractors have been unable to finish the new building. The final gatherings in the old building will consist of English services one Sunday, and Norwegian services on the final Sunday. — Severn Brandon, manager of the Winton-Nichols lumber yard of Thief River Falls, is hospitalized in the Swedenburg hospital suffering from a fractured right leg as a result of a gunshot wound received at the hands of Emery Smith, who gives his address as Fargo, ND. Smith is rumored to be a rum runner who has operated throughout the territory and is sought by federal officers.

1936 - 50 YEARS AGO

— President F.D. Roosevelt was reelected for a second term, carrying all states but Maine and Vermont. — Elmer A. Benson defeated Martin A. Nelson in the governorship election. — J.P. Curtis, since 1900 proprietor of a drug store in Thief River Falls, announced that he is closing his store and will retire. — Police Chief A.B. Stenberg reported no acts of vandalism on Halloween night. — The local Gambles store will occupy the former Lyceum Theatre building on LaBree avenue.

1946 - 40 YEARS AGO

— A total of $20,560 was realized from the sale of 48 beef cattle at a 4-H livestock auction. — Donald Knutson of the Smiley 4-H club sold his 800-pound Angus baby beef to Jung's Bakery for $990. — The Thief River Falls OPA office, after operating since 1942, was closed. — Oscar A. Nelson was elected register of deeds, defeating Fred Lorentson, incumbent, by a margin of 15 votes. — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson of Oklee celebrated their golden wedding day.

1956 - 30 YEARS AGO

— President Eisenhower was swept into office in his bid for second term, carrying 41 states. — Betty Rude of Smiley 4-H club will receive a $25 U.S. savings bond from the Russell-Miller Milling company of Minneapolis.

1966 - 20 YEARS AGO

— Harold LeVander upset many polls and predictions with a fairly decisive gubernatorial victory over incumbent Karl Rolvaag in Tuesday's election. Congressman Odin Langen, Senator Donald Sinclair and Representative Andrew Skaar were local election winners. — Scott Floyd Hesse, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hesse of rural Thief River Falls, was killed when struck by a bullet from a high power rifle while deer hunting. — New owners of Len's Tire Service in Thief River Falls are Jack Goulet and James Bjorgaard.

1976 - 10 YEARS AGO

— Northland community college's new forensic team will participate in its first speech contest Friday and Saturday at South Dakota state university. Members participating are Steve Easton, Tim Lutz and Sheila Vettleson. Other members of the team are Jodenn Pearson, Gary Heaton and Christine Lindgren. — Elaine Charlson, Lincoln high school senior, was chosen to participate in the 1977 Washington Workshop Congressional seminar at Washington, D.C. — Statistics on snowmobile ownership, use and regulations from Arctic Enterprises of Thief River Falls was one of the things placed in a Minnesota time capsule that will be opened as part of the nation's Tricentennial celebration July 4, 2076. — A national magazine featured an article on the new, non-shattering type of wild rice that is being grown on more than 13,000 acres of man-made paddies in Minnesota. The new type of rice can be harvested with combines, unlike the old variety that had to be harvested by hand.

Tidbits From The Times

Excerpts of the November 12, 1936, Times, rewritten by Sharon LaCoursiere.

— The Times was filled with pictures of 1937 automobiles in anticipation of the big auto show to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. A new 1937 model Nash LaFayette would cost you $595, as would a new Terraplane; a Dodge, $640; Oldsmobile or Hudson, $695; and Chryslers were selling for $715.

— Interesting facts about 1936 autos were published in the Times. Automobiles ranked first among this country's exports of manufactured products in 1935, with motor vehicles sold to practically all countries, including Tibet. Only 591 vehicles were imported into this country in 1935. Ninety-five per cent of all new cars sold for less than $750 wholesale. Four and one-half million automobiles were produced in the United States in 1936. One out of every seven gainfully employed persons in the country is employed in the manu*facture, sale or service* of automobiles.

— Another interesting tidbit tucked away in today's Times relates that three small local boys, each about 10 years of age, unearthed a gruesome plaything last Thursday in the form of a man's amputated left hand, which they later told Police Chief A.B. Stenberg they had found enclosed in a glass jar near a local hospital. According to the boys' story, they startled more than one householder by depositing the hand on doorsteps and then ringing doorbells to summon homeowners. They also placed the hand temporarily inside of a parked car. Local police turned the grisly find over to Coroner A.M. Smith after being told that local hospitals knew nothing of such an amputation being performed here recently. (Quite a post-Halloween tale, don't you think?)

Decorating Changes And Furnishings Can Bring Life To Home

When is the last time you stopped back and took a really critical look at the furniture in your home? Like most of us, you probably take your home for granted until company comes — and then, suddenly, its flaws become painfully apparent. Like the faded, worn sofa that should have been replaced years ago, the coffee table that has a puppy-chewed leg and a water mark in the corner and the family room that's a hodgepodge of styles — from Early American to early childhood development.

If the home of your dreams has never materialized, perhaps it's time to think about what it would take to make your home really special — and finally to do something about it. A few decorating changes may be all that's necessary to make your home a real refuge for your family and a place you want to show off to others. Often, making a dramatic change is as simple as replacing a single piece or adding few lively accents.

A Long-Term Investment

Getting started begins with an evaluation of your budget, and a re-evaluation of your priorities. Surprisingly, Americans put aside a very small amount of their income for furniture, despite the fact that they spend over half of their time at home. When you compare the expense with the enjoyment, furniture is one of the best values your money can buy. Think about what it's worth to you to have a given room or the whole house the way you want; plan your budget for each project and then check with local dealers for items that fit your plan in the price range you've chosen.

Start With An Inventory

A good way to start the planning process is with a critical inventory of the furniture in each room of your home. Pretend you're a stranger entering the house for the first time. Armed with paper and pen, make a room-by-room tour, noting every piece of furniture in each one. Then, decide how each piece fits the overall look you want to achieve. Be as realistic and ruthless as your budget and emotions can afford. Remember, redecorating should be a cleansing experience, so try not to get bogged down by the sentimental value of furniture that has outgrown its beauty and usefulness.

The objects that remain after your fearless evaluation can serve as building blocks for your new room. The next step is to think about what you want the room to express. Do you want to create a totally different mood, and if so, what should it be? What new additions would help you create the look and feel you want? How can your existing furniture be integrated into the new setting?

Develop A Practical Plan

To be successful, a decorating plan must take into account your family's lifestyle, the anticipated uses of the furniture and the architecture of the rooms themselves. As you go through each room, list the activities that take place there. Are they havens for children and pets, or strictly off limits except for entertaining? Be realistic about how practical your furniture must be, and choose a style that best suits the uses you plan for it.

Consider also the style of your house and the shape and size of each room to be decorated. Does the room have a fireplace or window view which could serve as a decorating focal point? Does it get the morning or afternoon sun, or little light at all? Remember, lighting is critical in your selection of your color scheme. Think about the traffic patterns, the color of the walls, the height of the ceilings and the type of floor with which you're dealing. All of these factors combine to create the background against which you must plan your furniture settings.

Good News About Furniture

If you haven't shopped for furniture in a few years, you may be pleasantly surprised at what you find. Never before has there been such an abundance of beautiful, well-made furniture in such a wide range of styles and prices. New approaches to wood, new glues, new veneering processes, new finishes and new synthetic materials have all come together to produce a stunning variety of furniture for all uses, in all price ranges. Furniture-making in America today remains a time-honored craft, and a piece need not be the most expensive to give a quality look and provide excellent value for your money.

Before you set out, list in hand, you'll want to find the best dealer (or dealers) to serve your needs. Are you looking for interior design consultations? Free delivery? Or the widest possible array of styles and prices? The kinds of services offered — as well as the furniture itself — will vary from store to store. Get references from your friends and call ahead to determine the policies of specific retailers. If you don't feel comfortable dealing with the first dealer you visit, go to others until you find one who earns your confidence.

When you can't find the exact items you have in mind on display, remember that you still have a vast selection open to you through manufacturers' catalogs which can be viewed at your furniture retailer. Special ordering through your dealer allows you to individualize your furniture purchases by choosing from a wide range of available sizes, finishes, fabric types, colors and patterns.

Enjoy Yourself

Remember, it's important to enjoy your decorating project. Above all, don't allow the mechanics of your project to overshadow the enjoyment it can bring. Redecorating and shopping for furniture should be fun and exciting, as well as a learning experience. Do your homework ahead of time, take your lists with you and shop with confidence. You'll emerge with a whole new awareness of the design world and the satisfaction of a beautiful home.

Clogged Chimneys May Be Cause Of Health Problems

Homeowners should have their gas heating system checked for possible carbon monoxide problems, government safety experts have warned.

According to the United States consumer product safety commission, consumers should arrange for a qualified heating contractor to inspect the furnace, chimney and flue pipe for problems. While chimneys are seldom checked during routine furnace servicing, CPSC said it is extremely important to have the chimney inspected for blockages, such as mortar loosening from chimney walls and birds' nests to prevent a buildup of carbon monoxide fumes in the house. Chimeny sweeps are equipped to provide the service, if needed.

The government agency said people exposed to carbon monoxide fumes often show symptoms likened to having the flue, including dizziness, fatigue, headaches, irregular breathing and nausea; cardiac patients may additionally experience angine symptoms. Exposure to continued high doses of carbon monoxide can be fatal. If flue-like symptoms persist, homeowners should consider having their heating system checked.

Apart from routine furnace inspection, CPSC said home heating systems converted from oil to gas can also pose carbon mohoxide problems. After the conversion, soot on chimney walls tends to loosen and fall to the base of the flue. If enough soot falls, it could block the exhaust from the gas furnace, thereby causing a buildup of carbon monoxide fumes in the house.

CPSC said homeowners who have converted from oil to gas should have the system checked now. If there is any accumulation of soot at the base of the flue, the chimney should be cleaned immediately. Annual checks should be made at the start of the heating season each fall until no more soot is found in the chimney. If you are converting from oil to gas, have the chimney inspected when the new furnace is installed, then routinely each fall.

ARC Advises How To Act When With Disabled Person

What should you do when you meet a person with mental retardation or another disability?

According to the Association for Retarded Citizens (ARC) Minnesota, the most important thing is to see the other person as an individual, more like you than different from you.

Some specific suggestions are:

(1) Be yourself.

(2) Talk about the same things you would with anyone else. If the person does not appear to understand, choose different words.

(3) Listen carefully.

(4) Wait for a response to your comments or questions.

(5) Ask if the person wants help before giving it.

(6) Treat adults like adults, not like children.

(7) Speak directly to the person, rather than to a non-handicapped person who may be accompanying him or her.

For further information or a speaker on mental retardation, contact your local ARC or the ARC Minnesota, 3225 Lyndale Avenue South, Minneapolis, MN 55408, telephone 1-800-582-5256 toll free in Minnesota.

Parent-Teacher Conferences Top Education Week

Parent-teacher conferences are a major part of the American Education week observance in Thief River Falls with classes being dismissed for Thursday and Friday of this week to provide for conferences and faculty inservice sessions.

At Mark Twain and Knox elementary schools, parent committees have arranged a book fair which will take place throughout the week beginning today. Individual conferences between parents and teachers have been scheduled in advance and will be conducted throughout Thursday and Friday.

At Washington and Northrop elementary schools there will be scheduled conferences between teachers and parents throughout the day on Thursday and Friday. Coffee will be available at all the elementary schools during the conference.

At Franklin middle school there will be open conference scheduling with three days of conference hours being offered. Parents may meet with teachers at any time Thursday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., Friday from 8 a.m. to noon and Tuesday, November 25, from 6 to 10 p.m.

"We encourage all parents to attend," stated Dr. Milton Hoff, middle school principal. "Results of Iowa Basic tests will be available in the library and parents can pick up their child's scores there." Dr. Hoff also noted that if any parent needs to schedule a specific time to meet with a particular teacher that arrangements can be made by calling the middle school office.

At Lincoln high school scheduled conferences are also available by calling 681-2700, extension 241, but previous experience has shown that few conferences are held at the high school level. As a result, several sessions for faculty development have also been scheduled Thursday and Friday.

Thursday morning principal Terry Soine will review preparation for the North Central association's validation visit November 24 and 25 and discuss action unver the accreditation program for the coming year. Also discussed will be the School District 564 discipline policy with faculty reaction and ideas to be relayed to the school district's superintendent and board of education.

For faculty development Dr. Eldon Morey, clinical psychologist from Fergus Falls, will be the group leader at sessions on Thursday and Dick Mesenberg, director of the "Effective Schools" program of the Minnesota department of education, will conduct sessions from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Friday.

Our Saviour's Christian academy will have scheduled conferences on Thursday for parents of the 60 students attending classes there. No classes or conferences are scheduled for Friday.

Seventh-day Adventist school, where enrollment numbers 15 students in grades 2-8, will maintain its regular class schedule on Thursday and Friday. Principal Duane Madden said that parent-teacher conferences are scheduled after school hours.

St. Bernard's parochial school has scheduled conference times for parents of the 157 students in grades one through six for Thursday. A book fair will be conducted on Wednesday and Thursday and Friday will be devoted to work on a self-study of the religion program directed toward evaluation and hoped-for accreditation by the Minnesota Non-Public Schools Accrediting association, according to principal Charles Walrath.

Goodridge Events Set Thursday For Education Week

"School and Community United for Excellence" is the theme for American Education Week and Goodridge school and community will carry out the theme with special events this week. Johnny Gallagher and Willie Vettleson won the poster contest for students to make posters promoting the event.

Thursday is the main day of the observance with activities during the day and evening. Elementary students will have the opportunity during the school day to attend mini-sessions on bike safety, raising rabbits, snowmobile care and safety, veterinary medicine, musical instruments, cake decorating, Kids on the Block, knitting, karate and taxidermy.

In the evening the entire community is invited to the school for a variety of mini-sessions, quilt and other educational displays from the public, students and faculty, an art show and a light supper. Children may watch a movie to be shown while parents attend the sessions.

Mini-sessions are offered from 7 to 8:55 p.m. and the supper will be served from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Each of the mini-sessions runs for 25 minutes and titles of classes offered include "Organizing Brownie Girl Scouts in Goodridge," "Mounting Deer Horns," "Resumes, Application and Job Interviewing," Folk Art Painting," "Title I," "Understanding Families and Parenting," "Tin Punching," "Slides of Germany," "Starting Your Own Home Library," "New Trends and Tips for Good Grooming," and "Word Processing on the Apple Computer."

Coin Club's 20th Show And Sale Saturday, Sunday

Thief River Falls coin club's free international coin, antique, stamp and hobby show will have its 20th annual run Saturday and Sunday at the Best Western inn of Thief River Falls. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Patrick Klemisch, chairman of the coin show, noted that 20 dealers will be on hand to buy and sell coins, currency, antiques, stamps and related items, including Keith Kwallek of Chetek, WI, who specializes in Canadian coins and currency. Dealers are from Minnesota, North Dakota and Wisconsin.

Proceeds from the coin show are used by the club to provide scholarships for students at Northland community college and the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute. Last year $400 was raised by the 35-member club and over the years more than $6,500 has been donated for scholarships at the local schools.

Klemisch emphasized that admission to the show is free.

Compact Car And Bull Moose Collide Near Middle River

A compact car became even more compact Saturday evening north of Middle River when it collided with a bull moose.

Marshall county sheriff's office reported that Mark Thuftedal, Blaine, MN, was on his way back from hunting north of Middle River when the 1985 Nissan station wagon he was driving collided with a bull moose. Thuftedal was taken to the Warren hospital where he was treated for cuts and abrasions from flying glass.

The car was estimated as a total loss and the moose was killed.

DAC Continues To Serve Its Clients

Despite the suspension of its director and lawsuits filed by three of its employees against the board of directors, Falls Day Activity center in Thief River Falls continues to operate on a daily basis, according to acting director Sherrie Thompson. All of the approximately 30 mentally handicapped clients continue to attend the center on a regular basis.

Center operations have been hampered by a decision by the Pennington county board of commissioners to withhold funds to the center Regular employees were notified by the board that the withholding of funds necessitated reduction in wages of 23 per cent and extension of pay periods from twice a month to once a month, and required employees to sign time cards and be paid on an hourly basis.

LeRoy Larson, chairman of the DAC board, said that the county's portion of center operation ranges from $3,000 to $4,000 per month. He said an interim program coordinator had been named to fill in for Jim Rooker, former program director who was first suspended and later fired by the board.

Rooker and two other center employees, Doreen Sigerud and Lynae Johnson, have filed a complaint against the DAC board alleging that actions against them are in retaliation for their reporting of abuse to clients by the center's director, Evan Armstrong. Armstrong has been barred from the center during time clients are there and stripped of administrative authority as a result of a directive from the Minnesota department of human services. The DAC board has responded in objection to the directive.

Rooker, Sigerud and Johnson all filed affidavits alleging abuse of clients by director Armstrong in an action which led to his suspension following state and local investigations. Their suit against the board asks for damages equal to their reduction in salary, punitive damages of $1,000 each (as prescribed by state law), payment of attorney's fees, an order restraining the board "from taking further retaliatory action against the plaintiffs," reinstatement of Rooker to the program director position and "such other and further relief as to the court may seem just and equitable." Attorney for the plaintiffs is John Novacek of Thief River Falls.

Larry McDowell, attorney for the DAC board, said that a response to the suit brought by employees will be filed within the 20-day period required and probably within this week. The center's board is scheduled to meet Tuesday morning and the county board of commissioners has requested a meeting with the DAC board Tuesday at 7

WALL TO WALL PEOPLE crowded the annual holiday fair conducted Saturday at the Thief River Falls city auditorium. Craft work done by a number of exhibitors was on display for sale and the crowd seemed eager to view the work and make purchases for personal use or holiday gift giving.

OTH-B Opposition Now Forms In Organization

"Concerned Citizens for Protection of Rural Environment" is the title taken by an organization formed recently to oppose siting of the proposed Over the Horizon-Backscatter (OTH-B) radar receiver site by the air force in this area. Don Drydal of Thief River Falls is chairman of the organization with Curt Swanson of the St. Hilaire area as treasurer and Connie Omdahl of Warren as secretary.

The organization has prepared information on what it considers to be facts along with parallel unanswered questions, and cited 11 previously asked questions to which the air force, according to the group, has given no response, no assurance or answered in indefinite terms.

Text of the organization's list of facts follows, with each followed by questions which the group says remain unanswered.

"Many farm families would be displaced and affected by the loss of their land, renters as well as landowners, families which would have been and would like to remain contributing members of this community for generations — not only 20 years. How many actual employees or families would Thief River Falls gain?"

"New studies on radio frequency radiation (RFR) indicate that radiation directly interacts with human and animal cells or living tissue, resulting in numerous health problems. Are you convinced that the Draft Environmental Impact statement (DEIS) phrase 'not likely' to be hazardous means that people living near the radar facility will not be affected by long-term exposure? Is a six-year health study considered a long-term study?"

"A minimum of 2,400 acres of farmland will be needed for the OTH-B system. A farmland is a nonrenewable resource. What will the maximum acreage be?"

"The system is expected to operate up to 20 years. What is meant by the DEIS statement 'if the land was purchased, it would be made available for other federal use?' Does this mean a future nuclear dump facility in Pennington and Polk county could be located here?"

"In 1983, the General Accounting office, an agency which reviews the effectiveness of government programs, questioned the need for the OTH-B system. Its 1986 report recommends not funding the CRS. Do other already existing warning systems offer adequate protection?"

"Roads and ditches will be blocked and re-routed which will cause damage to the local environment. What impact will this have on surrounding farmland? How much will adjacent farmland be devalued. Will the water drainage issue create difficulties for which there is no legal recourse against the air force?"

"Substantial crop revenue losses will be incurred. How will ag-related businesses, such as implement and parts dealers, feed and seed businesses, fertilizer plants, co-ops, etc., be adversely affected?"

"Significant tax loss to townships and school districts (is projected). Who will have the burden of making up the difference?"

"The draft environmental impact statement is inconclusive and speculative in nature. Is the purpose of the DEIS to present an accurate appraisal of the area to be affected so that it can be the basis of the air force's decision?"

"According to the DEIS, direct local employment is unlikely to significantly affect any particular community. The major income effects for a particular community during site preparation and construction would depend on the resident location of contractors performing

Aune Pleads Guilty To Welfare Theft

Jaylene Arlys Aune entered a plea of guilty in Pennington county district court this morning to two counts of felony theft by swindle and sentencing was set for December 15 at 9:30 a.m. following a pre-sentence investigation. Judge Warren A. Saetre accepted the guilty plea.

Aune, a six-year employee of the Pennington county social services department, did not contest the prosecution's allegation that she had taken $37,650 from the department's accounts. That amount was stated as a result of an audit conducted by the state auditor's office and which is now considered completed.

Judge Saetre continued Aune's release on her own recognizance (without bond being set) that had been permitted by the county court on her first appearance last week. In her testimony to the court she indicated her intent to make restitution for the amount stolen. She was represented by Dennis Murphy, public defender.

Charges arose out of Aune's theft of money from the social welfare fund of the county social services department, primarily by issuance of checks to a deceased client for whom she had previously been a guardian. The two counts of felony theft of over $2,500 involved only the months of June and September, 1986. The client died in September of 1985 and Aune had been her guardian since 1983.

According to David Olin, Pennington county attorney, the crimes carry maximum penalties of 10 years in prison or a $20,000 fine or both fine and imprisonment.

BN Shippers Plan Project Completion Celebration Nov. 25

Shippers along the Burlington Northern rail line between St. Hilaire and Warroad are inviting area residents to join them in Greenbush on Tuesday, November 25 to help celebrate the completion of a $6.4 million rail rehabilitation project on this 92-mile line.

The celebration will take place at 10:30 a.m. at the railroad crossing next to the South Branch supper club in Greenbush. Burlington Northern will be stopping a train in Greenbush to mark the event and railroad officials will be presenting the first loan payment to the shippers at this time.

Representatives from Farm Credit services and the Minnesota department of transportation will also be on hand in recognition of their involvement in the project. The event will be moved inside in case of inclement weather.

Members of the shippers corporation are St. Hilaire Co-op Elevator; Salol Farmers Union Cooperative Elevator association; Greenbush Cooperative Grain and Seed association; Badger Co-op Elevator; Brooks Farmers Cooperative association; Farmers Co-op Ag Service, Greenbush; McFarlane Seeds, Inc., Greenbush; and Marvin Lumber and Cedar Co., Warroad.

This rail line is the key transportation link for agricultural shippers along the route. In the last three years, elevators shipped an average of five million bushels of grain a year on the branch line. Last year, the line carried 85 carloads of fertilitzer into the area.

In the early 1980s, deterioration of the track was severly affecting rail service to shippers on the line and the shippers were concerned that the line would eventually be considered for abandonment by the Burlington Northern railroad.

In 1984, eight shippers along the line formed the Northwest Minnesota Rail Shippers corporation and Fire Destroys Rural Viking Home Wed.

Fire destroyed a rural Viking home Wednesday afternoon. Newfolden Firefighter Arlan Tunheim reported that a passerby called the fire department around 1 p.m. reporting that a home occupied by the David Moose family of rural Viking was on fire and almost completely destroyed.

Tunheim said he responded to the call but by the time he arrived at the scene the home was already destroyed. The Moose family were not at the house at the time of the fire. Tunheim said he did not know the cause of the fire.

The Area Ag information center in Thief River Falls is collecting clothing and household goods for the Moose family, who lost everything in the fire. The center said they had received several calls already, but would probably continue collecting goods for the family for at least two weeks.

Donarski and Garceau Wed At Redeemer Lutheran Church

Holly Donarski and Brian Garceau were united in marriage July 19 at Redeemer Lutheran church in Thief River Falls. Rev. Luther Anderson officiated at the 4:30 p.m., double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Frank and Elaine Donarski of Grand Forks, ND, and Kenneth and Sharon Garceau, Thief River Falls.

The church was decorated with pink bows gracing candelabra and pews, and a pink floral arrangement at the altar.

Joyce Halbasch, friend of the bride's family, was the organist, playing the traditional wedding march as processional. Jan and Paedre Nordin sang, "To Me," "Just You and I" and "The Wedding Song."

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father, wearing a gown of white, with high Chantilly lace collar, sheer, pearl and lace-trimmed yoke, and full, puffed sleeves of lace. The pearl and applique-trimmed bodice accented the skirt of tiered lace, which flowed into a chapel-length matching train.

To compliment her gown, she wore a lace trimmed bridal hat with bridal illusion veil, trimmed in silk flowers and pearls. Her bouquet was composed of white, pink and wine-colored roses, babies' breath, and pink and white satin ribbon. Tiffanie Benson, friend of the bride, was her personal attendant.

Julie Maidment, Moorhead, served as her cousin's maid of honor. Other bridesmaids were Teri Garceau, sister of the groom; Kim and Anne Giauque, cousins of the birde; and Teresa Eggers and Jacki Kramer, both friends of the bride. They wore matching tea length gowns of pink satin covered with pink lace, featuring a pink satin sash worn with back bow, and scalloped boat neckline. They wore matching pink shoes and arm bouquets of pink, white and wine roses with babies' breath and pink satin ribbon.

Miniature bride was Sara Giauque, cousin of the bride, wearing a satin, floor length gown with lace sleeves and lace-trimmed hat with veil, similar to the bridal gown. Patrick Johnson, cousin of the bride, was the miniature groom, wearing white tails matching the attire of the groom.

The groom wore white tails with matching accessories, and a pink boutonniere matching the bridal bouquet.

Serving as best man was Parks Case, Grand Forks, friend of the couple. Groomsmen were Randy and Robert Wagner, cousins of the groom; Chris Giauque, cousin of the bride; and Clay Syverson and Jeff Matson, both friends of the groom.

Ushering the guests were Donald and Robert Wayne, cousins of the bride. Gentlemen of the wedding party wore black tuxedos with pink cummerbunds and ties, and matching pink boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a rose, floor-length gown with pearl accessories, and the groom's mother wore mauve. Their corsages were pink and white roses with babies' breath.

Guests of honor were grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Eino Johnson, and grandmother of the groom, Fern Wagner.

A reception in the church parlors followed the wedding ceremony. Serving as host couples were Arnie and Georgia Johnson, aunt and uncle of the bride; and Steve and Alice Wagner, aunt and uncle of the groom.

Highlighting the serving table was the three-tiered wedding cake with bridal stairs leading to two side cakes, upon which were miniatures of the bridal party. A flowing pink fountain graced the base of the cake. Decorations were pink roses on white icing, topped with blown glass swans and hearts.

Grace Giauque and Dorothy Wayne, auntos of the bride, cut and served the wedding cake. Aunt of the bride, Barbara Johnson, and aunt of the groom, Betty Wagner, poured. Presiding at the punch bowl were Michelle and Sherry Wagner, cousins of the groom; with Denise Wagner, also a cousin of the groom, registering the guests. Laura Giauque, cousin of the bride, and Angie Wagner, cousin of the groom, were in charge of the gifts. Waitresses were the bride's cousin, Kristina Johnson, and the groom's cousin, Connie Wagner.

The bride is a graduate of Red River high school and Northland community college. The groom graduated from Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls and is employed at New Visions Fiberglassing. The couple is at home in Grand Forks, ND.

The INSIDE SCOOP

by GAYLE BORCHERT

The fall play, "Don't Tell Mother," will be presented on Friday and Saturday, November 21 and 22, at 7:27 p.m. in the Lincoln auditorium. The play will also be presented on Sunday, November 23 at 2 p.m.

Wirtten by Monk Ferris, the play is a comedy about mistaken identity. There are eight people in the cast and they are on the stage almost all of the time. The public will enjoy the play since they will know who the characters actually are and who they are pretending to be.

The play is directed by Brett Carter, an announcer at KTRF-KSNR. Mr. Carter graduated from Lincoln in 1979 and got interested in theatre in college. He was in last year's theatre production of "The Rivals" at Northland community college.

Tuesday night is the fall music concert at Lincoln. It will feature a full orchestra, the concert band, wind ensemble and the jazz band. All four instrumental groups are under the direction of Mr. Kevin Ryan. In addition to conducting rehearsals during school, Mr. Ryan has scheduled morning rehearsals twice weekly for the jazz band and several night rehearsals for the full orchestra since most of the wind players are not in the regular orchestra.

Thursday night is the annual Sadie Hawkins dance sponsored by the student senate. It will feature a country theme and, as usual, the girls will ask the guys. Admission this year is based on the length of the guy's foot. Couples will be charged fifty cents an inch.

Students at Lincoln will have Thursday and Friday off due to the scheduled Parent-Teacher conferences. The staff will be present at school and conferences may be scheduled by contacting a teacher.

the site work. With no contractors selected yet, local income effects are difficult to make. An adverse impact would result from the reduction of farmed land. For a particular township or school district, losses would be more significant. Would this really be an economic boom for the Thief River Falls area when all is considered?"

Dyrdal said that Tom Kenville, consultant for Thief River Falls Jobs Incorporated, has stated that Col. James Lee had answered all of Dyrdal's questions through the release of a memorandum. Dyrdal said 11 questions had been asked and that five had received no response. Those receiving no response were:

"Exactly how does the air force plan to offset the shift in tax burden to local residents?

"If the 'offset' will include offering services, such as plowing snow and maintenance of roads, which would have to have been done by the township or county, please give me a breakdown of the employee time that the local government would be saving?

"What protection will local landowners have against any devaluation of land adjacent to the site caused by this project, such as the creation of replacement wetland areas? Will a tort claim for damages be available to owners of devalued land or businesses?

"If the Thief River Falls site is chosen, which present roads would be destroyed? Would there be any compensation for farmers for additional transportation expense if they farm land on both sides of the radar site?

"What assurance can the air force give that this area will not be subject to expansion of the site with additional land being taken for the site?"

Dyrdal said that in response to the question "What assurance can the air force give that the site would not be used for disposal of nuclear or hazardous wastes when the OTH-B project is decommissioned," the air force gave no assurance. It replied that "any proposed uses of the land involving potential environmental impact would...require a complete environmental impact analysis process."

"What assurance can the air force give that the radar site will not be replaced with an Extreme Low Frequency Radar System or other radar system or project which has been shown to be harmful to human and animal health or life?" was another question asked. Dyrdal said the air force gave no assurance, stating that the site "could not be diverted for use for some other type of radar without EIS process."

In response to the question of what restrictions would be made on the use of high tech farming proactices, such as closed circuit TV, radio-controlled equipment, laser beams or other electronic monitoring devices, the air force said there would be none, except for welding within one-half mile from the security fence. The answer of no restrictions to the question of maximum number of miles for which restrictions might be made surrounding the radar site is inconsistent with the MITRE letter, dated September 16, 1985, on siting criteria for the site of 5-25 miles, Dyrdal said.

"What restrictions will be made on recreational hunting or use of firearms in the area, and for how many miles around the radar site," was another question asked. Response that "There should be no interference or restrictions on the land use" is termed by Dyrdal as "indefinite."

He also terms indefinite the answer to his questions, "Does the air force intend to use leased land, and if so, upon what factors will these leases be based? The answer which had been given was that leasing "will not occur until Congress approves the CRS by authorizing and appropriating funds."

Question of what type of fencing material would be used for the exclusion fence was answered by stating it would be of wood or other nonconductive material.

Dyrdal noted that opposition to the siting has come from petitions containing over 550 signatures of area citizens, Gov. Perpich, Minnesota department of agriculture, Minnesota pollution control agency, Minnesota chapter of the National Farmers organization, Pennington county Farmers Union, Norden and Sanders townships.

He encouraged written comments to Lt. V.G. Brown, ESD-SCO, Hanscom AFB, MA 01731 before the December 8 deadline and that copies of the comments be sent to the governor and legislators.

BN Shippers Plan Project Completion With Celebration

initiated a joint economic effort with the Minnesota department of transportation, Burlington Northern railroad and Farm Credit services.

Minnesota department of transportation, through the Minnesota rail service improvement program, provided a loan of $4.48 million or 70 per cent of the total. Burlington Northern provided $1.28 million or 20 per cent and the shippers corporation, financed by Farm Credit services, provided a loan of $640,000 or 10 per cent of the total.

Burlington Northern will repay Mn-DOT in 10 equal installments with low interest. The shippers are being repaid by the railroad at the rate of $100 per car for all cars shipped or received on the lne. The first payment of $90,000 will be made to the shippers at the celebration.

The rehabiliation project consisted of replacing 62,600 cross ties, all switch ties, 63,400 tie plates, 246,924 rail anchors, 325,876 spikes, 118,300 cubic yards of crushed rock, plus heavier track and other rail hardware where needed. The completed project will eliminate weight restrictions and allow the transportation of 54-car unit trains. It also will allow train operation at speeds up to 25 miles per hour versus 5-10 MPH prior to the project.

In conjunction with the rehabilitation project, Mn-DOT is coordinating installation of new rubber crossing surfaces at six trunk highway railroad grade crossings along the line.

"Overall, this $6.4 million investment in the northwest Minnesota transportation system will help maintain needed rail freight service and help provide low cost, competitive transportation necessary to this areas economy," states Bob Wolfe, district engineer at Bemidji for the Minnesota department of transporation.

OTH-B Hearing At City Auditorium Thursday Evening

Hearing on the Over the Horizon-Backscatter radar siting proposal for this area will be conducted by the U.S. air force Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Thief River Falls city auditorium, according to Col. James Lee, director of the Over the Horizon radar systems directorate.

Other hearings are being held Tuesday evening at Hillsboro, ND and Wednesday at Britton, SD.

According to Col. Lee, a question and answer period of about 30 minutes will follow the air force presentations. A public comment period will immediately follow the question and answer session, at which time interested individuals may present their comments. Time permitting, an additional question ad answer period will follow the comment period.

Time limits being imposed to permit all persons who desire to be heard with an opportunity to speak will be five minutes for elected or other public officials and those representing groups or agencies, and three minutes for those speaking for themselves.

Results of the public hearings and all written correspondence will be used to develop the final environmental impact statement which is expected to be published in January of 1987, Col. Lee said.

The air force has proposed location of a receive site for its OTH-B central radar system at several locations in northwestern Minnesota and northeastern North Dakota, one of which is west of Thief River Falls. Considerable opposition to location in this area has developed in the past several weeks.

WE'RE KEEPING FEDERAL EMPLOYEES IN A GREAT STATE OF HEALTH.

Life in our part of Minnesota isn't always easy. But it has its compensations. Like a day of cross-country skiing on a secluded forest trail, followed by an evening around the fireplace. With so many reasons to get outside and enjoy winter, it's no wonder we've earned a nationwide reputation for healthy living.

"Being close to your family doctor helps too. Around here, you're likely to run into your doctor in church, at the hardware store or in the stands at a high school hockey game — not just in his office. So it's easier to talk to him about health problems and take care of them early. Which is what preventive health care is all about.

At Blue Cross and Blue Shield, we think that kind of closeness between you and your doctor means better health care. In fact, we built HMO Minnesota around it.

When you join HMO Minnesota, you choose your own doctor from a network of over 1,000 participating local physicians, all with their own family practices. And you and your doctor make your health care decisions. One small monthly fee covers most of your health care needs in full, including unlimited visits to your family doctor.

HMO Minnesota is a member of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield health care family. We've been keeping people like you in a great state of health for more than 50 years. For more information, see your health benefits office or call our Duluth office at 218-722-4685 or 1800 232-1383.

To the Editor:

I have been asking a question concerning the OTH-B radar system which no one seems to care to answer. What right does Jobs, Inc., Mayor Bob, Thief River Falls city council or anyone else in Thief River Falls for that matter, have in negotiating for the sale of our land? If we in the rural area put your home or business up for sale, we'd hear about it! Maybe the full impact to Thief River Falls will be felt when it becomes apparent how many people no longer plan to shop in Thief River Falls.

I have not had it proved to me that this defense system is an absolute necessity. It see so such waste in government spending anyway. If you want an example, look at the missile site that stands empty at Nekoma, ND. That was built in about 1974-75. It lasted about 2½-3 years and then they pulled out. They actually built a complete town and homes for all the employees. Very impressive.

During this time the towns of Langdon and Nekoma flourished with new business. But as soon as the government pulled out, not only did all the government property stand empty but businesses that had existed for years began to go broke. A new school was even provided in the original town of Nekoma to house all the extra students in about 1975-76 and about a year after the government pulled out, the whole school district folded.

This information was provided to me by Eva Burnham, a former resident of Thief River Falls who is from Nekoma. If you want to see for yourself, take ND Highway 1 up to Langdon. Is this what we want our area to look like in a few years? We have no guarantee but what it will. Thank you.

Change The System

Guest Editorial by Myron Cartwright
Mayor of Bagley

Many people from throughout the Ninth Judicial District have been wondering what the final results were in the Weddel-Wilson judgeship race.

The unofficial tally is 55,745 votes for the incumbent, Weddel, or 51.3 per cent and 52,946 votes for the challenger, Wilson, or 48.7 per cent.

A breakdown of those figures by counties is informative. Wilson received 80.4 per cent of the vote (2,979 votes) to Weddel's 19.6 per cent (725 votes) in Clearwater county. In Beltrami county, Wilson received 7,422 (64.6 per cent) to Weddel's 4,066 (35.4 per cent). Beltrami and Clearwater counties are where this judge presides and a majority of 68.5 per cent clearly did not want Weddel returned as judge.

The vote totals in the other 15 counties determined the outcome. Wilson carried the neighboring counties of Hubbard, Mahnomen and Itasca and lost by small margins in Aitkin, Cass, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau. Weddel won by larger margins in only two counties: Kittson and Crow Wing. Weddel, the incumbent, won by only 2,830 votes out of 108,691 votes cast.

Many people locally and around the district have told me they are upset that the local, affected voters could not determine who should be their judge. They want to know what can be done about it.

Those of you who feel this way should contact your local state senator and representative and ask them to change the system so that judges are voted for and politically responsible to the people they primarily serve.

Separating News From Ads

Following comments were written by Mike Cooper, editor of the Faribault Daily News, in an editorial prior to the 1986 election:

Supermarket managers don't get mad because newspapers don't publish their prices in the news columns. Hospital administrators don't get upset because newspapers don't list their services in the news columns.

Why do political candidates fly off the handle when newspapers don't publish their views? Allow me a less-than-rhetorical answer: It's because some candidates — and some campaign managers — haven't discovered the difference between news and advertising. They think everything they say is newsworthy, when much of it is mere marketing meant to sell the "product."

There's nothing wrong with marketing. We all need to know what store has the best price on ground beef, what station provides the finest service for our cars, what candidate believes as we do.

. . . A couple of guidelines help me define the difference between news and advertising: Guideline 1 — If the information is designed to make a profit or enhance someone's career, it's probably advertising. Guideline 2 — The first time a piece of information runs, it's news. The second time, it's advertising.

. . . Candidates for congress and state office have concluded that newspapers give them all the space they want. If a candidate wants his views in the paper, he merely has to call a news conference. If a store manager wants to print his prices, he has to pay.

That shortchanges the reader, because it means reporters are spending more time on campaigns and less on stories that really interest people. It is a message, I think, that cries for change.

Black Is White

Dmitri Borgmann, in his book "Beyond Language", uses definition of words to prove such things as black being white and ugly being beautiful. This is the way he does it:

In the dictionary, black means dark, dark means obscure, obscure means hidden, hidden means concealed, concealed means snug, snug means comfortable, comfortable means easy, easy means simple, simple means pure and pure means white.

By the same token, ugly means offensive, offensive means insulting, insulting means insolent, insolent means proud, proud means lordly, lordly means stately, stately means grand, grand means gorgeous and gorgeous means beautiful.

And you thought English was an exact language!

Well Told Story

We fully suspect that somebody made up this whole thing, but even so it makes a pertinent point. The story is that a western newspaper printed a picture of a desolate, sandswept field and offered a prize for the best 100-word essay on the disastrous effects of erosion. Supposedly an Oklahoma Indian won the prize with the following description:

"Picture show white man crazy. Cut down trees. Make too big teepee. Plow hill. Water wash. Wind blow soil. Grass gone. Deer gone. Squaw gone. Whole place gone to hell. No pig. No corn. No pony. Indian no plow land. Keep grass. Buffalo eat grass. Indian eat buffalo. Hide make plenty big teepee. Make moccasin. All time eat. No work. No hitchhike. No ask relief. No build dam. No give damn. White man heap crazy."

That Silver Lining

Following editorial is from the Iowa Farm Bureau publication:

There's an old song that says to "Look for the silver lining."

Of course a person can carry such advice too far . . . but the most successful of us have a way of turning adversity into prosperity.

The successful don't dwell on problems, they turn their energies toward the opportunities. And there are more than enough opportunities out there this year.

For instance, the rains made the fields muddy. Some complained that it was almost impossible to begin harvest this fall. Others took the opportunity to make final equipment repairs and noticed that the ground waters were being replenished for next year.

Some see low grain prices and groan. Others took advantage of them to profitably produce tasty, nutritious pork and beef.

Some listen to the down markets and complain that grain prices, especially corn, haven't been this low in nearly a decade. Others grin, store their grain, and anticipate making a profit when American grain moves into the international markets.

Some complain about the long lines at the local elevators as they wait to unload grain. Others take advantage of the time to plan for the future, to catch up on paperwork, or talk about dreams for the future with a child or spouse.

Some bemoan the fact that they bought land near its height and now may have to forfeit their entire operation. Others eagerly anticipate entering the profession of farming because they can now afford to buy land and equipment, even if it is used.

The point is that we need to learn to accept the things that we cannot change. The happiest and most successful among us have similar habits. They look for and discover the silver linings in the darkest of clouds.

Interesting Opinions:

"Because I find something objectionable doesn't mean it should be removed from everyone's access. I personally object to guns and hunting, but that doesn't mean I have a right to demand that "Field and Stream" be removed from grocery shelves or that the National Rifle association be disbanded.

"When we start removing literature because it might cause you to do something, then we are punishing ideas, not actions. In that case, we'd better ban recipe books with colored photos because they might make you eat too much."

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

It seems hard to believe, but as recently as 1981 the United States exported more manufactured goods than it imported from the rest of the world.

Today we suffer from annual trade deficits in the $125 billion range, a profound imbalance that has wreaked havoc among certain segments of our economy, eliciting widespread demands for protectionism.

Those demands must be resisted at all costs. We must keep in mind that despite the trade deficit, the United States remains the largest exporter in the world. For us to launch the world into a trade war would be the height of folly. There would be no winners in such a cataclysm only loosers, and we stand to lose more than anyone.

We do not need to guess what the consequences of protectionism would be. We need only thumb a few pages back into our history to the early 1930s when Congress tried to protect domestic industry with the infamous Smoot-Hawley Tariff. That ill-conceived act was perhaps the major cause of the Great Depression.

The economies of the world are much more interrelated today than they were in the 1930s, and the effects of a trade war would even be even more calamitous now.

There can be no question that some of our trading partners engage in unfair practices that victimize American businesses and workers. But we have laws that apply to such situations and the Reagan administration is enforcing them, winning a steady parade of concessions from nations that discriminate against us.

Additionally, the declining dolar is enhancing our trade prospects considerably. The trade deficit rose in tandem with the rise of the dollar, and there is reason to believe it will decline the same way. Since the spring of 1985, the dollar has fallen about 40 per cent. It takes time for currency ratios to be reflected in trade statistics, but I think we have seen the first glimmer of improvement. Our deficit in August dropped to $13 billion from $18 billion the month before.

Which is not to suggest we should pop the corks on our champagne bottles just yet. But our economy is healthy and growing, producing far more new jobs than have been lost to foreign competition. American business is responding to the challenge, becoming more efficient and productive. We are on the right track and, if the forces of protectionism can be resisted, I am certain the flow of trade will eventually return to an even keel.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

I have been following the developments on the Falls Day Activity Center with amazement.

Here we have a case of several young people who have the courage and compassion for our mentally handicapped to speak up in their defense — risking their jobs and possibly their careers — to right a tragic wrongdoing; and no one wants to be bothered with it.

Where are the relatives of these handicapped people who are unable to speak up in defense of themselves?

It is obvious where Mr. Armstrong's relatives are — employed by the D.A.C. How convenient for him. It would be interesting to find out how many of Mr. Armstrong's friends and-or relatives are on this so called board of directors that seems to condone his behavior.

"No evidence," says Mr. Olin. Just what does he consider hard evidence? Does someone who mistreats a person usually do it where they can be seen?"

Let's get realistic, people.

Why is the Grand Forks Herald giving more coverage to this fiasco than the Times?

Maybe personally knowing two people who used to be employed by the D.A.C. I am more aware of the facts in this case. But there is something sadly lacking in a place where they will tolerate such behavior.

Someone in a position such as the one held by Mr. Armstrong should be above suspicion. At the very least there should always be a non-related individual in the assistant supervisory position.

Good grief, you people in Thief River Falls! His daughter? Get serious.

You have once again proved that it is better to turn our heads and ignore anyone needing help. I'm sure those courageous young people have gotten the message.

AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK
November 16-22, 1986

NOVEMBER 16-22 IS AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK

Within our public schools, we will be holding a number of activities including parent conferences and open houses to help celebrate and focus public attention on education.

I think all of us would agree that education has played a substantial part in our personal lives. Not only have we invested many years in the process of receiving an education, but many of us continue to invest of ourselves through our professional and personal involvement in our public schools.

Over the past four years, there have been a number of national reports that have been critical of public education in our country. Although these reports have many valid observations surrounding our educational process, they do tend to overemphasize the negative aspects of our current system. Public education in America represents what is best about our country. The provision of an equal opportunity to learn, to grow, and to participate within our society is one of the cornerstones of our democracy. One need only review the history of countries with less individual freedoms than our own to notice that one of the primary vehicles for social control is to restrict access to knowledge and education.

As our schools and communities celebrate American Education Week, I hope that we all would take a moment to think about the importance of public education and its relationship to our basic freedoms. I encourage all of you to participate in as many activities with our schools as you can during that week and, as always, we extend a warm and open invitation for you to come and visit your schools.

Sincerely,

Leo A. Ruberto

Thief River Falls Football Banquet . . .

Prowlers Hand Out Awards

Quarterback-defensive back Chris Bjorgaard was named winner of the most valuable player award Thursday at the annual Thief River Falls high school football team awards banquet.

Other special award winners included Joel Swanson, most improved; Rod Hinrichs, most dedicated; Paul Brandt, top offensive player; and Elliot Baker, top defensive player.

Bjorgaard and Mike Bendickson were named co-captains of the 1987 Prowlers, succeeding Baker and Jon Erickson.

Also given special recognition at the banquet was Joe Drevlow, winner of the team's pre-season practice-opening Ironman Contest, and members of the Prowlers' summer passing league championship team — Bjorgaard, Brandt, Bendickson, Jeff Brouse, Scott Vedbraaten, Brian Christianson, Rick Rosetta, Jim Kappes and Mark Peterson.

Northland Community College football coach Rick Nelson was the banquet's guest speaker.

Statistically, pointed out Mumm, the Prowlers made great strides this year, even though record-wise 2-7 was just a modest improvement over an 0-8 campaign a year ago — Mumm's first year here.

Comparing this year's figure to last year's totals, Thief River Falls was vastly improved offensively. The Prowlers scored 113 points this fall after scoring just 9 the year before; the Prowlers collected 93 first downs this year to just 55 the year before; they rushed for 1,526 yards this year to just 677 the year before; and they ran up 2,084 yards in total offense this season to just 850 the year before.

"Offensively we improved a heckuva lot," acknowledged Mumm. "One of my goals this year was to have an exciting football team, and I think we accomplished that. I like the (wing-T) offense. We'll be doing a lot more with it next year."

Brandt used his speed, mostly to the outside, to lead the Prowlers with 783 yards rushing. That's the fourth highest figure in the Thief River Falls books since the numbers were put together by current Thief River Falls Times Sports Editor Mike Lundgren beginning in 1970. Rob Swenson rushed for 979 yards in 1971; Kent Smith gained 928 in 1972 and Swenson totaled 793 in 1970.

Brandt put his name atop the Thief River Falls single-season rushing list with a 202-yard outburst against Detroit Lakes this fall, and his 191 yards vs. Grafton four weeks later puts his name in the No. 2 spot on the list, too, ahead of previous Jeff Kosel, who had 189 yards vs. Staples in 1977. Doug Dallman (vs. Staples in 1976) and Tim Bottem (vs. East Grand Forks in 1984) both had 184-yard games. Swenson's best was 182 vs. Detroit Lakes in 1970.

The 28 carries Brandt had against Detroit Lakes topped by one the previous high of 27 by Tom Ose vs. Staples in 1981.

Nelson made his mark, too, in the pass receiving department with six catches for 113 yards vs. Valley City this fall. Mike Onkka (vs. Fridley in 1973) and Steve Wiskow (vs. Fergus Falls in 1982 and vs. Mahnomen in 1983) both had five catches to their credit to share the previous team high, and John Dillon (vs. Fergus Falls in 1979) was the team-leader in single-game receiving yardage with 97.

The 21 catches for 319 yards for the season put Nelson No. 2 on both lists. Wiskow caught 22 passes in 1983 and Jim Elleson had 349 yards in receptions in 1974.

Rosetta's 35.7-yard punting average this fall bettered a 34.8 team figure of 1973 that was tops in the Thief River Falls books, and the Prowler's fumble figures (12 fumbles, 6 lost) were both new team lows, bettering the 19 fumbles and 9 lost fumbles in 1981 — a six game season because of a teacher's strike.

Defensively, Baker, a tackle, and Erickson, a linebacker, were the leaders. Baker was credited with 77 assisted tackles, 17 unassisted tackles, eight quarterback sacks and two fumble recoveries. Erickson had a hand in 72 assisted tackles, 18 unassisted stops, three sacks and one fumble recovery.

But despite all of the good numbers, Thief River Falls still had trouble in the win column. The Prowlers lost their 1986 opener to Grand Forks Red River 35-7, broke a long losing streak by beating Detroit Lakes 39-15, but then began to lose again — to Bemidji 12-3, Valley City 30-12 and Crookston 30-11. They came up with a 20-0 homecoming victory over Grafton, but lost to Fergus Falls 33-0 and East Grand Forks 27-9 to end the regular season, and fell to Staples 24-9 in the opening round Section 8A playoff quarterfinals.

"We still had only two wins," noted Mumm. "Inconsistency was our big problem. We were up and down all year. Two-and-7 is better than 0-8, but we're still not there yet. It's a start, but I want to be over .500 every year, and I think we've got the kids who can do that. We did reach a few goals this year; we got the interest back into the program and our players felt important again. They got their pride back, and the enthusiasm was great throughout the school and the community — that's one of the biggest steps we made this year."

Graduation losses always hurt, especially when you lose people like Brandt in the backfield, Drevlow in the offensive line and Baker and Erickson on defense. But Mumm says there's some good talent coming back at the varsity level, and unlike the past, the younger players tasted success at the junior varsity, sophomore, freshman and eighth grade levels, which should help in the years ahead, he said. "It's coming, but we still have a ways to go," pointed out Mumm. "We're still weak compared to the rest of the teams we play. We made big strides in the weight room last year, but we still have to push the weights hard to be successful in the future."

GIVEN RECOGNITION AT Thursday's Thief River Falls football banquet were members of the winning team in the Prowlers' summer passing league designed to help prepare the players for the 1986 season. The group included, left to right, Scott Vedbraaten, Jeff Brouse, Brian Christianson, Chris Bjorgaard, Rick Rosetta, Mark Peterson, Mike Bendickson and Paul Brandt. Not present at the time of the picture was Jim Kappes.

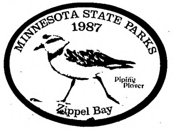
State Park Permit

The 1987 Minnesota State Park annual vehicle permit went on sale Saturday, Nov. 1.

With a 1987 state park permit on the windshield, the motor vehicle and all occupants have unlimited access to Minnesota's 64 state parks through the end of next year. Permit fees remain unchanged: $15 for residents, seniors $7.50.

The 1987 permit featuring the endangered piping plover, was painted by Baudette wildlife artist Thomas Parr Williamson.



Fewer than 50 plovers populate Minnesota. They are restricted to a few sandy beaches or sparsely vegetated shorelines along Lake of the Woods and the Duluth harbor. Zippel Bay State Park, also featured on the 1987 permit, is located on the southern shore of Lake of the Woods near Williams and provides a home for many of the remaining plovers. According to state and federal wildlife officials, the bird's major foes are humans who disturb and alter the plovers' sandy shoreline habitat.

Permits are available for individual or gift purchases at all state parks and the DNR headquarters, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155-4026. Permits may also be ordered over the phone using VISA or Mastercard by calling toll-free in Minnesota, 800-652-9747 (ask for DNR).

According to the DNR, nearly $3 million is raised through the permit sales, all of which is dedicated for the resource protection and operation of the state park system.

Burning Improves Habitat

Scheduled prescribed burning to improve sharp-tailed grouse habitat in the northwestern part of the state is progressing, in spite of the weather, according to the Department of Natural Resources. The unusually wet fall has caused several delays and necessitated rescheduling of planned burns for sharptail and other wildlife habitat. However, the most modern technology of aerial ignition has made it possible to burn several thousand acres.

Cooperative efforts of DNR personnel from the Section of Wildlife and Division of Forestry have greatly improved the ability to burn on short notice whenever the weather permits, using aerial ignition techniques. Burn plans are formulated by the Section of Wildlife and burning techniques developed by the Division of Forestry are combined to accomplish the burns. Burning creates openings and helps hold back vegetation such as trees and shrubs, creating a savanna-like environment which the sharp-tailed grouse need.

A helicopter with an aerial drip torch suspended beneath is used to do the actual igniting. The firing pattern is directed by the burn boss, either from the ground or in a fixed-wing aircraft flying over the fire.

Burns have been completed at the Roseau, Twin Lakes and Thief Lake Wildlife Management Areas. Additional burns are planned for the Thief Lake Wildlife Management Area.

Iowans Fined

Two Iowa men paid fines totalling $800 for illegally harvesting clams in the Minnesota and Pomme De Terre rivers, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources reported.

The freshwater clams are sold to Japan where the shells are crushed and injected into saltwater clams for the production of cultured pearls. The DNR requires an angling license and clamming permit before clams can legally be taken from state waters.

David Alan Young and Richard Lynn Peterson were charged with clamming without a permit and Young was also charged with unlawfully obtaining a resident angling license.

Young was fined $500 and Peterson $300. DNR Enforcement officers confiscated 750 pounds of clams the two had harvested before their apprehension.

Officials said a third man, who represented an Iowa clamming company, contacted state conservation officers in July requesting information on the regulations regarding the harvesting of clams.

Name Contest

The Minnesota 'Skeeters. That was my entry in the name-the-team contest sponsored by officials who are trying to land a National Basketball Association expansion franchise for Minnesota.

Short for Mosquito, 'Skeeters was mailed to contest officials on Thursday, one day after the full page ad announcing the competition appeared in the Minneapolis Star & [illegible] for duplicate name suggestions will be broken by using the earlier postmark, I feel safe in publicly announcing my choice. (You may be wondering at this point, and with justification, just how many entries with the name 'Skeeters will be received by contest officials).

I don't make a habit out of entering contests, but this one sounded like too much fun to pass up. It's like having an opportunity to enter the state or federal duck stamp contest, a secret desire kept in check only because I can't draw worth a lick. (Some of you will probably add that I'm no better at naming NBA teams).

Actually 'Skeeters, while my favorite, was just one of four names I submitted. The others were: Shooting Stars, Timber and Ticks. That last one really came from my 13-year-old son, Charlie, but contest rules said you must be 18 years old or older to be eligible for the prizes.

Winner of the name-the-team contest will receive an all expense-paid trip for two to the 1987 NBA All-Star game in Seattle. I'm not really into pro basketball that much, but if they want to give me a free trip, I'll take it.

There's also second and third place prizes that will be awarded: a pair of $25 season tickets, or a pair of $20 season tickets. Tickets I'll assume are priced at $25 or $20 apiece PER GAME for the entire season. While I'm not about to spend that kind of money to watch pro basketball, a $25 or $20 season pass would seem a little low, so I'll guess they're mighty nice seats.

But unless they can be resold, those tickets would be relatively useless in the hands of someone in northwestern Minnesota who keeps plenty busy as Sports Editor of The Times while also trying to keep up with two boys in the Thief River Falls youth hockey program. I'll take a Squirt, Pee-Wee or Bantam hockey game over an NBA game any day, but not just because I favor hockey over basketball. I much prefer to watch local youth, high school or college performers in any sport over the highly-paid professionals on television.

Obviously I didn't enter the contest for the prizes. But to know that the NBA Board of Governors awarded an expansion franchise to the Minnesota 'Skeeters would be kind of neat (awesome, I guess, in the vocabulary of today's youth).

Minnesota NBA boosters were put on hold with their expansion request by league officials this fall, but most believe Minnesota will be one of three expansion sites selected at the NBA's next league meeting April 20, 1987. Over 9,000 deposits for season tickets have already been received by Minnesota's hopeful NBA people, who want to arm themselves with a team name when they approach the league next spring.

Entries in the name-the-team contest must be postmarked by midnight, December 15, 1986.

+ Winter sports teams at Lincoln High School and Northland Community College are preparing for the start of the 1986-87 seasons. At Lincoln, the Thief River Falls girls begin their basketball schedule Tuesday, November 25, at Marshall County Central; the Thief River Falls boys open their basketball schedule Friday, December 5, vs. Kennedy; hockey team starts Saturday, December 6, at Grand Forks Central; and the Thief River Falls boys start their swimming schedule Saturday, December 20, with the annual Thief River Falls Relays. At Northland, the men and women will begin their basketball seasons with an alumni doubleheader Saturday, November 29; while the hockey team starts play Thursday, December 4, at the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls Water Utility announced that the state maximum allowable limit for turbidity was exceeded for the months of July, September and October 1986.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand, or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity level has not created any health hazards because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

Please be assured that the water is safe to drink. The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with state health department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lamm, water department supervisor, at 681-3809.

Announcement of the selection was made last week by the publisher of the tabloid publication, which is devoted to the betterment of senior high school students' reading and writing skills. Kimberly's poem is entitled, "Befriended?" A copy of the current edition of the High School Writer may be obtained by contacting the English department of your local high school.

Everything Is A-OK

Roseau — George Rinde and Wesley Roll of West Acres Cenex plant appeared at the Roseau city council meeting November 3 to assure the council members that the plant measures up to all required safety standards. They stated that they have been working to implement steps that will make the local plant even more safe than required or recommended since the accident last month that resulted in the death of Hillard Horvath.

Roseau Turns Out Too

Roseau — Seventy-eight point two per cent of the registered voters in Roseau county went to the polls November 4, a total of 6,003 persons.

Not Even A Foot

Warroad — The city of Warroad, reported the Pioneer, received less snowfall than surrounding areas during the recent blizzard, with only eight inches.

That's The Spirit

Erskine — Grace Lutheran church is planning a 12 noon Thanksgiving dinner for anyone who is unable to prepare a turkey dinner for himself or is alone and would like to share dinner with friends. The dinner will be free, irregardless of age or church affiliation, and transportation will be provided.

Worthy Lioness Project

Winger — The current Winger Lioness club project is the purchase of a tymphanometer for the Win-E-Mac and Oklee schools, used to test fluid in the middle ear. The club has nearly reached its goal, with help from several area clubs. The most recent donation was from the Erskine Lions club in the amount of $500.

Patriots Play Pretty

Erskine — The Win-E-Mac Patriots high school band will play at the state capitol in St. Paul November 15 at 12 noon. Following the performance, the band and fans will be treated to a reception and luncheon at the capitol, hosted by Senator Roger Moe.

Norman County Turns Out

Ada — The Norman County Index said that Norman county voters topped voter turnout in the rest of the state with 67 per cent of the eligible voters in the county casting ballots.

Lip Sync Winners

Winger — The Winger Lions Lip Sync contest resulted in top prize being awarded to "The Pointed Sisters," a group composed of Vance Kaupang, Jodana Hickman and Michelle Balstad. They performed their rendition of "He's so Shy." Second prize went to Jesse Hickman and Bruce McWilliam illustrating two bums' everyday life to the tune of "Down On the Street." He began his travels in April of 1986, and has been sight-seeing and studying different methods of farming in the U.S. He plans to return to South Africa and further study agriculture and its related fields, considering a career in farming and-or consulting. He stated that one of the greatest differences between farming in Minnesota and South Africa is the level of mechanization. Farmers in South Africa have easy access to a plentiful supply of relatively cheap labor and do not need the mechanization that farmers do in North America.

Ask The Kids

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Thief River Falls Water Utility announced that the state maximum allowable limit for turbidity was exceeded for the months of July, September and October 1986.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand, or organic matter in the water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with chlorine disinfection. However, the high turbidity level has not created any health hazards because the water utility is able to maintain effective levels of chlorine for disinfection.

Please be assured that the water is safe to drink. The Thief River Falls water utility staff is working closely with state health department officials to reduce the turbidity to acceptable levels.

Any citizen seeking additional information should contact Allen Lamm, water department supervisor, at 681-3809.
